Budget Bites Big Business

By PAUL MOSS, AL FORREST
and BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Premier Dave Barrett today brought down the first budget by a socialist government in British Columbia and dipped deeply into the pockets of big business.

The corporation tax was increased from 10 to 12 per cent. And petroleum royalties were doubled to about 30 per cent.

Spending on education, health, pension supplements and other social services will be increased by more than $150 million for the fiscal year.

The $1.7 billion budget, up by close to $267 million on the current fiscal year, is an all-time record and reflects the biggest single-year increase in the history of the province.

This was necessitated, Barrett said in the budget speech, by "past deficiencies" and the need to catch up in the level of all services.

As expected, the budget contained no increase in personal tax rates.

The standard homeowner grant is raised $15 to $200, and the grant for homeowners aged 65 and over is increased by the same amount to $250.

Municipal per capita grants are raised $2 to $32 and are

Social Spending Given Boost

made unconditional. Formerly the grants had to be spent by municipalities in some cases exclusively for ambulance services and tourist promotion.

The highways department budget gets a $33.5 million boost and $5 million each is added to the special funds for park development and reforestation.

All three allocations, Barrett told a brief press conference this morning, are designed to provide more jobs for British Columbians.

"It's one heck of a good budget and I'm very proud of it," Barrett told reporters.

"It's a budget designed to provide jobs out of the tax dollars that people are paying... to help municipalities to be self-sufficient."

This had been accomplished, he noted, "without a single increase in tax for the working person or the small person."

Barrett wouldn't be drawn on the question whether other resources will be hit as petroleum has been. He simply said "There will be further legislation."

In the fiscal year ending March 31, the province would have a surplus of about $70 million, he said.

In the fiscal year of the new budget, 1973-1974, he did not anticipate a surplus.

"There may very well be a surplus but we are not deliberately underestimating our revenues."

He said he was anticipating a revenue increase of 10.5 per cent to 11 per cent, slightly lower than the increase in the current fiscal year.

Other budget items:

— Allocation of $10 million to a Provincial Land Acquisition Fund to buy land for future housing sites. Barrett said at the press conference this will not only help to meet the housing need but also spur a rapid build-up in jobs in the construction and trades areas.

— $10 million to establish a Community Recreational Facilities Fund for the province to share in jointly-financed community construction projects.

— An extra $40 million for hospital insurance, bringing the total in the next fiscal year to $272 million, and $90 million provided for medical care.

— A decrease in the tax rate on liquefied petroleum gas, which the budget speech termed "a nearly pollutant-free motor fuel," from 17 to 10 cents a gallon. This is designed to encourage a reduction in pollution caused by the automobile.

— Family farmers and fishermen are exempted from gasoline tax on motor fuels used off-highway, and fuel used in the family farm-truck on the highway. "We believe our primary agriculture and fishing industries... are in need of incentives also," the budget speech said.

— The province's home-acquisition fund, providing grants for home purchase and low-interest second mortgages, is continued and gets another $50 million pumped in.

Highlights

• Corporation income tax raised to 12 per cent from 10 per cent.

• No increase in personal income tax rates.

• Petroleum royalties to be increased about 30 per cent.

• Basic annual homeowner grant raised $15 to $200.

• Annual homeowner grant to homeowners 65 years and over raised $15 to maximum of $250.

• Municipal per capita grants raised $2 to $32 and made unconditional.

• $32 million more in school district operating grants.

• An increase to $12,000 from $10,000 in the seasonal indemnity for the 55 MLAs. Two sessions a year instead of one are predicted by the government.

• $64.8 million provided to carry out guaranteed $200 monthly income plan for those 65 or over or handicapped.

• Tax on pollutant-free liquefied petroleum gas to be 10 cents a gallon instead of 17 cents.

• Gift tax exemption provided for transfer by spouses of family homes to joint tenancy.

• $3.5 million to carry on elderly citizens' renters grant.

• A total of $90 million for medicare and an additional $40.1 million for hospital insurance.

• $50 million added to the home acquisition fund to continue the home buying grants and second mortgage programs.

• $10 million to set up a land acquisition fund to purchase land for future housing sites.

• $33.5 million more for department of highways to create jobs.

Higher Rural Taxes

The government plans a mill rate increase for citizens who live in rural and unorganized areas of the province.

Premier Barrett gave no indication of how much the increase will be — the rate now, province-wide is 10 mills.

"An increase will be made in a rural property tax mill rate which, in our opinion, has remained much too low in relation to the municipal general property tax levy," Barrett said in his budget speech.

For areas such as Colwood, Langford and View Royal, this indication in the speech could be interpreted as a nudge from the government for citizens of these outlying areas to start thinking more seriously about incorporating as municipalities.

The Greater Victoria mill rate is in the area of 70 mills.

Army, Air Force Stage Revolt in Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO (CP) — The army and air force, in virtual open revolt against President Juan Bordaberry, seized six radio stations here today and again demanded dismissal of former Gen. Antonio Fracese as defence minister.

The army-air force action added to the confusion of the situation. The Associated Press reported earlier that Bordaberry's 11 cabinet ministers, including Fracese, had resigned and that a Bor-daberry spokesman expressed hope there would be a negotiated solution.

The army and air force said in a broadcast communique that they would insist on their demand, "no matter what must eventually be faced."

The communique said the two forces do not want to overthrow Bordaberry, but only to force the resignation of Fracese.

Bordaberry spent the night at Government House after defying an earlier army-air force ultimatum to fire Fracese.

The Communist-dominated National Labor Convention threatened to "paralyze the country" with a nation-wide strike if the army and air force staged Uruguay's first military coup in this century.

Bordaberry had said Thursday night he would not remove Fracese.

Most military units disappeared from the streets today. Nevertheless, the navy said its ships were on alert "to defend the government."

12-Year Record Food Price Jump

Times News Services

OTTAWA — With a sharp boost from soaring food prices, the consumer price index took its biggest monthly jump in 12 years during the December-January period, to 144.5 from 143.3, Statistics Canada said today.

In the past 12 months overall food prices have increased 10 per cent. One-fifth of that increase took place in the December-January period.

The food component of the index showed increases in all major items, the statistics bureau said, but the rise was particularly sharp for beef, pork, eggs, fresh vegetables and milk.

In the Commons today Prime Minister Trudeau, facing heavy opposition fire over the latest increase, said "There will be some measure of relief" in the Feb. 19 budget, and those most affected by the rising costs.

The prime minister didn't mention any particular group of people who would be helped.

The government is considering every way in which it can stop the increase in living costs, Trudeau told Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

So far as food costs are concerned, he hoped to get some insight from the Commons

Giant Union Formed

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — A new Western European trade-union organization big enough to take on the multinational companies was born here Thursday, claiming to represent 29 million workers in 14 countries.

It was created by merging the European Confederation of Free Trade Unions, which grouped workers in the former six-country Common Market with the EFTA Trades Union Congress, made up of labor organizations in the European Free Trade Association.

Its formation follows enlargement of the Common Market to include Britain, Ireland and Denmark.

VEHICLES LEFT MOST POLLUTION

OTTAWA (CP) — Vehicles were responsible for 57 per cent of total air pollution in Canada in 1970, giving off more than 17 million tons of polluting gases and particles, a study by Environment Canada shows.

Environment Minister Jack Davis released the study Thursday, noting that it is the first such nationwide inventory.

The study also revealed that one major industrial sector — primarily the copper and nickel industries — were responsible for about 14 per cent of all air pollution emissions. These two industrial sources accounted for about 4.5 million tons of pollutants.

The 31.2 million tons of emissions were broken down into the five pollutants: Carbon dioxide 55 per cent, sulphur dioxide 23 per cent, hydrocarbons 10 per cent, particulate matter seven per cent and nitrogen oxides four per cent.

Dollar Talks

Times News Services

The assault on the U.S. dollar brought the leadership of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany into consultation today as the West German central bank bought up $1.8 billion to fight traders betting on devaluation of the dollar or revaluation of the mark.

A government spokesman announced that Chancellor Willy Brandt was in direct contact with President Nixon, Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain and President Georges Pompidou of France, and the West German finance minister hurried to a meeting on the dollar crisis in Paris.

The spokesman said Brandt is "in permanent contact" with the three Western leaders as the crisis deepened.

Finance minister Helmut Schmidt flew to Paris for urgent talks with British and French finance ministers on the dollar crisis.

The Bank of Japan also stepped into the market and bought $240 million to preserve the official exchange rate.

Germany, which has purchased $6 billion in just over a week, and Japan, are buying dollars in order to keep the official exchange rate in tact. If they do not buy, their own currencies will rise in relative value, making their exports more expensive to buy and hurting their overseas markets.

"It appears everyone assumes something might happen over the weekend which would justify selling dollars on a large scale now," a market source in Brussels said.

"Another day like this and the government will have to close the exchange," one German financial expert said.

Pre-Dawn Swoop

BELFAST (UPI) — Police raided homes in East Belfast at dawn today, arresting several Protestants as terrorist suspects in the latest wave of sectarian killings involving Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Police refused to divulge any information about the roundup.

"A number of people are being questioned," a spokesman said.

Protestant sources said at least five and probably eight men were taken from their homes. Some sources put the number as high as 15.

After the crackdown in East Belfast, Protestant women immediately mounted a demonstration outside a jail — the wrong jail — against the arrest.

Several leading Protestants were reported to be among "a number of people" arrested.

Outside Belfast, police arrested four men — one of them wounded — as suspects in the death of a policeman, who was shot and killed from ambush Thursday as he investigated a traffic accident.

Grits, PCs Tangle On Fiscal Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals and Conservatives tangled in the Commons over federal financial policy Thursday while the provinces lined up waiting for delayed winter works money.

Roland Comtois, parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister John Turner, said continued debate was delaying already-late winter works payments to the provinces, who need them to relieve unemployment.

New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were waiting for $3 million each, Newfoundland for $2 million and Manitoba would show up this week for its share.

Meanwhile, the Senate gave third reading to a bill, passage of which released cheques to about 49,000 unemployment insurance claimants.

The bill removed the $800 million ceiling on the amount the government may advance the Unemployment Insurance Commission, which the government said ran out of money at midnight Wednesday after senators balked at quick passage of the bill, passed Tuesday by the Commons.

The cheques were mailed a day later than scheduled.

WON VICTORY

The Commons debate Thursday had its origins in a Conservative procedural victory Wednesday when they won the right to debate each item in a miscellaneous estimates committee report on $1.29 billion in extra funds sought by the government.

The government had hoped to have the report accepted quickly so it could introduce legislation to appropriate the $1.29 billion.

The first item the Conservatives focussed on was $350 million for a proposed three-year winter works program.

Erik Nielsen (PC-Yukon) led the attack with a motion to restrict the allocation to $75 million covering only 1972-73.

The government proposal is to spread the $350 million over three years—$75 million this winter, $170 million next winter and $105 million in 1973-74—but to get approval now for the whole amount.

The Conservatives prefer annual appropriations to maintain greater parliamentary control over expenditures.

The proposed program would operate year-round, providing grants to provinces for provincial and municipal projects.

Aboriginal Rights Defended

The B.C. government was urged Thursday to state its willingness to recognize the aboriginal title to the lands and resources of the province.

Robert Skelly (NDP-Alberta) said in the legislature it is of "primary importance" for the government to make such a public statement, and to inform Ottawa and the native peoples of B.C. that it is willing to work with them to ensure fair and adequate compensation for the loss of native title.

He said the former Social Credit government had attempted to ignore the problem and to sweep it under the carpet, but the problem is "still very much with us."

Skelly noted that in the long history of British expansion and colonization it was the policy of the imperial Crown to acknowledge aboriginal title and to extinguish it through treaty and compensation, the latter usually "grossly inadequate."

But in B.C. there are no treaties and no compensation, so the government should now play its part in meeting out long-overdue justice to the Indian people.

PM Invites House Vote On Question

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau invited opposition parties Thursday to define the aboriginal rights of Indians and Eskimos and bring the issue before Parliament for a vote.

"We are a minority government and we would be bound by that decision," the prime minister told reporters.

In the Commons, Trudeau announced a government study of the legal rights of Indians and promised a policy statement on them "in a couple of months."

Trudeau said he still considers aboriginal rights — a native claim to land by long occupation — "as a very vague concept."

But if the Conservatives, the New Democrats and Social Credit members of the Commons would define these rights and decide how many billions of dollars should be paid to non-treaty Indians and Eskimos, they could take it to Parliament for a final settlement.

REFUSED CALL COST RAILWAY THOUSANDS

ANDREWS, Ind. (UPI) — When the home office of the Norfolk and Western Railroad refused a collect call from town marshal Ed Bigelow he said "to hell with you."

Turning down the call may well have cost them a couple of hundred thousand dollars more than the telephone tab would have been.

Bigelow was trying to tell them there was a broken rail on their tracks in the downtown area of this small community. About 30 minutes later, 30 cars of a 75-car N and W freight derailed a short distance from where Bigelow said the rail was.

When he was rebuffed in efforts to tell railroad officials of the damaged track section "I just said 'to hell with you' and hung up," Bigelow said. "When they won't take advice, I just quit."

UIC Kidnapping Charges Laid

REGINA (CP) — A 21-year-old Regina man was charged with kidnapping today after a young gunman held a hostage for 2½ hours Thursday afternoon before surrendering to police.

Police said Philip Raymond Joseph Bourget entered no plea and was remanded in custody.

The gunman, claiming to have been wronged on several occasions by the Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC), forced a man visiting the UIC office to go with him by foot to a downtown rooming house where he lived.

Eyewitnesses watched helplessly as the hostage, his arms spread out, walked ahead of the intruder. The gunman grabbed the hostage's shirt with one hand and pointed the gun at him with the other hand.

At one point, the gunman turned and smiled at a passerby, who appeared to think it was all a joke.

Police kept their distance while the man marched 2½ blocks from the government office to his apartment. About 10 policemen armed with shotguns surrounded the house after the pair entered.

The hostage, 31-year-old Fergie Foster of nearby Lumsden, was released unharmed after his abductor was allowed to make several statements to the press.

In one statement, broadcast by CKCK Regina on relay from police, the man claimed he was turned down numerous times for unemployment insurance without justification. He said he had no quarrel with any individual.

Later, at the man's request, a reporter from The Leader-Post was allowed into the rooming house to talk with him. The reporter, Al Rosseker, said he talked with the gunman three times through a closed door.

Rosseker said the man thought he was entitled to $263 in unemployment benefits. After police slipped that amount in cash under the door, the gunman said he gave $100 to his hostage for troubling him.

After making his statements, the gunman walked out the front door of the building where he had commandeered the third floor. He surrendered without a struggle.

Columbia River Treaty Renegotiation Proposed

Premier Barrett has written a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau expressing his previously-announced desire to have the Columbia River Treaty renegotiated so that B.C. can receive greater benefits.

The letter stems from discussions the two leaders held in Ottawa last December.

"I expressed to you at that time my dissatisfaction with the present financial arrangements in that all payments to be received up to April 1, 1973, from the United States are substantially insufficient to complete the treaty storage projects," Barrett says in the letter.

He also says he is arranging to have B.C. Hydro study "certain aspects of the treaty projects which to date have not been the subject of negotiation and for which British Columbia could receive additional benefits."

The premier said he will be in touch with Trudeau again to pursue further discussion of the treaty through the federal-provincial agreement signed at the same time as the treaty in 1963.

The letter, dated Feb. 7, terms the discussions Trudeau and Barrett have had on the subject as "useful."

Time Bomb at Our Door

Forebodings over the potential dangers of a heavy coastal traffic in Alaskan oil have been augmented by yesterday's description in the Times of the large holdings of industrially zoned property by oil companies at Cherry Point, Washington.

The supposition is that if the United States Supreme Court rules that oil interests can go ahead with the Alaska pipeline, bringing Prudhoe Bay oil to Valdez, on Alaska's Pacific coast, then a vast trade in crude oil will result, with Cherry Point, about 10 miles south of the Canadian border, appearing as the prime location for refineries to handle the product. The tanker route from Valdez to Cherry Point would lie southward along the British Columbia coast and Vancouver Island's west coast, then through the Gulf Islands to the destination.

Two relatively small refineries already on the site are able to handle the cargo of one 120,000-ton tanker a week. But the capacity output of the Alaska pipeline would be 14 million barrels of crude oil a week—20 times the cargo tonnage mentioned. Super-tankers of 250,000 tons are being planned. Although current investigations of possible refinery sites range from the Canadian border to southern California, the possibility, even likelihood, of at least sizable development at Cherry Point is obvious.

Equally obvious is the hazard of mammoth oil spills that such a traffic would present. Wreckage of a super-tanker in fog or storms off the west coast, or in the added dangers of the narrow channels among the Gulf Islands, could result in a disaster of oil contamination that would affect the waters and shores of the whole area perhaps for generations. The costly effects of relatively small oil losses have provided adequate warning.

There will be, of course, efforts to apply the best in scientific navigation aids and safeguards. But no mariner would support an absolute guarantee of shipping safety in this part of the world. A mishap must be viewed as inevitable at some time. This whole area—both Canadian and American—would in effect be living under a time bomb as long as the vast oil traffic continued.

There is little thought that the great Alaska oil reserves will be left in the ground because of the dangers inherent in delivery. But it is obvious that extraordinary measures will have to be taken to ensure the highest degree of safety for the ships, as well as unprecedented steps to prepare to cope with the emergency that ultimately will arise. At this time we have nothing, either in organization or equipment, that could possibly meet such a situation. And finally, means for the recovery of costs of trying to control major spills, plus damage to wildlife and shores, will have to be clearly written into international law.

The Mackenzie Valley pipeline, proposed as an alternative to a coastwise shipping route for oil, is far from being a concrete plan, and even this project would entail environmental dangers still unassessed. Clearly we are faced with a problem of vast proportions which will need more than normal precautions. What is normal about the possibility of the destruction of hundreds of miles of coastline, fishing areas, and other natural resources?

Canada will be running the risks without participation in the profits. The federal government must take firmer steps to develop a program, lay down demands and requirements, and get a recognized policy established before events—meaning industrial expansion—take over.

A Provincial Accent for Fish

The plea of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union for re-establishment of a provincial department of fisheries makes sense, even though the very active federal minister, Mr. Jack Davis, represents the B.C. mainland constituency of Capilano. Mr. Davis has been highly attentive to the problems of Canada's West Coast fishermen, but prospective developments in the years ahead could require a much closer attention by the provincial government to policies of specific importance to British Columbia.

An active, well-informed provincial fisheries department was virtually phased out during the Social Credit regime. Its loss was particularly noticeable during those years when the variable fortunes of the Canadian cabinet placed fisheries under the direction of a minister from the Atlantic coast. Provincially, British Columbia lacked an authoritative voice to defend its interests in this important resource. Its case was scarcely heard, for instance, when conflict arose over the use of fish streams to transport logs, to the presumed detriment of spawning grounds.

In immediate prospect is a debate between Canadian and United States authorities on the respective nations' shares of salmon from the Fraser River. Mr. Davis has underscored the Canadian desire to forego former treaty payments by the United States which provided half the costs of Fraser River improvements for fisheries purposes and earned for the U.S. half the catch. He advocates this course because it is his belief—and that of Canadian fishermen—that three-quarters of the allowable annual haul should be taken by Canadians, with the American share dropping to one-quarter.

Whatever is done on the Fraser is obviously of primary concern to British Columbia. Since that river is the chief source of the lucrative sockeye run, the province could profit from a strong champion of its own to protect the fisheries interests.

Another development—seemingly almost fanciful at this time—should not be overlooked. This is the prospect of fish farming on a major scale to keep the salmon on their home range and immune from harvest by aliens. Science has proved the possibility of fish-farming. If feed and water conditions, qualitative and quantitative, become available on a feasible basis, then such farms would be a matter of primary provincial concern.

Now and in the future an adequately trained department with a voice that can be influential seems a natural requirement within provincial jurisdiction.

MAURICE WESTERN

Information Being Rationed?

OTTAWA—Now that the prime minister has ended the mystery, although not the controversy, about financing the Olympic Games, it would be helpful to have clear statements about some aspects of that other touchy subject, the James Bay Power project.

Some reticence is understandable, given the unhappy experience of an earlier federal government which came into conflict with W. A. C. Bennett over huge power projects in British Columbia. As it turned out, however, interests beyond the purely provincial were involved in Mr. Bennett's plans; a fact which became belatedly plain to Alberta citizens with the ruin of the Athabasca delta.

In the House of Commons on Monday, Alvin Hamilton touched on one rather cloudy matter when he asked Donald Macdonald to confirm a statement that Quebec does not intend to sell any power from the James Bay Project to the United States and has so informed the federal government.

Carefully Worded

The minister's reply was carefully worded. "Up to the present time," he said, "we have had no indication that any part of that power would be sold either to Ontario or outside the country. Our understanding is that the site will be developed for the purpose of the Quebec load itself."

It is possible that nothing else is involved. In response to a further question, Mr. Macdonald added: "Specifically, with regard to the James Bay project, my understanding is that it is for consumption in Quebec only that the project is being proceeded with."

But it may also be that James Bay power is intended to replace Quebec or Labrador power destined for export. As the question was not asked, we do not involved at James Bay, Parliament should have a clear understanding of the matter.

One reason for seeking further clarification is the fact that a good deal of Quebec comment has assumed a large outside interest, specifically a New York interest. In the future of this development, Mr. Bourassa has made statements of undoubted importance which appear to have exactly the same quali-cation as that prudently entered by Mr. Macdonald.

Thus in July of last year the Quebec premier announced sales of 800,000 kilowatts in summer months beginning June 1, 1971, to Consolidated Edison. During the first five years of the agreement Hydro Quebec is to receive $123 millions. The agreement provides for construction of a 765,000 volt power line between Quebec and the United States.

Mr. Bourassa was quoted as saying that the agreement does not "for the time being" involve energy from James Bay plants. It will come instead from existing sources, from the largely completed Manicougan-Outardes complex and from Churchill Falls.

After 1981, What?

The agreement, however, is for 20 years and nothing is said about deliveries after 1981. It is expected that, by that time, James Bay will be able to generate 10 million kilowatts. What happens then? Mr. Macdonald's assurance may be enough for the moment to provide, at least on this point, some justification for the government's kid-glove approach to an obviously sensitive matter. Does it mean, however, that some future government will find itself reduced more or less to political helplessness by the maturing of a situation for which it was not responsible?

It seems important that Parliament should understand the implications of present policies before and not after the works are built. There is no reason to doubt the accuracy of the information disclosed by Mr. Macdonald but there is room for suspicion that information is being rationed in one capital or the other. For the guidance of Parliament there should be a much more comprehensive statement on the whole James Bay situation.

"... g'night ferry ... !"

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Crude Oil

On January 31, at the Victoria Chamber of Commerce luncheon, the guest speaker was Mr. W. J. Racine, who represents Atlantic Richfield's Cherry Point Refinery in Washington state.

I was prepared to hear the pros and cons of a very important subject to B.C. residents: the shipping of crude Alaska oil down the west coast.

But the speaker instead showed slides of the refinery itself, explaining some of the refining processes, and pointing out the company's own safeguards against offending the local environment, yet no mention was made of any concern regarding the B.C. coast. Apparently, Atlantic Richfield couldn't care less about our coast.

One question to the speaker from the floor, which I believe deserves mention was, "How do you reconcile energy needs and company profits, with pollution of the West Coast from oil spills?"

Mr. Racine admitted that there was no reconciliation, and to further questions regarding safety measures for the tankers themselves, admitted also that he was not an expert on that subject.

Altogether, it was a good public relations job, explaining the virtues of Atlantic Richfield's concern for Washington State's environment, with honorable mention of an entity known as the Washington Oil Spill Co-operative.

I wonder if that organization will provide B.C. with the funds and equipment needed when oil spills occur on our coast. Of course, that would be asking too much, because we all know who is going to pay, don't we? Sure! We will!—Austin Peckham, No. 3-314 Cook St.

(Editor's note: Premier Barrett and Governor Evans of Washington State have established a working agreement for the loan of anti-spill equipment in emergencies. Equipment was offered to B.C. in the recent Irish Stardust accident, but not required.)

Playboy Protest

As one whose work requires considerable air travel annually from coast to coast, I am writing to protest the sexual fascists who are responsible for foisting the degrading perversions of Hugh Hefner's "rabbit hutch" on Air Canada passengers. I refer to the numerous Playboy magazines throughout the cabin and on the magazine rack of a recent Toronto to Vancouver Air Canada flight specifically, and generally to the increasing imposition of this girly garbage on Air Canada passengers. Whether they are ordered or merely allowed as Air Canada policy is unknown. But that they are increasingly obnoxiously obvious on Air Canada flights is a repelling reality.

For those of us who have chosen to resist the continuous assault upon our sensibilities by the pedlars of our number one drug, alcohol, it is offensive enough that our ticket on Air Canada is the admission price to a bar. Aware of the escapist fears of fellow travellers who do not know the security of God's salvation, we sympathetically accept their need for the bottle.

It is offensive enough that we who have chosen long life by rejecting the propositioning of those "merchants of death," the tobacco companies, should be forced to breathe the secondhand foul fumes of those whose tobacco addiction inevitably pollutes the atmosphere on commercial flights. We do realize the artificial crutches needed by passengers whose nervous systems know nothing of the peace God gives to those whose trust is in Him. We pity them and thank God and Air Canada for the smokers' section which localizes the heaviest concentration of their air pollution.

But as a male, liberated by the grace of God from a drooling slavery to sex, knowing the satisfying fulfillment of a beautiful Christ-centred married love with a wonderful Christian woman, I resent the degrading display of Hefner's hangups and adolescent fantasies which have recently corrupted Air Canada cabins to a brothel status.

The bar can be endured. The smoke can be tolerated. But to be surrounded by the carousings of the depersonalized rabbits in "Hefner's hutch" is a bit much!

May I suggest that at least Air Canada might designate an area back of the smokers' section for the Playboy peep show.

Perhaps on their stretch versions, Air Canada might even install in a rear cabin the convenience of the live brothel as a service to those whose god is their glands!

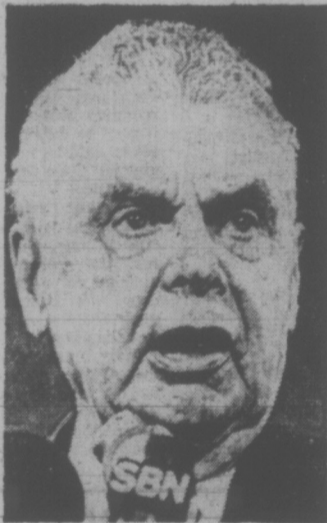

At least the rabbits could hop about the country as a class, perhaps at rates which might subsidize the travel costs of those humans who aspire to the sky and not to the sty.—Ken Campbell, President, The Campbell-Reese Evangelistic Assn., Inc., Milton, Ont.

Powers

A recent radio report quoted Mr. Diefenbaker as saying that the Supreme Court should rule on whether the death penalty is constitutional or not.

This, in my opinion, shows a continuing inability to understand the function of the Supreme Court in Canada in its relation to Parliament.

In the U.S., law-making powers are divided between the President, Congress and the Supreme Court. This results also in dividing responsibility, hence the notorious buck-passing.

In Canada, Parliament and the Legislatures, in their respective spheres, have the sole law-making power and hence sole responsibility with no buck-passing.

The Supreme Court, besides handing down judgements, can be asked to explain the meaning of a law but has no power to alter or veto a law enacted by Parliament.

Interestingly, the Philippine Government is reported to be discarding the discredited Congressional system and adopting the Parliamentary system.—H. S. Thullier, 2424 Beach Drive.

Merchant Marine

There has recently been a considerable outcry for the establishment of a Canadian merchant marine—mainly by politicians in Ottawa, members of labor unions and, last but not least, by our Mr. Barrett—for the transporting of our Canadian (not unlimited) natural resources to foreign countries, e.g. coal, lumber and wood products, potash, etc.

I marvel at the apparent ignorance of these people! Most of them can use the excuse of youth, but surely even such young people can read what happened in the past?

May I point out that Canada did have a merchant marine shortly after the First World War—the "Canadian Government Merchant Marine." This was built mainly in Eastern Canada shipyards (Levis, Montreal, Trois Rivières) and I witnessed the launching of one vessel ("Canadian Forrester") in Trois Rivières in 1920.

The CGMM consisted of a number of freighters intended to carry bananas and such-like from the West Indies to Montreal. I can remember the "Canadian Challenger," "Can. Conqueror," "Can. Fisher" and "Can. Forrester," but there were others as well. Then for passenger traffic we had the "Lady" boats, e.g. "Lady Rodney" and three others; two of these travelled from Canadian East Coast ports to the "outer" islands i.e. as far as Trinidad, the other two to the "inner" islands, i.e. Jamaica.

All ships, whether passenger or cargo, had Canadian officers and Canadian crews, mostly belonging to the SIU or its equivalent.

After only a few years of operation it was found that these ships were non-competitive with foreign vessels, due in great part to the much higher wages demanded by and paid to Canadian seamen. The foreign vessels employed mainly crews from the West Indies or Lascars from Malaya who worked for minimal pay. Finally, in order to stop the drain on the taxpayer's purse, the CGMM ceased operation and the ships were sold for a fraction of their original cost to foreign companies. The CGMM ceased to exist.

Do we want to repeat this costly experiment? Have we not learned something from that experience or have we conveniently forgotten all about it? Would today's seamen work for wages as paid by foreign owners to the crews of their ships? Do we add more and more to our deficit operations which would only boost prices still higher? Let us pause to think a while and read up on our previous experience.—An Octogenarian who remembers.

Confused

It is indeed the sign of a confused society when tens and often hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent confining and attempting to rehabilitate a convicted thief and murderer, while at the same time hundreds of innocent babies are aborted each week in our nation's hospitals.

If the government and the law can give a mother the legal right to abort her child in order to protect herself from some anguish, what of the common citizen who is afraid to walk the streets at night and must live in a nation in which per-capita murder, rape, theft and crime of all types is increasing at an alarming rate?—Jim Parker, 1605 Sonria Place.

Eternal Question

In your editorial of January 31st, it seems to me you miss the point with, I quote: "What is wanted, in reality? Preeminently, the removal of the wrongdoer from society..." Surely, what is wanted pre-eminently is prevention of the wrong in the first place—in this case preventing the sacrifice of one more victim to murder!—G. Gardner, 7090 Brentwood Dr.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of Feb. 9, 1913:

Saanich council received a petition to lower the level of Swan Lake by four feet but decided that it did not have the power to undertake such work since action must be the responsibility of holders of adjacent land. Herbert Cuthbert and Co. are prime supporters of the move. Councillor Dunn pointed out that previous action to lower the lake by 18 inches some years ago filled the ditches. They could not carry the overflow of a four-foot reduction.

Brazil Latin 'Overlord' With Blessing of U.S.

By AGOSTINO BONO
Commonweal

(Bono is an editor for Latin American Press in Lima, Peru.)

All of South America may soon be dancing to a samba beat now that Brazil is awake and stretching. The continent's largest, most populous and most highly industrialized country is developing its own manifest destiny as regional leader. This is supported by the United States which has anointed Brazil as its anti-Communist watchdog and capitalist showcase for South America.

The military dictatorship is fitting the role well with economic and diplomatic forays in search of markets and political satellites.

"Brazil is looking at us with an open mouth," said a neighboring government official about the growing concern of living in the Brazilian shadow. Looking at a map helps explain the uneasiness. Brazil, slightly larger than the continental U.S., fills about 47 per cent of South America. It borders every country except Ecuador and Chile, and has one of the greatest hydroelectric potentials in the world.

Population statistics are equally overpowering. Brazil reached the 100 million mark in 1972. Its population is four times that of its nearest rival, Argentina, and almost equals that of the rest of South America.

Added to size and numbers is the growing industrial potential fostered by the heavy influx of foreign business attracted by low wages, tax incentives, good profits and a government not threatening nationalizations. Foreign investment is estimated at over $5 billion, with at least 40 per cent of this coming from the U.S.

The result has been the development of heavy industry and technically complex consumer items such as automobiles and color television sets. Many of these products are for export. This gives Brazil an advantage over its neighbors, basically producers and exporters of agricultural products and raw materials instead of finished products.

Although the boom has not benefitted the majority with the working class actually losing ground, it has produced gigantic growth rates with the gross national product reaching 11.3 per cent in 1971. Most of the wealth is in the hands of the few with 5 per cent of the population receiving 38 per cent of the income while 40 per cent receive only 8 per cent of the wealth. This means that while the masses are poor, the nation's economy is strong.

A hard policy of domestic repression has politicized national life, making it practically impossible for the lower classes to become socially conscious of their plight or to organize for change.

With tranquility at home, Brazil has been able to devote greater attention to spreading its influence. Uruguay, traditionally under Argentine influence, is now jokingly referred to as the next Brazilian state. Brazilians have been buying up Uruguayan cattle ranches and residential properties in the capital of Montevideo. Cattle are a main Uruguayan source of income. Montevideo is filled with Brazilians popping in for long weekends of shopping and recreation. Argentina, burdened with heavy economic and political problems, has been unable to match the offensive. This plus the chaos in Uruguay caused by the Tupamaros, urban guerrillas, has caused Argentina to abandon the field.

Brazilian investors are not worried about the guerrillas because they know their government will protect their investments. Brazil often masses troops along the border with Uruguay as a warning to over-anxious guerrillas. It also massed troops during the 1972 presidential election as a hint of invasion in case the socialist-minded candidate won. He lost.

The military governments of Bolivia and Paraguay are comfortably under Brazil's wing with both undertaking massive domestic repression. Brazil is making economic overtures to its Amazon neighbors of Peru and Colombia to ship their products, especially oil, via Brazil rather than construct arduous and costly transportation systems over the Andes Mountains to the Pacific coast.

Another Brazilian expansionist tactic is to send colonists into areas involved in border disputes. Brazil has disputes with many of its neighbors, but none of them has colonized the area in question. This gives Brazil de facto possession and the upper hand with rival claimants.

The military, in control since 1964, are fully aware of Brazil's power and potency and are promoting a sense of national superiority at home. The 1972 statistical synopsis issued by the ministry of planning and general coordination is explicit in extolling the virtues of the Brazilian people over its Latin neighbors. There is a traditional rivalry between Brazil, colonized by the Portuguese, and the Spanish-speaking countries forming most of the remainder of the continent. Brazil affirms that it has the most representative of the Latin-American populations.

The Brazilian population is the result of Portuguese miscegenation with Africans brought over as slaves and native Indians, plus migration waves from Europe and Asia, says the synopsis, in contrast to the static, separate Indian and European populations of the Spanish-speaking countries. This highly arguable analysis concludes: "And in the characteristics of the Brazilian population is found the most striking individuality in such a way as to affirm its qualifications as the Latin representative of the continental countries."

In another equally dubious passage, Brazil likens itself to the U.S. melting pot myth: "The Brazilian population, as that of the U.S., owes its formation to diverse ethnic groups through a process of integration which does not permit the predominance of one or another of these groups in certain areas to establish national or political differences."

The message is clear: "If the U.S. could forge an empire with a mixed population, so can we."

Although the other South American nations are concerned, this has yet to be channelled into a counterbalancing alliance and probably will not in the foreseeable future. The Spanish-speaking countries are torn by political disunity and most face serious domestic economic problems which prevent any one from emerging as a leader.

In terms of international power politics, the U.S. has made the logical choice in tapping Brazil as the overlord — at least for the time being. However, the U.S. may have a tiger by the tail in the future.

Currently Brazil is happy with its foreign investors and sub-imperial directorship. But Brazil has the makings (size, population, natural resources, technical know-how) of a world power.

To achieve this it will eventually have to throw off the foreign yoke. A growing nationalism exists in military and governing circles opposed to Brazil's wealth-serving foreign profiteers.

If this feeling grows, the colossus of the north may some day find itself toe-to-toe with the colossus of the south.

MOVEMENT GAINS STRENGTH

Independence for Taiwan?

By DONALD H. SHAPIRO
New York Times

TAIPEI — The "Taiwan independence movement" among native Taiwanese dissidents abroad, badly splintered as a result of President Nixon's initiatives toward Communist China, now finds itself being courted by both Taipei and Peking instead of being assailed as traitorous.

During the last year, dozens of members of "independence" groups, as well as sympathizers among Taiwanese scholars not overtly associated with the organization, have paid visits to Taiwan or the Chinese mainland — and in a few cases both.

The dramatic change in China policy by Nixon Administration has been primarily responsible for the shifts in attitude. The hopes of many Taiwanese activists to attract international support, especially from the United States, were crushed by the Shanghai communique issued by Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai during the President's visit to China last year.

The document seemingly backed away from the long-held American stand that the legal status of Taiwan was never settled after Japan renounced title to the island at the end of World War II. It stated that since "all Chinese on either side of the Taiwan Strait maintain there is but one China and that Taiwan is a part of China," the U.S. will not "challenge that position."

'Act of Betrayal'

Taiwanese groups in the U.S. immediately termed the communique an "act of betrayal" that ignored the preferences and "right to self-determination."

The goal of the independence movement has been to establish a "Republic of Taiwan" with no connection with China, governed by the island's majority of native Taiwanese instead of Nationalists or Communists.

Since the Nixon trip, according to Taiwanese and American intellectuals and officials of the Kuomintang, or Nationalist party, who monitor the organization abroad, a small minority of the activists have decided to work toward an accord with Peking in hopes of receiving a degree of political autonomy for Taiwan under the Communists' aegis. The rest are reportedly rather evenly divided between advocates of cooperation with the Kuomintang, if the party led by President Chiang Kai-shek is willing to institute significant political reforms, and those who believe more can be gained by adhering to unlimited "independence" principles.

Tone Softened

At the same time both Taipei and Peking, regarding the independence movement as weakened and no longer so great a threat, have soon an opportunity to win over some of its adherents. Peking no doubt views the effort as part of its campaign to isolate the Nationalist Government, which in turn has become more anxious to achieve domestic solidarity as a result of Communist China's diplomatic gains at its expense.

Each side has softened the tone of official references to the independence groups. Taipei has dropped accusations that the movement is fostered and financed by the Communists. Peking, particularly since its rapprochement with Japan, no longer charges the movement with being a tool of "Japanese imperialism."

Chou has reportedly tried to gain the goodwill of Taiwanese visitors in Peking by pledging that the Communists will not attempt to take over the island by force, while the Nationalists have hoped to improve Taiwanese activists overseas are now invited to "come home" for visits — if they prefer, without publicity.

In years past, avowed members of such organizations who returned with the permission of the government were required to recant publicly and declare allegiance to Chiang. Those who tried to visit secretly faced terms in prison or "political re-education" centres if they were found out.

More Welfare For the Rich?

THE TORONTO STAR
An Editorial

Should Canada's old age pension be improved on the basis of need or on the basis of universal "right," as the New Democratic Party advocates?

At present, the system provides a guaranteed minimum income of $150 a month to a single pensioner — a minimum that will rise in April to reflect increased living costs.

A pensioner with no outside income receives the basic pension of $82.88 and a supplement of $67.12 to bring him or her up to $150.

A pensioner with, say, $20 a month of outside income gets the basic pension of $82.88 and a supplement of $57.12 to bring his total income to $160.

A pensioner with outside income of $136 or more gets only the basic pension of $82.88.

The NDP proposes to pay $150 a month to all old age pensioners, regardless of their outside income, and to lower the pensionable age in five annual steps from 65 to 60 for those not receiving income from employment.

Lowering the pension age probably makes sense in this era of earlier retirement. But we fail to see any merit in paying the same amount of money to all pensioners regardless of need, at great cost to the public treasury. Why should people retired on comfortable incomes receive $150 a month from the government?

Canada's poorest pensioners, the 485,000 who have no outside income, would gain nothing from the NDP plan. They are already guaranteed $1,800 a year from the state.

The 560,000 pensioners who now have a nice outside income, but so little that they still qualify for a partial supplement under the guaranteed income plan for old folks, would gain a little — in direct proportion to what outside income they have already. A single pensioner with meagre bond interest of $24 a year, for instance, would receive an extra 23 cents a week; if his outside income were $1,631 a year, he'd get an extra $804.

Canada's pensioners who are now best off — those whose total incomes are already too high for them to receive more than the basic pension — would gain most — another $805.44 a year each.

In addition, many thousands of Canadians 60 to 64 would each pocket an extra $1,800 a year whether they needed it or not. They could be retired executives or housewives in working households and get the extra money as pure windfall. But if they were working, even for low wages, they'd be ineligible. And the poorest of Canadians in this age group — those now dependent on welfare — would get the least net increase, for they'd probably lose the welfare benefits they're now receiving.

The NDP pension plan is thus designed to give the most to those who need it least, and the least — or nothing at all — to those who need it most.

Is such a $2 billion addition to the pension bill really necessary? Full pensions under the Canada Pension Plan will start in 1976, easing the plight of the future aged. We believe that only the guaranteed income supplement should be raised; this would give more help to more people for less money.

The NDP has not announced any specific plan to tax back higher universal pensions from those who don't need them. In the absence of this, the scheme is indefensible.

Another $2 billion or so yearly could move this country closer to a guaranteed income, with proper work incentives, for all Canadians; it shouldn't be largely wasted on a universal hand-out.

Letter From Lilac

The Globe and Mail

LILAC, Sask.
Are you exposed at all to the Wall Street Journal down there in the nation's capital?

Old Bill Williams, the kindly editor of the Lilac Advance, takes it because he likes to clip items from it about rates on U.S. Treasury short term bills and things like that for fillers at the bottoms of columns.

As you'd probably imagine, there's no really insatiable appetite out home here for stories about U.S. Treasury short-term bills and, of course, Mr. Williams knows that as well as anybody else.

But what he says is that they give a paper a certain ring of authority. You get a good, solid-looking piece in now and again about the return to investors on 13-week issues having risen to 5.689 per cent and people know they've got a paper that's to be taken seriously.

Anyway, that's just by way of introducing what I was starting out to write to you about, namely an ad which Mr. Williams came across in the January 30 issue of the Wall Street Journal. It was a half-page-and-a-bit ad for the Royal Bank and the top line of print on it, under a picture of a guy in a Hudson's Bay blanket coat on the back of a dog-sled loaded with bundles, said: "We deliver Canada."

"God," said Mr. Williams when he read it, "it's not even cash-and-carry any more; now they're offering home-delivery."

"In the 104 winters that we've been around in Canada," the ad said, "Royal Bankers have moved from the 6 dog-power sled to the 172,000 lbs. thrust of a 747. And that's the kind of Canada we can deliver — urban, industrial and growing."

"It's a sort of institutional pimping," Mr. Williams said. "I sure hate to think of a nice girl like that Mary working for an outfit like that."

The ad, he said, went on: "If your company would like to grow in this kind of environment, we have over 1,200 branches from coast-to-coast."

"I wonder," said Mr. Williams, "whether Your Friends at the Royal would be keen on helping U.S. banks grow in this kind of environment if the Bank Act didn't protect the chartered banks from foreign competition?"

Anyway, Mr. Williams said, the whole thing certainly was going to add a certain piquancy to his reading the next time he read that some president of a chartered bank, blue in the face with recititude, was denouncing as rubbish the assertion that is sometimes made that "what goes by the name of foreign investment very often is a hell of a lot more foreign than it is investment."

For instance, he said, he figured it would be fun to drop around at the beginning of the week and ask Mary to tell him again what was wrong with the figures in Prof. Kari Levitt's book, Silent Surrender, where it showed that in the period 1957-1968, "eighty-five per cent of the funds used to expand U.S.-controlled industry in Canada was provided from Canadian domestic savings."

Mr. Williams also went into the files you know the Lilac Advance, three shoe-boxes stuffed with dog-eared yellow clippings — and dug out a couple of quotations from Earle McLaughlin, the head of Your Friends at We-Deliver-Canada.

There was one quote he found which said: "The plain fact is that Canada needs foreign investment if she is to be a prosperous, progressive growing country. And if Canada is not a prosperous, progressive and growing country, she will not for long remain an independent one."

He also found one about a panel of Canadian bankers that appeared before an audience in New York a couple of years ago. The clipping said that the audience reserved its really enthusiastic applause for Mr. McLaughlin, "who generally derided the development of economic nationalist sentiment in Canada."

"No wonder," said Mr. Williams. "If you were in the business of delivering Canada, who wouldn't?"

Yours entrepreneurially,
C. Watkins, Jr.

Legislature Radio Step Closer

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The B.C. legislature moved a step closer Thursday to establishment of a daily question period and radio and television coverage of debates with the tabling of a committee report on legislative practices by Speaker Gordon Dowding.

The report recommends that the legislature's committee on standing orders study the following proposals:

— That a daily question period of 25 minutes' duration be instituted, with the option of providing notice for questions to be asked or not.

— That radio stations be allowed to connect to the legislature's sound system.

— That television cameras be permitted to record proceedings, after study by a special committee.

— That the hours of sitting on Fridays be changed so that the house sits from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. instead of the present 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Dowding's report took into account the reports of two sub-committees he appointed to look into different aspects of legislative practices. One sub-committee dealt with radio, television and Hansard coverage of debates and the other dealt with a question period and procedures in the house.

BACK TO HOUSE

The legislature's committee on standing orders is expected to meet for the first time next week. Recommendations from that committee will be considered by the whole house before being put into action.

In addition to the proposal for allowing television cameras to film proceedings — subject to the findings of the special committee named to study that area — Dowding's report proposes placement of small closed-circuit television cameras in the house so that debates can be telecast to the lower lobby of the Legislative Buildings, to be viewed by groups of schoolchildren and visitors.

Sound monitoring devices are proposed for installation in each party's caucus room, the press gallery, and the offices of the speaker, clerk and party leaders so that debates can be followed.

It is recommended that the laborious procedure of the house going into committee before the government introduces its bills be done away with. The report says such a procedure is regarded as "mumbo-jumbo" by people in the public galleries and is unnecessary.

Dowding also recommends that something be done about the prayers which precede each afternoon sitting of the house. And non-contentious legislation, he proposes, could go to a special legislation committee for smooth passage through the house instead of the time-consuming existing process of reading each bill through first, second and third readings, including consideration by a committee of the whole house and its report.

The special committee named to study television coverage procedures is to consist of Hugh Curtis (PC-Saanich and the Islands), Phyllis Young (NDP-Prince Rupert), Public Works Minister Bill Hartley and Education Minister Eileen Dailly. The first four members worked on the sub-committee studying television coverage.

Dowding told reporters later that while radio broadcasts of house debates pose no real problem, television coverage of live proceedings would be "much more difficult."

The committee would have to advise the house on ways of permitting television broadcasts which would be "suitable and dignified" and not disturb the daily proceedings of the legislature.

CLUTTER FEARED

For example, he said, it would not be desirable to have cameras, boom lights and other equipment cluttering the floor of the chamber.

"We want to preserve the dignity and importance of the proceedings," Dowding said.

Asked if the proposed streamlining of house procedures could result in the elimination of the two-week throne speech debate, he said there had been insufficient time to consider that question properly.

He noted the throne speech debate is a parliamentary tradition that goes back 800 years, adding: "Who is going to decide in two weeks whether they should recommend the end of all that?"

The Speaker said the proposed early sitting of the house on Friday — already in effect in the legislatures of Ontario, Quebec and Prince Edward Island — was mainly designed to allow MLAs to visit their respective constituencies at weekends.

"I think it's an excellent proposal worth trying in this house," he said.

No Propaganda Suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — No charges will be filed against returning war prisoners for making propaganda statements over North Vietnamese radio, the U.S. defence department said Thursday.

But Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedman did not rule out disciplinary action against PoWs for "ratting on comrades" or stealing food from fellow prisoners.

Melvin Laird, former U.S. secretary of defence, had taken a similar stand about six months ago, and Friedman said the policy remains in effect under Elliot Richardson, Laird's successor.

"We do not intend to bring charges" against PoWs for making statements over Hanoi radio, Friedman said. "We know why some of their statements are made." He did not elaborate.

TAX TIPS

This information is supplied by the federal department of national revenue. If further details are required, contact the Victoria District Taxation Office between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at 383-3551. For those living outside the Victoria exchange area, ask the long-distance operator for Zenith 0-4000 and the call will be placed without charge.

Q. We had our first child last week. How do I go about having my tax deductions changed, or do I need to do anything?

A. A child will affect your exemption status. You should notify your personnel office and they will have you fill out a new TDI form. You should do this as soon as possible.

Q. My wife died a year ago and I have had to retain a housekeeper to care for my two children, ages 10 and 12. Can I claim an income tax deduction or exemption for her?

A. You may claim child care expenses. You cannot claim any deduction or exemption for your housekeeper. The child care deduction is limited to the least of $500 per child — $2,000 per family or two-thirds of your earned income for the year. In addition, your deduction from income may not exceed $15 for each child for each week during which you are eligible to claim.

Q. The T4 slip I received from my employer shows $4,000 earnings for the year without any Canada pension plan deductions. As an employee, what can I do to protect myself from an employer who has not made pension contributions on my behalf?

A. As soon as you become aware that deductions are not being made on your behalf you should file a formal complaint in writing with the nearest district taxation office. This complaint must be filed by April 30 of the year following the year in question. The district office will find out why your employer has not deducted and remit contributions on your behalf.

Q. My house is in my wife's name. Recently we moved into an apartment and rented the house. Is the rent considered to be her income for income tax purposes?

A. If you provided the funds to buy the house, the rent from the house is your income and should be reported by you. If, however, the house was purchased with funds provided by your wife, the rent would be your wife's income and should be reported on her income tax return. If both of you provided the funds, the income should be split between you for tax purposes in the same proportion as the funds contributed.

Teck Files Notice of Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Teck Corp. Ltd. has filed notice of its appeal against the judgment of British Columbia Supreme Court Justice Thomas Berger in its action of last year to upset a contract made between Afton Mines Ltd. and Canadian Exploration Ltd.

Respondents are three original directors of Afton, Chester F. Miller, Douglas L. Price and John Harnbourne; Canex and Afton.

Mr. Justice Berger ruled that the three directors acted within their powers and in good faith in entering a contract with Canex even though they had been notified by Teck that it had acquired a majority of the Afton shares.

Since the Afton-Canex agreement was signed, Teck has elected a majority of directors on the Afton board and, since the judgment, has deposited Chester Miller as president.

The notice of appeal holds that Mr. Justice Berger erred in holding that the validity of the directors' use of the power of the company was tested by the propriety of their "primary purpose" alone, or what was "uppermost in their minds" whereas the test required reference to each and every motivating element.

Teck contends the making of the contract was an invalid use of powers and that the primary purpose of the directors was to make an irrevocable contract with Canex in order to remove any future influence of the majority shareholder over Afton's principal asset, a copper property near Kamloops.

B.C. Tel Revenues Up 13.9%

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Telephone Co. has reported net earnings of $5,245,000, or $1.49 a share, for the three months ending Dec. 31, compared with $6,924,000, or $1.80 a share, for the same period the year before.

In its unaudited interim report, B.C. Tel reported gross revenues for 1972 of nearly $228 million, a 13.9 per cent increase over the 1971 figure.

The statement notes that while gross revenues increased, this was a lower rate of increase than the 14.3 per cent recorded in 1971. A lower rate of growth in long distance revenue was cited as a factor.

The statement said introduction of a new long distance rate structure in November had a marked effect on toll service revenues in the fourth quarter.

Operating expenses, excluding income taxes, increased 12.8 per cent in 1972, compared with 15.5 per cent the previous year. Income taxes increased to $20.1 million, compared with $18.8 million in 1971.

Telephones in service showed a substantial growth of 80,547 units, the largest gain in a single year ever recorded by the company.

The annual meeting has been scheduled for March 8, at which an audited annual report will be presented.

business

Inco

International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. reports preliminary, unaudited net earnings for 1972 are estimated at $109.9 million or $1.47 a share compared with $94.2 million or $1.26 a share in 1971.

Estimated net sales in 1972 were $900.3 million compared with $799.2 million in 1971.

The company said the increase in the "Physical volume" of sales was a major factor in the improvement in earnings. Increased sales were attributed primarily to an increase of 28 per cent in sales of primary nickel products and to an increase of 10 per cent in sales of rolling mills products.

There was, however, a decrease of 11 per cent in copper sales, the company reported.

The company's board of directors declared a quarterly dividend Monday of 25 cents a share payable March 20 to shareholders of record Feb. 20.

Sears

Sears, Roebuck and Co. said its gross sales for fiscal year ended Jan. 31 established a record $12 billion. Sears' net sales and income for the fiscal year is not yet available.

Pine Point

Pine Point mines Ltd. reports unaudited earnings for 1972 of $7,302,000 or $1.62 a share, compared with earnings of $11,958,000 or $2.65 a share in 1971.

J. H. Salsger, president, said

a strike last summer at the plant of a major customer of the mine and higher taxes accounted for much of the loss in earnings. The company paid $2.2 million in income taxes and royalties to the Northwest Territories in 1971, compared with $5.1 million in 1972.

Maple Leaf Gardens

Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd. reports net profit in the fiscal year ended Aug. 31 of $2.4 million or $3.23 a share, including a gain of $793,143 from National Hockey League expansion in 1972.

This compares with a net profit of $934,272 or $1.27 a share in the previous year when there was no special item.

Operating profit for the year to last Aug. 31 was $1.6 million or $2.15 a share. Revenue increased to $8.6 million from $7.4 million.

CITY TRUST You Can Trade Your Present Home

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — "He is obviously still a crybaby," Iowa's attorney general told a mother Thursday about her full-grown son. "You ought to try clobbering him once in while."

Turner offered his opinion in a letter to an unidentified Council Bluffs mother whose son, a truck driver, complained to her about having been mistreated by officials at a truck weighing station.

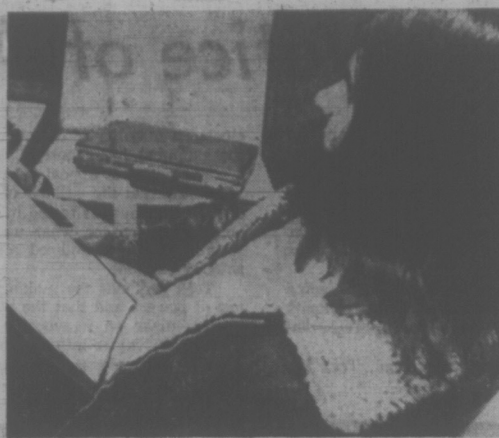

The son recently was stopped at Pottawattamie County weigh station for transporting an overloaded shipment of paint. His mother, on hearing her son's description of his period of detention, promptly dispatched a letter to no less authority than the president, claiming "police brutality."

The president referred the matter to the interstate commerce commission, which, in turn, sent it back to Turner and Pottawattamie County officials.

An investigation followed which Turner said determined the trucker had not been mistreated. "Your son received better treatment than he deserved," Turner told the woman.

"They never put him in a cell; they let him make all the phone calls he wanted, treated him to a steak dinner and kept checking his food for paint to make sure it was all right," the attorney general wrote.

"I suppose your son is now too big for you to turn over your knee and spank," Turner concluded. "But he is obviously still a crybaby and maybe you ought to try clobbering him once in a while instead of fighting all his battles for him."

UNORTHODOX APPEARANCE of RCMP Constable Jean Martin, 23, helped him crack narcotics network in Montreal. The Mountie, sporting a full beard and shoulder-length hair, spent nine months doing undercover work which led to the arrest of 31 people on various drug charges this week.

Marriage Next

MONTREAL (CP) — After a harrowing nine months in which he was continually faced with the threat of discovery, an RCMP undercover agent can finally make definite plans to get married.

Constable Jean Martin, 23, a burly six-footer, described to reporters Wednesday his experiences as he and another officer worked to break a local heroin trafficking ring.

The investigation resulted in the arrest of 31 people. Still sporting shoulder-length hair and a full beard, Constable Martin said the first months of the investigation were the most dangerous.

"I wasn't quite sure of myself. I didn't know whether I could really fool these people into thinking I was a serious buyer. I was always worried they would find me out."

"Because I've seen the harm heroin can do to people, I really feel I've done a good job."

He now feels he can pursue a relatively normal life.

"Now that judicial proceedings have been initiated against the people involved, it will be nice to be able to appear in public with my fiancée."

Hoffa Comeback Planned?

people

WASHINGTON — James R. Hoffa, former Teamsters union president, celebrates his 60th birthday a little early tonight at a big New Jersey dinner party in his honor. It is reported that it may be his first move toward regaining control of the giant labor organization.

Hoffa, who turns 60 Feb. 14, faces a tough fight in any bid to oust Frank E. Fitzsimmons as head of the two-million-member union.

Although Hoffa's parole from federal prison officially expires March 10, President Nixon's commutation of his 13-year sentence for jury tampering and mail fraud bars him from holding union office until 1980.

Maple Leaf Gardens, for parole under special circumstances.

Andre Therrien, vice-chairman of the board, said Wednesday that Ballard, jailed in October on theft and fraud charges, had applied for day parole as well. The applications were turned down Jan. 29.

Under normal circumstances, Ballard would not be eligible for parole until October, 1973, when one-third of his three-year term in Kingston penitentiary has expired.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A young woman's "shot at independence" that left almost $850 in unpaid hotel bills ended in Victoria provincial court Thursday when she was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation by Judge William Ostler.

Carolann Marie Bolen, also known as Cathy Baker, 21, of 108-477 Superior, pleaded guilty Jan. 25 to three counts of obtaining food and lodgings by fraud from three Victoria hotels, between Dec. 10 and Jan. 22.

Bills at The Empress ran to $630, at the Embassy Court Motel to $27, and $186 at the Executive House.

When questioned by detectives Jan. 22, Miss Bolen said she had booked into the hotels because she had "no dishes and no television."

In court Thursday, Ostler said such cases were not unfamiliar to him. He called the woman's actions "a shot at independence" from parental influence.

"She has purged herself," said the judge, after hearing that the accused had repaid the hotels concerned, and made peace with her parents. Miss Bolen was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation.

Richard Charles Gibson, 20, of 2-Greenwood Motel, Old Island Highway, was fined $75 for possession of hashish when checked by police Wednesday on Langley Street.

Frederick Cornelius Langelier, 25, of 206 Menzies, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana when stopped by police in the early hours of Thursday. Langelier was fined $75.

George David Hunt, 41, of 2521 Blanshard was fined $350 for impaired driving by Ostler. Hunt was stopped in the Yates Street carpark after police noticed him driving erratically from the second to the third level.

Hunt was finally subdued, following a struggle with three policemen.

A man who admitted three previous impaired driving offences when arrested by police was sent to jail for three months by Judge Edmond St. Jorre in traffic court.

Joseph William Charles, 29, of 844 Carrie, pleaded guilty to a further impaired driving charge, after being stopped by police Wednesday morning.

Gordon F. N. Drier, 32, of 302-118 Croft was fined $350 and banned from driving, except to and from work and as a member of the armed forces, for a period of six months. Drier pleaded guilty to impaired driving, following a Jan. 4 offence.

Premier Barrett

Barrett's Job-Creation Plans Centre on Building Industry

Premier Barrett said today his government's campaign to increase employment in British Columbia would be centred mainly on the construction industry.

To create more jobs, he announced the highways department would get an additional $33,543,000 in the next fiscal year for a total spending of $212.8 million.

Public works spending would be increased $4,781,000 to $42.5 million.

To spur home construction, the provincial home-acquisition grant fund would be increased $50 million and $10 million would be set aside to purchase land for private homes.

It will be in the construction area, the trades area that employment will build up rapidly," he said.

Earlier, he had said he looked to increase lumber sales to increase employment in the provincial forestry industry and he repeated this assessment in his budget speech today but he put a new stress upon the importance of construction expansion for creating jobs quickly.

In addition, he has already announced his government will hire 1,000 more people for the civil service this year.

He explained that the $10 million for land would be to make serviced land available to people who want to build homes. The government purchase of land would keep prices in line.

The land might be purchased or leased by a person wishing to construct a house. Lots would be sewered and supplied with electricity and water.

He was asked if this meant that the government was going into the real estate business.

"No, it means we want to make land available for housing."

While housing and public works would be in the forefront of the provincial campaign, other previously announced programs would be carried through, he said.

"The economic policy of this government is to promote development which most benefits the people of the province. This entails the encouragement of a higher degree of processing of our natural resources in British Columbia," he said.

"Not only is improved management of our resources necessary, but also the government proposes using this sector to stimulate employment at this time."

For this purpose, total expenditure for highways and resource development combined would be $326.6 million in the next fiscal year, he said.

Management of forests would require $46,366,000 and $13,392,000 would be spent for conservation and recreation facilities. As well, $13,077,000 would be spent on water resources and pollution control programs.

There was no mention of negotiations for a copper smelter in British Columbia, although the premier said the government was negotiating with industry on an unspecified major project.

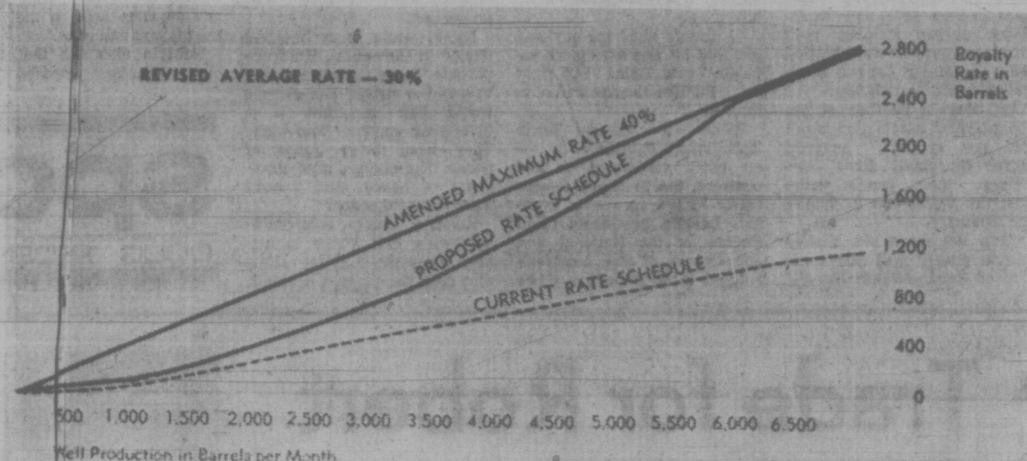

He said: "We favor partnership arrangements between industry, government and employees, rather than subsidies or loans to industry. We see a policy promoting British Columbia secondary industry utilizing our varied natural resources as a means of maximizing our economic and social rewards."

"Certainly, secondary industries afford us an opportunity to create the many jobs required for our rapidly growing labor force," he said.

"Your government is at present engaged in negotiations with industry on a major project within this economic and social framework."

Earlier Premier Barrett said he would be pleased to join with Cominco on some other company or companies to construct a copper smelter if the government was given some type of equity or control in exchange for its investment.

He did not elaborate on the state of those negotiations in the budget speech.

Resource Royalties Going Up

Premier Barrett today indicated the increased royalty for petroleum was only the beginning for resource industries — mining and forestry companies will come later.

"Further legislation is coming," he said.

Announced today was a plan to increase the royalty rate on petroleum to an average of 30 percent, about double the present rate.

This will yield additional revenue of about $9 million in the next fiscal year, he said.

"It is clearly evident the province is not receiving adequate revenue for petroleum and natural gas resources."

Charges in natural gas royalties are complicated by the federal government's involvement in export and this "complicates the problem of establishing an adequate return from this resource."

The matter is still undergoing intensive study, he said.

"The government is studying the entire revenue structure of the province, with particular attention to the natural resource sector."

"We wish to secure for the people of the province an appropriate return for the use of their resources," Barrett said.

He refused to elaborate on whether there would be immediate action on mining and forestry royalties and stumpage fees or whether statements would come much later in the year.

"I'm sorry, you'll have to wait and see," he said.

The new petroleum royalty will be on a sliding scale.

Maximum royalty is at the rate of 40 per cent and applies only to wells producing 6,000 barrels per month or more.

A well producing 4,000 barrels per month would have a levy at the 30 per cent level.

Later actions on natural gas might have more significance for the provincial treasury as gas is far more important in British Columbia in terms of production.

Premier Barrett has said mining companies can expect to pay higher royalties for export of minerals but he indicated it was taking longer to complete studies on this question than was originally expected.

Much of British Columbia's mineral exports is in the form of copper concentrates to Japan.

Also continued is the elderly citizens' renters grant of $50 annually and $3.3 million is allocated for this.

$5 million goes to the establishment of a Provincial Research and Economic Studies Fund, which would provide "an independent and ready source of research on specific projects as required."

A total of $8.5 million is provided for pay increases in the provincial civil service, and the budget speech promises that the government's pledge to give its employees bargaining rights will be kept "as soon as possible."

Barrett said at the press conference that MLAs' indemnities will be increased from the present $10,000 to $12,000 "per session." The ceiling of the increase, he said, was dictated in legislation passed by the previous government.

The premier indicated this session of the legislature will be a full one and the indemnity paid to MLAs for the fall session will be sealed according to the length of that session.

At an early point in his budget speech, which he began reading shortly after 3 p.m. to an expectant house and jam-packed public gallery, Barrett gave an assurance that the "massive cash infusions" provided for all services in the budget are being made "without any danger to the financial structure of the province."

"They will come from current or surplus cash," he said. They will not deplete the province's cash position at March 31, 1972, to any extent and will not involve any provincial borrowing.

"I wish to emphasize that next year's expenditure budget will be fully balanced from current revenue," he added.

School Spending Percentage Down

Provincial government expenditures on education, although increased in amount, have decreased as a percentage of the total budget released today by Premier Barrett.

There is $486,651,658 for education this year, compared to $441,065,916 last year, an increase of more than $45.5 million. However, as a percentage of the total budget amount, education this year takes only 28 per cent, compared with about 30 per cent last year.

The greatest dollar increase is in the amount going to elementary and secondary schools. Money going to post-secondary institutions is not greatly increased.

This year $248.5 million goes to public schools in grants and administration expenses and an additional $80 million goes to reduce local school taxes through the home-owner grant, which was increased $15 this year. Last year $213.1 million went to the public schools along with $72.6 million in home-owner grants.

Post-secondary institutions this year will get a total of $167 million, compared with $163 million last year.

The budget speech says that even though over-all public school enrolment is expected to fall for the next few years, costs are still going up because secondary school enrolment is still increasing and is more costly in terms of equipment than the lower grades.

New Health Care Thrust Indicated

There is $54 million more for delivering health care in today's budget — but Premier Barrett also indicated the new thrust in delivering that care.

The direction is away from costly treatment in acute care hospitals and towards care in more economical settings, including the patient's own home.

There is $275,647,000 appropriated for hospital care, up about $43,000,000 from the last fiscal year which has seen the addition of 246 acute care and 765 extended care beds in B.C.

But Barrett also told the Legislature: "A greater program of home services for the chronically ill will be initiated."

Later he added: "The development of out-patient services to ease the demand for hospital beds is proceeding, and a system of non-profit chronic care facilities with a high priority of service... is planned."

Funds for medicare — payment of doctor bills — are increased $5 million to $90 million "to meet the needs of the 99.7 per cent of our population voluntarily registered in the low-cost comprehensive provincial medical plan."

The decentralization theme reappears in expenditures proposed for mental health, up about $4 million to $50,856,000, when the premier said the budget provides for expanded regional services in addition to institutional services.

Public health programs in B.C. will get $26 million, up less than $1 million.

Barrett referred to the year-long study being undertaken by Dr. Richard Foulkes of the province's health service system, the project which is expected to generate the most significant changes in delivery of health care.

The aim of this government is to create a comprehensive "first rate" health service system and that objective has a high priority, he said. That is why the Foulkes study, due for completion next September, was undertaken.

Provincial Debt

The provincial debt at the end of 1972 totalled more than $3 billion, according to budget figures released today.

Of the total, $47.7 million is in direct debt and $2,988 million is in contingent liabilities.

Premier Barrett said that henceforth the liabilities would be called "contingent liability debt."

He said the debt was left by the previous administration.

Contractor Bids 'Violated Ethics'

Two sub-contracting firms in Campbell River were guilty of "improper conduct" in connection with irregularities in bidding on a hospital project.

The two companies — Chalfour Bros. Construction Ltd. and Innes and Wolfe Contractors Ltd. — were named in the report of a government-appointed commission of inquiry set up by Health Minister Dennis Cooke. Cooke tabled the commission's report in the legislature Thursday.

The project involved construction of an addition to the Campbell River and District General Hospital. The two sub-contracting companies, along with a third company, submitted bids for plastering work to be done as part of the project.

The commission, headed by Dr. H. L. Purdy, professor of economics at the University of British Columbia, found that principals of the two named companies had exchanged information about their respective bids for the hospital project in a telephone conversation.

The principals — A. A. Innes of Innes and Wolfe and Thomas T. Chalfour of Chalfour Bros. — both admitted in testimony that they had conducted the telephone conversation in which Chalfour mentioned that his company's bid was in the area of $200,000 and Innes said his company's bid was in the area of $100,000.

Evidence disclosed that one of Innes' employees had been instructed by Innes to revise his company's bid upward by more than $115,000 as a result of the telephone conversation.

The same employee testified that Innes "put in the high bid because he knew he wouldn't get the job... it was Mr. Chalfour's turn for a job."

The commission received evidence of the calculations done by the three sub-contracting companies for their bids. The calculations were as follows: Innes' company calculated a figure of $110,530 for the project; the third company involved — Gallagher Bros. Contractors Ltd. — calculated $163,258; and Chalfour's firm calculated $201,723.

The bids tendered by two of the three companies were not the same as their calculations. Innes tendered a bid of $215,380; Gallagher bid $215,000; and Chalfour bid $201,723, the same as their calculation.

Testimony of a number of quantity surveyors was that even with giving the sub-contractors the benefit of the doubt the highest estimate produced was in the order of $145,000.

The commission's report said it "cannot fairly conclude that there was a conspiracy by anyone to tender artificially high bids" in the project.

"However, and the commission so finds, that there has been improper conduct on the part of Chalfour Bros. Construction Ltd. and Innes and Wolfe Contractors Ltd."

"This improper conduct lies in the exchange of information concerning so-called competitive bids in the telephone discussion which took place between Mr. Innes and Mr. Chalfour."

and therefore the government proposed to exempt completely from the gasoline tax motor fuels used off-highway by family farmers and fishermen and fuel used in the family farm truck on the highway.

For private car use the gasoline tax remains unchanged at 15 cents per gallon and the tax on diesel fuel remains at 17 cents per gallon.

"This conduct is entirely inconsistent with the whole concept of our competitive system of bidding on construction projects," the report said.

It added that it "constitutes a flagrant violation" of a section of a code of ethics of the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., of which both companies are members.

The commission of inquiry was set up by Cooke on Dec. 7, 1972, after irregularities in the hospital project bidding were brought to Cooke's attention.

The commission held eight days of hearings in Richmond in early January of this year. A second part of the commission's report recommends some changes in the procedure for handling bids on construction projects.

Training Delay Causes Turmoil

NEW YORK (AP). — Pete Rose was angry. Ron Reed was incensed. And Frank Dale said he was ready to punch Marvin Miller in the nose.

It was just a mad, mad, mad world Thursday after club owners said they would delay spring training until contract matters were settled with the Major League Baseball Players' Association.

"If there's another strike, the players' association won't get my support," snapped Rose, Cincinnati Reds' outfielder. "Last year's strike cost me $7,000 and a chance for 200 hits."

"It's the same old Mickey Mouse stuff," was the reaction of Reed, Atlanta Braves' pitcher. "I don't know what's going on. I don't know if the owners are trying to scare us or what."

Dale, president of the Reds, did a slow burn at the sudden turn of events. He levelled criticism at Miller, the players' representative in the bitter talks.

"I always liked the guy and felt that he was extremely capable," said Dale. "But right now, I'd like to punch him in the nose."

While commissioner Bowie Kuhn spoke optimistically for an early settlement in the contract, the 24 teams temporarily locked up spring training. League presidents Chub Feeney, of the National and Joe Cronin of the American notified their respective clubs to at least temporarily cancel training from Feb. 14 to the 28. That's the time pitchers and catchers report.

Kuhn tempered the announcement with one of his own: "It's a routine matter—mainly a case of logistics—and should be blown out of proportion."

Later, while at a baseball dinner in Cincinnati, Kuhn reported: "Both sides are trying to avoid a strike. The owners would like to make it a three-year contract this time. They need three years of peace. The players need three years of peace. And I need three years of peace."

Kuhn, of course, referred to baseball's first strike in history last year—a 13-day affair that cost the players a chunk of pay and wiped out 86 major league games.

The owners claimed they had made a landmark proposal to the players in an effort to settle negotiations. John Gaherin, representing the owners, said the offer called for arbitration in settling salary disputes between individual players and clubs.

Gaherin also said that the club owners proposed a three-year pact covering all matters in the dispute. There was no word from Miller on any of these matters, however. He refused to discuss the situation with reporters.

Gaherin emphasized that the players have made individual salary procedures a key issue. Among the other issues being discussed are the reserve clause, which binds a player to a team until he's traded, released or retires; a pension-benefit plan and the "basic agreement," which covers all other employee-employer relationships.

The players made a major move toward settlement last Jan. 5 when they proposed that the central issue—the controversial reserve clause—be delayed for a year while the matter was studied further. At the same time, the players agreed not to ask for shorter seasons for at least three years.

"I don't understand it," said pitcher Phil Niekro of Atlanta. "I thought things were going along smoothly."

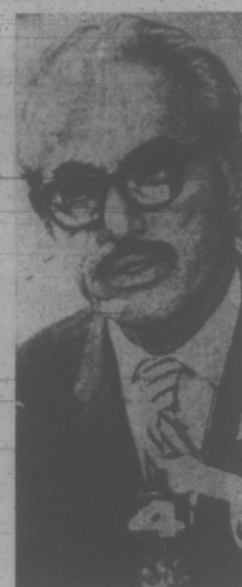

"I'm definitely surprised," said pitcher Joe Coleman of Detroit Tigers. "We didn't have any warning of this. We really worked and tried to get things straightened out."

Said Brooks Robinson, third baseman of Baltimore Orioles: "I hate to see it. The players have not made a strike threat, have not taken a strike vote and don't intend to."

"I think the owners are being stubborn in the negotiations," said San Diego Padres first baseman, Nate Colbert. "If spring training doesn't open on time, it's the players and fans who will suffer."

Buzzie Bavasi, president of the San Diego team, spoke for the owners: "I think this was the right thing to do. I never intended to open our camp until there was an agreement."

Trade for Robert Stroke of Genius

By The Canadian Press

Hockey is a form of entertainment, so Punch Imlach obviously had a few wags shaking their heads late last season when he traded Eddie (Clear the Track) Here Comes Shuck to Pittsburgh Penguins for one Rene Robert.

Few could bring National Hockey League fans to the edge of their seats quicker than Fast Eddie, his legs churning like pistons as he raced up the ice bowling over team-mates and opposition alike without regard for sweater colors.

In return, the Buffalo Sabres got a still-to-be-proven winger who had scored a total of seven goals in 52 NHL games with Pittsburgh and Toronto Maple Leafs.

In 54 games this year, Robert has more than justified Imlach's faith. He scored two goals Thursday night and Dave Dryden posted his third shutout of the year as the Sabres blanked visiting California Golden Seals 4-0.

In the only other game, St. Louis Blues edged Minnesota North Stars 3-2 when Mike Murphy blistered a 45-footer in with about 11 minutes left in the game to snap a 2-2 tie.

Philadelphia Flyers visit Vancouver Canucks tonight and Chicago Black Hawks meet the Flames in Atlanta.

Robert's goals, both in the third period, were his 31st and 32nd of the season and gave him 66 points, surpassing his French Connection linemates — Gil Perreault and Rick Martin—in both departments.

"Robert is showing all the promise he's always had," enthused Imlach after a recent game. "In fact, his stick-handling and passing ability is overshadowed only by Perreault himself."

For sure, it's no shame to be overshadowed by Perreault in that phase of the game.

Robert never really had an opportunity to show his class at Toronto or Pittsburgh where his general role was that of a utility player.

Fitting him on a line with Perreault and Martin—both super scorers whose defensive skills were questionable—turned out to be a stroke of genius for GM Imlach and coach Joe Crozier.

The line began going both ways, taking much of the defensive pressure off Robert, and the slight winger from Trois Rivieres, Que., started producing in his own fashion.

CANUCKS TRIPLE SECURITY FOR FLYER GAME TONIGHT

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The Vancouver Canucks hockey team said Thursday it would triple its security force for a game tonight with Philadelphia Flyers, seven of whose members face criminal charges here in connection with a brawl with fans last December.

A spokesman for the Vancouver club said a sellout crowd of more than 16,000 persons was expected for the game, the first meeting between the two teams since the Dec. 19 disturbance.

The seven players charged with participating in the December disturbance were to appear in court today. The Flyers have retained a Vancouver attorney, Thomas Fisher, to represent the seven — Bob Taylor, Barry Ashbee, Ross Lonsberry, Bill Flett, El Van Impe, Joe Watson and Don Salek.

Fisher could not be reached for comment on whether the players personally would answer the charges, which range from using obscene language to assaulting a policeman.

The Canucks, as well as the National Hockey League, have declined to comment on the case. However, a source in the Vancouver organization said he believed the case would be postponed until after the NHL season.

The Canucks' spokesman said he was not expecting a repeat of the December brawl, but added that the club was tripling its security force as a precautionary measure. He declined to state the number of policemen that would be on hand for the game.

Cougars Win Battles But War Record Sags

EDMONTON — Victoria Cougars decided they weren't going to let Edmonton Oil Kings intimidate them in Thursday night's Western Canada Hockey League game. They didn't. Instead, the Cougars scored three power-play goals in the first period and coasted to an 8-2 victory.

The loss ran Cougars' winless streak to 13 while the victory kept Edmonton five points behind leading Medicine Hat Tigers in the Western Division. Tigers defeated visiting Flin Flon Bombers 2-1 on a pair of goals by Randy Alime.

New Westminster Bruins blew a two-goal lead and ended up in a 3-3 tie with Brandon Wheat Kings in the only other game Thursday night.

John Rogers did most of the damage to Cougars. He scored four of Edmonton's goals to leave Cougars in a 5-1 hole at the end of a fight-filled first period that took 52 minutes to complete.

There were 126 minutes in penalties in the game, including five majors and two misconducts to each team.

In the first-period scraps, Cougars' Terry Evasiuk and Dale Cook scored clear-cut decisions over Don Eastcott and Dave Inkpen, respectively, and Victoria's Frank Hyndman had a decided edge on Wayne Perkins in a third-period fight.

But Oil Kings, who had a physical edge in Monday's win over Cougars, scored three power-play goals in the first period and counted another while short-handed.

Inkpen, Terry Bucyk, Keith Mackie and Gene Strate scored the other Edmonton goals while Jim Van Camp, on a first-period shot from centre ice, and Evasiuk countered for Cougars.

Sonshine Dies at 59

TORONTO (CP) — Flamboyant Harry Sonshine, the football fan who ran Toronto Argonauts during the turbulent years from 1954 to 1966, died in hospital here Thursday of cancer. He was 59.

In recent years, Sonshine was president of Sonco Steel Tube Co. in Brampton.

But he's best remembered as the football fan's dream — walking down from the stands, firing the quarterback, sacking the coach and running the team himself.

Sonshine accomplished this by getting himself appointed team director of the Argos with a budget of $100,000 to build a Grey Cup winner.

It's Madam President... Or a 'Hi, Mom Munroe'

The president is a lady.

So? Of a lacrosse league yet? I guess it's because I love sport so much," explained Mrs. Joan Munroe, who this year heads the Greater Victoria Box Lacrosse Association. (And even in this era of women's lib, this just has to be a first.)

"I have always loved to help kids," Joan said of a 20-year association with lacrosse here. "And I suppose it was through helping Doug Fletcher in the old Stevenson Park bowl, when I first got really interested."

"I acted as scorekeeper; then my son, Billy was playing ... and I even had my own girls' lacrosse team one year."

"They were about 12 to 17 years of age. Two of the girls, Carol Hayton and Pat Burnett could play lacrosse with anybody. But the team didn't last. They found out about boys."

Of Doug: "Oh, we had our differences at times, but he's a great guy."

If that was her beginning, the present McDonald's team is her true love now. "We started those kids," she said, "many of them as bantams. Somebody asked me if I would come down, I said 'sure,' and Billy (a former Shamrock star) and Terry Davis said they would coach."

"Now we are looking for the Minto Cup this year. The last time we had it here was 1961. The junior Shamrocks won it, and they were coached by Tom Druce and Ron Jay. We'd love to get another crack at it."

Only "about seven" of the original players are still with the club, she explained, "but this is a good bunch."

'Have Your Beef, Get On With It'

In the intervening time, Joan has been associated with almost everything to do with lacrosse — secretary, statistician, scorekeeper, phoner-in, program seller — you name it, she's done it, and even had a battle or two along the way.

"I have my beefs, and I have my say. They can have theirs. Then it's all over and done with."

"The main point then is get off your backside and move."

An avid sportsman in her youth, Joan played basketball, softball, and lacrosse. "Oh, the boys used to hammer me in lacrosse," she recalled of days on North Pender Island.

Since then other interests have included soccer. "I got involved when my husband, Charles, had the Eagles. Three times we got to the Sun tournament of champions, three times were edged by narrow margins, once on corner kicks."

There was also a time when she was a vice-president of the B.C. Lacrosse Association. "I got out of that," she said.

"Couldn't stand the politics."

Joan was in the bakery business too, for 16 years with Cox's Bakery. Now she is in another. She and Mrs. Woolsey, wife of Roy Woolsey, former long-time lacrosse executive, operate a fish and chip shop on Menzies.

"Business? ... It's good ... we're busy, busy," she enthused as she munched on a hamburger, tended the till, and watched the clock between rush hours.

"They'll start coming in again pretty soon," Joan said of the afternoon customers, and a day's work that starts at 8:30 in the morning and ends at 7:30 p.m. every weekday but Monday.

Hardly gives you time for lacrosse, said a questioner.

"Don't worry, I'll be there," she said, while explaining that it takes about a $9,000 budget to operate senior lacrosse teams, (not the Shamrocks) in the city.

"We get the money through advertising, sponsorships, $12-a-plate dinners, promotional gimmicks, program sales — you can get it, if you work at it!"

"And we are organizing coaching clinics this year."

But back when ... there must have been some motivation for all this?

Joan Munroe: Loves Sport and Kids

"It was my dad, I guess," Joan recalled. He often said: "If you get a chance to do any good in this world, do it. It will come back to you."

"... And you know, one thing I like best about all of this is that 10 or 12 years after some of these kids play lacrosse, you'll run into them somewhere and they'll say: 'Hi, Mom Munroe.'"

"It's nice to be remembered that way."

Davidson's Tally Topples Stockers

Wayne Davidson connected for a goal at 9:03 of the third period Thursday to break a 4-4 deadlock and give Lake Cowichan Lakers of the Pacific Coast Amateur Hockey League a 4-3 exhibition victory over Stockers North Americans of the Victoria Intermediate League at Peakare Arena.

The teams were deadlocked 2-2 after the first period. Lakers went ahead 3-2 by the end of the second but Stockers tied it up early in the third frame.

Alvin White, Earl Morris and Jack Brown scored the other Lakers' goals — while Lawrie Huck, Rodger Thompson and Rugs Pritchard replied for Stockers.

Stars Never Barred

Malcolm Mitchell, registrar of the B.C. Amateur Basketball Association, said Thursday rule changes by the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association this season never were intended to bar all-star teams from competing in playoffs.

Victoria Scorpions will meet a team from the Vancouver Dogwood Association in a best-of-three senior "A" playoff starting in Victoria, Feb. 17.

The rule, Mitchell said, requires teams planning to enter playoff to register five players by Dec. 15 and the balance by Jan. 21. The reason is mainly to prevent teams from being formed at the last minute to enter playoffs.

Mitchell said the Dogwood Association complied with the rules by registering four teams — Vancouver Caplanos, Richmond Ramblers, Surrey Broncos and North Shore Mountaineers — along with a team simply called the Dogwood Basketball Association. The Dogwood team paid the $3 registration fee for each of 23 players from which the association's playoff team can be drawn, Mitchell said.

In any case, Scorpion general manager Dave Henson said earlier this week he was not filing a complaint about the ruling because the Dogwood Association did not try to bar Scorpions from entering the playoffs.

THERE'LL BE CHANGES —WHA TO CONTINUE

TORONTO (CP) — Although the future of two of its franchises remained clouded, Gary Davidson said Thursday night he'd leading World Hockey Association would continue next season as a 12-team operation.

The young WHA president, here for the Ontario Sports-writers and Sportscasters dinner, said: "We're certain to have 12 clubs again next winter. We think we've got buyers for New York, and we may even expand. We're looking to Vancouver and Toronto as possibilities."

Although he did not elaborate on the financially-plagued Ottawa Nationals, Davidson admitted the club would probably be shifted to Milwaukee, Wis., and that the team's present owners — Doug Mitchell of Toronto and Nick Tsvobich of Buffalo — would take less active roles.

'Bird Sailors Rich in Enthusiasm

Thunderbird sailors are among the most enthusiastic competitors in this area so it was no surprise the 76 of them turned out on the weekend for the meeting of the International Thunderbird Association.

This was the first time the ITA has met outside the United States and there was lots of "meat" on the agenda to make the trip up across the border worthwhile.

There's been a great deal of refinement of design since the Thunderbird came off the drawing board as a boat geared to promote the plywood industry.

Fiberglass hulls are an established fact now and at the ITA meeting two other changes topped the business session.

The first was a presentation on the new authorized aluminum mast and the second, consideration of four new-style rudders.

A change in rudder design is being considered in order to improve the downwind performance of Thunderbirds in a following sea. One of the four studied at the meeting could be the answer.

Harry "Tanker" Jones was on hand to outline plans for this year's annual world championships to be sailed out of his home club at Whistler, B.C., in August. It will be a seven-race series with each of the 19 fleets being able to enter up to five boats.

Frank Francisco of Seattle is the new ITA president and John Malleon of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, who won the last world series, is vice-president.

RVYC held an 18-mile last Sunday in winds that were show at the start but quickened to a perfect 15 knots eventually.

Thirty-eight boats competed. First and second in the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet section were Gordie Vickery's Valhalla and Raven, a Columbia 30 skippered by Peter Young. Greg Oliver's Sea Fox III was overall winner in International Offshore Rule competition.

Shirley and Ray Jefferson proved a winning combination in Enterprises. Ted and Mark Bowers came second and in third place were Tony and Tracey Markle.

Doug Gray won in X class, edging out Charles Simpson.

Davidson sailors will be at Silva Bay this weekend to take on their competition from the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

At Cadboro Bay, young El

Toro sailors will be piling it out in the junior championships while the rest of the classes will relax with fun races.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club has a six-mile in waters off Sidney planned for Sunday, beginning at 10 a.m.

There was a good turnout Saturday for their first race since the holidays.

Over-all winner was Will Jensen's Viking 28. After her came Jim Scott's Vacalindo, Jack Smith's Island Challenger, Jack Lucas' Calamity, Steve Meredith's Aura, Louis Lindholm's Moonraker, Ivor Pearson's Marionette, Gordie Inglis' Water Melon, Gary Glover's Gemini and Allan Brownlee's Alana.

The Turkey Head Sailing Association will also be out on the race course this weekend.

They will have two races Sunday in waters off Oak Bay Marina, the first start gun going at 10 a.m. and the final one of the day, 1:30 p.m.

EYE TROUBLE REMAINS

NEW YORK (CP) — Veteran defenceman Kent Douglas, still suffering from an eye injury, has been named assistant coach by New York Raiders of the World Hockey Association.

Head coach Camille Henry said Douglas, 27, was not necessarily retiring as an active player but still had blurred vision after being struck by a stick in a Jan. 16 game against Philadelphia Blazers.

Kings Clobbered

Esquimalt A and W continued on a hard drive aimed at capturing a playoff berth by bouncing Racquet Club Kings 11-3 Thursday night in South Island Junior "B" Hockey League action at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Victory moved Esquimalt within seven points of Saanich Block Brothers Braves, who hold down fourth place and the last playoff spot. Saanich has five games remaining in the schedule, one more than Esquimalt.

Bill Parsons fired three goals to lead Esquimalt while John Entzinger and Rick Fisher added two goals apiece.

Bill 43 Repeal Urged

The B.C. Provincial Council of Carpenters called today for legislative changes to permit informational picketing and elimination of the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

The council, in a brief submitted to the government, said prohibition of informational picketing and the use of injunctions has cramped union attempts to recruit among unorganized workers.

It expressed "deep concern and disappointment" that although the government recognized the priority in repealing the Mediation Act, a similar priority was not acknowledged in repealing or amending the Trade Unions Act (Bill 43).

This act, the council said, represents "an economic threat to the well-being and standard of living of the working people" of B.C. and "permits a breeding ground for the exploitation of the semi-skilled, unskilled and underprivileged workers."

"Furthermore, the act restricts freedom of speech, communication and assembly. Statistical evidence shows a greatly-increased use by employers of court injunctions in labor disputes since 1959. Most of the injunctions are against peaceful, informational picketing."

LESS MEMBERS

The carpenters said that in 1959, when the Social Credit government passed the Trade Unions Act, 53.9 per cent of the work force in B.C. was in unions. By 1969, this had fallen to 41 per cent.

"We believe that the reduction of 13 per cent in the number of organized workers was mainly brought about by the restrictive effects of the Trade Unions Act," the council's brief said.

Council secretary Lorne Robson told a press conference today that repeal of such legislation as the Trade Unions Act was part of the new government's election program "and we don't think it takes a long study to repeal Bill 43."

He said it takes about two months for a union to gain certification by the present process, but in the construction industry many jobs are over in that time.

In addition, companies could switch names and incorporate under a new name in a matter of days "and go non-union."

Robson said the brief concentrated on the two issues of informational picketing and injunctions because of their particular application to the building industry.

The carpenters union agreed with Labor Minister Bill King that unions should organize non-union workers. What stands in the way, he said, is the Trade Unions Act. He estimated that the on-site construction work force in B.C. is 30,000 to 35,000 in unions and 12,000 to 15,000 outside unions.

ARCHITECT HEADS PLANNERS

Architect Alan Lester was chosen Thursday to head Saanich Advisory Planning Commission for 1973, replacing Gordon Denford who has moved from the municipality.

Lester is one of the longer-serving members of the commission and acted as vice-chairman last year.

The new vice-chairman is Bruce Speer, retired, also a former member of the commission.

New member Vaughn Thompson, a real estate agent, was named to join Jack Roberts and Lester as APC appointees to the mayor's special committee on commercial-service land use.

The latter, chaired by Ald. Frank Waring, is expected to make its report by the end of March, ending its function.

Saturday at Open Space, 510 Fort Street, at 8 p.m. Describing his presentation as "an open environment," he uses air, candles, walls, ceilings, electronic equipment, glitter, neon tube, plumb, ramp, string, tape, transformers, turnbuckles, wire all together "sympiotically" to create a continuous environment for hearing noise-sound-music.

This is the first time Santon has presented his work in Victoria. Previously he has offered it in major United States cities and in Toronto and has been exhibiting and performing since 1966. Recently he has studied and worked with the master Indian musician Pandit Pran Nath and the American composer, La Monte Young.

Paper Blast 'Intimidation'

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—An explosion at a weekly newspaper office here Wednesday night was "an act of intimidation" because of stories the paper had written on crime in this area, says Gerard MacNeil, managing editor of the Dartmouth Free Press. No one was injured in the explosion.

Dental Bill Paid

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 15-year-old Powell River boy has been awarded $277 under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act to cover dental work last summer. The boy had jumped into the street in front of a car. He wasn't hit by the car, but by the irate motorist who stepped out and punched him in the mouth.

Save Wildlife Fund Launched

The international charitable organization World Wildlife Fund will launch this month its first campaign for funds in British Columbia to help save endangered species of wildlife.

It starts Feb. 19. All contributions are tax-deductible and donations collected will go directly towards conservation projects.

Dr. Ian McTaggart-Cowan, dean of graduate studies at the University of British Columbia and a member of the board of governors of WWF, said funds are needed to carry out critical and urgent work necessary to "save nature before it is too late."

"Unless action is taken now, man will in the next 50 years cause the extinction of more living species than nature has lost in the last billion years," he said. "If the world becomes an unsuitable place for wild animals, man himself may follow them into extinction."

ALSO ON ISLAND

McTaggart-Cowan said right on Vancouver Island there are two animals in danger of extinction — the Vancouver Island marmot and wolverine.

"The marmot is a unique species — different from the mainland groups," he said. "The wolverine is even rarer. It is a sub-species of its mainland counterpart."

While the Vancouver Island wolf, a sub-species of the mainland wolf, is making a comeback, he said the animal practically disappears from sight every so often.

"We don't know why, and some day it too may become extinct," he said.

He said no one knew how many plants in Canada are near extinction because no inventory has yet been made.

"But we do know that about 20,000 plant species are in danger of extinction in the world," he said.

Since the 17th century, a total of 36 mammals has become extinct and at least 120 are in danger of extinction," he added. "Of the birds, 94 have become extinct and at least 197 are in danger of being wiped out."

He noted the figures did not include sub-species which have become extinct.

With the Arctic region opening up at an astounding rate, Canadians must investigate every conceivable requisite for the seal's survival — "now — before it is too late," he said.

McTaggart-Cowan, chairman of the endangered deer committee, said 28 species of deer are in danger of extinction in the world.

The Canadian section of the World Wildlife Fund is in Toronto. Its chairman is Senator A. A. Macnaughton, and the president is John H. Devlin.

Board of directors include Mrs. Thomas H. Beta, R. T. D. Birchall, Major Louis M. Bloomfield, Laurence Dampier, Richard M. Ivey, Victor de B. Oland, Leon Simard and R. Howard Webster.

The international organization is headed by Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands.

FLU CURE:

DEEP SNOW

BUTTE, Mont. (UPI) — Here's one flu preventive you'll never see advertised on a TV — snow.

Dr. F. B. Duscheneau, Butte city-country health director, says a recent outbreak of flu in Montana should be curbed by a nine-inch snowfall.

"The moisture will help a great deal in filtering the virus from the air," he said Tuesday.

He said the recent outbreak, which forced closure of some rural schools, had been abated by dry weather and winds which transmitted the airborne flu virus.

City Land Sale Labelled Rip-Off

The City of Victoria "ripped-off" the provincial government in a recent sale of 4.3 acres in Victoria West for the government's land bank program, a Social Credit member charged in the legislature Thursday.

James Chabot (SC—Columbia River) said the city charged the government $82,000 per acre for the land. He added that he does not blame the city in the least for its actions. The fault should lie with the government, he said, because of its "strange obsession" to accumulate land "at almost any price."

Chabot's charge came during debate of the throne speech. It had been announced Wednesday by Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer that a total of $330,000 had been paid by the government for land in Victoria.

Chabot said the land involved is located on McCaskill Street in Victoria West. The government had made an original offer of $275,000 for the property, he said, and the city had considered the bid. But then the city said the property could accommodate up to 70 individual units of housing instead of the 55 originally proposed by the government.

Since the government had offered to pay $5,000 per unit of housing, the price was raised from $275,000 to $350,000, Chabot said, and the government accepted.

"It is unreal, unbelievable, that the government has this unbelievable urge to amass land at almost any price. The government was ripped-off by the City of Victoria. But I don't blame the city so long as the government is so hung up on accumulation of land," he said.

"What a bunch of nonsense," Chabot said of the land deal. "What the city should have done is tell them there was room for 140 units of housing on that land and then they could have got $700,000 for it. I fault them for that and that alone," he said. Chabot said the government will end up establishing "ghettos on real expensive land" by making the land purchase for public housing. The government could have purchased suitable land in Victoria and Saanich for between $5,000 and $20,000 per acre, Chabot said. "But instead, they paid $80,000 per acre," he said. If the province followed a similar pattern in acquiring available land in Vancouver, he said, there would be an expenditure of $738 million.

Ald. Percy Frampton cast a lone vote against a Government Street mall scheme before studies were approved in council Thursday.

"I'm in favor of studying this idea, but let's approve it in principle once we've got the studies back," he said.

Ald. Sam Bawit, proponent of the scheme, said it was a program of studies that council was voting on.

In other business, council agreed to apply to the federal Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for a housing study in the city.

It also approved expenditure of $228,000 for purchase of sites between Broughton and Courtney for an off-street parking garage.

MALL STUDIES START

Levi Rebuffs Demonstrators

Representatives of a group of demonstrators occupying the provincial government's day-care information centre in Vancouver came to Victoria Thursday to meet Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi, but no meeting took place.

Levi said he would not meet with any of the demonstrators until they get out of the government building, which the predominantly female demonstrators have been occupying since last Thursday, when it was officially opened. "We'll talk when they move out of there," Levi told reporters Thursday afternoon. "Our position has not changed."

Four women and two children came to Victoria. They sat for a while on the steps of the Legislative Buildings and then left when they realized they were not going to get a meeting. But they said they would come back today for another try.

The demonstrators are trying to convince the government to establish a 24-hour day-care service and to provide facilities for children of under three years old. The government says it will get to these measures in due course and will not bargain with people who are breaking the law. About 30 people are involved in the occupation effort. There have been as many as 100 in the Vancouver building at one time.

In Vancouver meanwhile, the occupation continued with various community organizations taking sides on the issue.

The NDP executive in Burrard, Little Mountain and Vancouver South ridings sent messages of support for the demonstrators, along with 23 other groups, a news release from the protest body said Thursday.

But Gay Shanks, president of the Lower Mainland Association of Private Day Care Centres, made public a message of support for the rehabilitation minister.

"Such action only impedes the plans the government is trying to implement and we are in support of the government's present endeavor to upgrade day care services," she said.

A spokesman for the demonstrators, who are also seeking a meeting with Health Minister Dennis Cocke and Education Minister Eileen Dailly, said the four women now in Victoria will remain there until they succeed.

New Vote Ordered In Princeton

A fresh election for a single school trustee position on Princeton school board has been ordered in the rural area of school district 17.

A cabinet order published today declares null and void the Dec. 9 election in that electoral zone of the district, and sets March 3 as the date for a new election.

An investigation of voting procedures conducted by the provincial education department showed 58 electors wrongfully voted in both electoral zones of the district, the village of Princeton and the rural area.

The election result in the village remains valid as the two successful candidates had sufficient plurality of votes. But the department investigation showed the 58 voters who did vote twice could have "materially affected" the result in the rural area.

The board member from the rural area who was elected Dec. 9 had a total of 58 votes — 13 more than the next candidate.

IWA Denies PPWC Vote A Threat

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

DUNCAN — The president of the 4,200-member Duncan local of the International Woodworkers of America, Ferrie Viala, said Thursday he is confident the IWA will win any certification votes at mills being sought by a rival union, the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Viala disclosed that the PPWC has applied for certification to the B.C. Labor Relations Board for the 120-employee Ladysmith Forest Products sawmill.

The PPWC has also been active recruiting members at three other mills in the Duncan local — Saltair Lumber in Ladysmith and Mayo Lumber and Cipa Lumber in Nanaimo.

In Port Alberni, another IWA local, the PPWC has applied for certification at the big Somass sawmill and is organizing at the Alberni Pacific Division sawmill, both owned by MacMillan Bloedel.

Viala said he is "not the slightest bit worried" at the PPWC moves. "We are not afraid of a vote. I'd like a vote and clear it once and for all."

He said he suspects there is a "good possibility" the PPWC does not have a majority of signed members at Ladysmith Forest Products.

Viala described the IWA as a "Canadian-dominated international union" because there are more Canadian members than Americans. He said the IWA is a democratic, membership-controlled union with "not a hint of scandal" in its history.

"There is absolutely no benefit to belong to a union trying to splinter a large union," he said. "I can't understand how anyone could think that a small union could stand up against Forest Industrial Relations (the employers bargaining agency) and win."

He accused the PPWC of taking out its members on a fruitless 10-week strike in 1970 which gained them nothing because the industry settled with other pulp unions.

"Rather than becoming parochial, we should be looking at world-wide unions. There are world-wide markets. MacMillan Bloedel has mills in Spain and Alabama and we should raise their rates."

"Nationalism is not practical. The world doesn't stop at the 49th parallel. If there are no borders for money, there should be no borders for unionism," he said.

Viala accused the PPWC of trying to enrol sawmill workers to "pay for pulp mill negotiations" this summer and of negotiating lower pay rates for women operators than men operators in a contract at Seaford Plastics in Burnaby. He said the IWA ended discriminatory pay rates in mills almost 10 years ago.

... not worried

He also said that PPWC has been unable to win the loyalty of all pulp and paper mill workers in B.C., and was switching to sawmills which enjoyed "the best wages and working conditions" in North America, while ignoring thousands of unorganized workers.

He said the "main theme" of the PPWC "seems to be nationalism and outside interference — by the International Woodworkers of America. It is incomprehensible to term year-round help for IWA members on complex problems such as unemployment, insurance, compensation claims and health and welfare problems as being outside interference."

"The Canadian IWA, that is Regional Council 1, provides all of the things that the pulp union seems to think unique. Complete membership control of Canadian affairs by Canadians is nothing new to the IWA. We achieved that goal 37 years ago," he said.

Parents Petitioning For Crossing Light

DUNCAN — About 40 Koksilah parents will deliver a petition to Highway Minister Robert Strachan for a controlled traffic light at a Trans-Canada Highway crossing here where a six-year-old boy was injured last week.

Daren George, son of Mrs. Cecilia Alphonse, was struck while crossing the highway on his way home to lunch. He is in traction at the Cowichan District Hospital with a broken leg, bruises and cuts. He won't be released for 10 weeks.

Mrs. Alphonse has removed her five children from the Koksilah school.

Parents attended a meeting at the school and plan a protest supporting the Cowichan school board's recommendation for a traffic light.

Action has been planned for Strachan's visit to Duncan, Feb. 28. Mrs. Margaret Caprethier, said suggestions include blockading the highway and boycotting the school.

"We have been trying for 13 years to have something done, and so far have got very little action. Last fall a child got hit, and when Darren got hit, it was the straw that broke the camel's back," she said.

Mrs. Caprethier said 85 children use the crossing, and with the closing next year of the old Koksilah school, on the other side of the highway, an additional 20 will be using it.

Count Those Oysters

New regulations will soon go into effect that will clamp down on people who take more than their share of oysters, clams and abalone on the B.C. coast.

The proposed changes will apply to commercial and sports fishermen.

They are being circulated to fishermen and others by W.R. Hourston, director of fisheries for the Pacific Region. Comments should be sent to his Vancouver office by the end of the month.

Once the regulations go into effect people who enjoy a feast of oysters will have to limit themselves to a daily bag of 24 per person per day. If they fish for oysters for two days or more they will be allowed a total of 48 oysters.

The same limits will be set for people digging for little-neck or butter clams.

As of April 1, people who commercially dig for clams or pick oysters will have to get personal commercial fishing licenses except when they're operating on registered oyster leases.

Those who like to fish for abalone will have limits of 12 per person per day or a possession limit of 24 per person if they fish two or more days. The restriction will cover the Strait of Georgia and tributary inlets. Commercial fishing for abalone will be completely banned in this area.

Commercial fishing for abalone will also be banned in waters adjacent to the Broken Group in Barclay Sound. This move will be made to reduce fishing pressure on abalone stocks in the Broken Group which will become part of the Pacific Rim Park.

Because of the heavy harvesting of clams near Nanaimo and the need to reserve stocks for sport or personal use, commercial fishing of clams will not be allowed in the waters of Hammond Bay (also known as "Bishop's Lagoon") which lies inside a line between Neck Point and Lagoon Head.

Another regulation, designed to cut down the mortality and injury rate of fish in non-tidal waters is also being considered although it may take one or two years to become effective.

It is proposed that from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31 each year that no multiple hooks be allowed for salmon and steelhead sport fishing in non-tidal waters.

The fisheries department also hopes this move will minimize "jiggling."

A CURSE ON THE STAMPEDE

CALGARY (CP) — A curse was placed on this city last summer after the stampede board excluded the David Crowchild family from the 1972 Indian Village at the Exhibition and Mayor Rod Sykes wants it removed.

The mayor raised the issue early in January in a letter to Stampede President George Crawford.

"Dear George," he wrote. "You may be interested to know that a curse hangs over the city and that you are in a position to do something about it."

He urged the board to reconsider its official attitude to the family and in a footnote added: "If you are unable to help in this matter, I shall have to approach the Sarcees to request that the scope of the curse be varied so as to affect only the stampede board and not the civic administration and other innocent parties."

Mr. Crawford said, in a reply to the mayor's letter, that "I'm afraid the lifting of Virginia Crowchild's curse is a matter that can only be dealt with by Virginia herself."

The 1972 stampede was the first in 24 years that a Crowchild keepsee was not pitched in the Indian Village. The family was excluded because it left the 1971 stampede early without informing the board.

Property Improvement Grants Hiked in Saskatchewan Budget

REGINA (CP) — Substantial increases in property improvement grants were announced today in the budget speech, boosting the government's total outlay in the program to $30.5 million.

Finance Minister Elwood Cowley said proposed amendment to the program will provide grant increases to property owners equivalent to an 18-mill tax reduction.

Maximum grants under the program will be $270 from $195 for farmers, $180 from $130 for business property and $144 from $78 for homeowners.

Also in the area of taxes, Cowley said he expects the 5 per cent education and health tax should produce $80.3 million in 1973-74, a hike of about $8 million.

Gasoline taxes are expected to yield $57.1 million for a $2 million increase, and individual income tax is expected to produce $95.6 million, or $25 million more. Duties and gift taxes are estimated to be $2.8 million for 1973-74.

MOTHER RESPONSIBLE IN BABY'S DEATH

MAYERTHORPE, Alta. (CP) — A coroner's jury Thursday found Lena Kootenay, 26, responsible for the death of her 15-month-old child last December on the Alexis Indian reserve 30 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The jury ruled that Shirley Jane Kootenay, found in a house with six other children Dec. 17, died of exposure to cold.

Mrs. Kootenay testified she last saw the child Dec. 10 when she left for Edson, Alta., about 90 miles southwest of the reserve, to look for a job and a house. No charges have been laid.

Minister Lou Hyndman says. Final exams would be retained only for special purposes, such as satisfying student appeals, determining scholarship awards and meeting the needs of adult and private study candidates.

More From Liquor

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan Liquor Board had a net profit of nearly $30.4 million in the 1971-72 fiscal year, the largest in its 47-year history. The annual report of the board showed gross sales of $84 million. Seventy-four liquor stores were operated at 63 locations in addition to 120 special liquor vendor outlets. That compares with 73 stores at 62 locations and 117 special outlets the previous fiscal year. The number of hotel beverage rooms declined by two from 495 the previous year. Licensed dining rooms increased to 115 from 111 while the number of cocktail lounges increased to 91 from 84.

Returns Swamp City

CALGARY (CP) — Problems in coping with the large number of returned liquor, wine and soft drink bottles has resulted in the closing of four of nine container depots in the city. Phil Ullman, of the environmental department said Albertans last month returned two million bottles to the depots. The four depots affected did not have enough storage space and lacked sufficient cash to make refunds on the flood of bottles and cans, Ullman said.

Never Trust a Driver In a Flowered Bonnet

One of the things I forgot to tell the Morrisses when they arrived some 14 months ago was how to be a Victoria driver. Since it was at least partly my endorsement of the town that brought them here and since the word is out that Jim Morris is becoming more than mildly psychotic about driving habits hereabouts I hasten to make amends.

Until their move west the Morrisses' entire experience as drivers was limited to the city of Toronto and I would guess, just offhand, that Toronto drivers may be the best in the world. All of the incompetent drivers in Toronto either have been killed off or hopelessly crippled which leaves only the virtuoso drivers on the road.

The Toronto driver's sole concern is to get from Point A to Point B in the shortest elapsed time or, if possible, even quicker than that. Pedestrians are beneath contempt. At any red light you will see the cars lined up, waiting, racing their motors, going thrum-thrum-thrum, while the pedestrians cower on the curb, unwilling to take their chances on the "Walk" signal. Some are there to this day.

It is very unusual in Toronto to see a driver over the age of 35. The city, itself, is strangely barren of what we euphemistically call senior citizens. If you are in the downtown core, particularly, you're apt to think that the basic premises of demography have been obliterated.

I once spent the better part of an afternoon in the plaza of the Toronto-Dominion Centre looking for a man older than I. He never appeared. The mortality rate, of course, is fierce. Those who do not succumb from the weather succumb from the pace. I heard once of a Torontonian who had reached 50 by staying locked in his room, but it turned out to be only a legend.

Consider, then, what happens to a youngish couple like the Morrisses, who take up residence in a city that's not merely a retirement haven, but a city in which the retired, clear up to the age of 100, play a full and active role in society. Since a good part of that role is behind the wheel of an automobile it comes right down to how life goes on in the streets and that way, for the unreconstructed Toronto driver, lies madness.

Clearly what Jim Morris has not learned, even after 14 months, is that sweet patience, that smiling resignation, that marks the true Victoria driver, a man or woman whose aim is not to make it from Point A to Point B in rapid time, but alive.

Take the business of horns, for example. In Toronto there are horns going all the time, a discordant symphony of irritability and impatience. Should you hesitate for five seconds in advancing on the green the man behind you will give you the horn and the man behind him will give him the horn. That is just the way it is. If you dropped dead at the wheel he'd still give you the horn.

It is not that way in Victoria. Indeed the retailers of new cars could sell them just as easily without the horn. No one would ever find out.

I remember, on one of my early familiarization expeditions, being driven about Oak Bay municipality by its mayor, the ebullient Frances Elford, who, in Toronto, might survive no more than eight minutes in light traffic. At one point Mrs. Elford braked suddenly to show me the site of a new apartment block. Instantly, there was a bap from a horn immediately behind her. "Damn tourists!" the lady mayor muttered without looking around. I looked around and, sure enough, the car had Alberta plates.

What Jim Morris must learn to develop is a style of defensive driving unknown anywhere else in the world, a style based on the assumption that the other driver, any other driver within sight, may do something perfectly nutty.

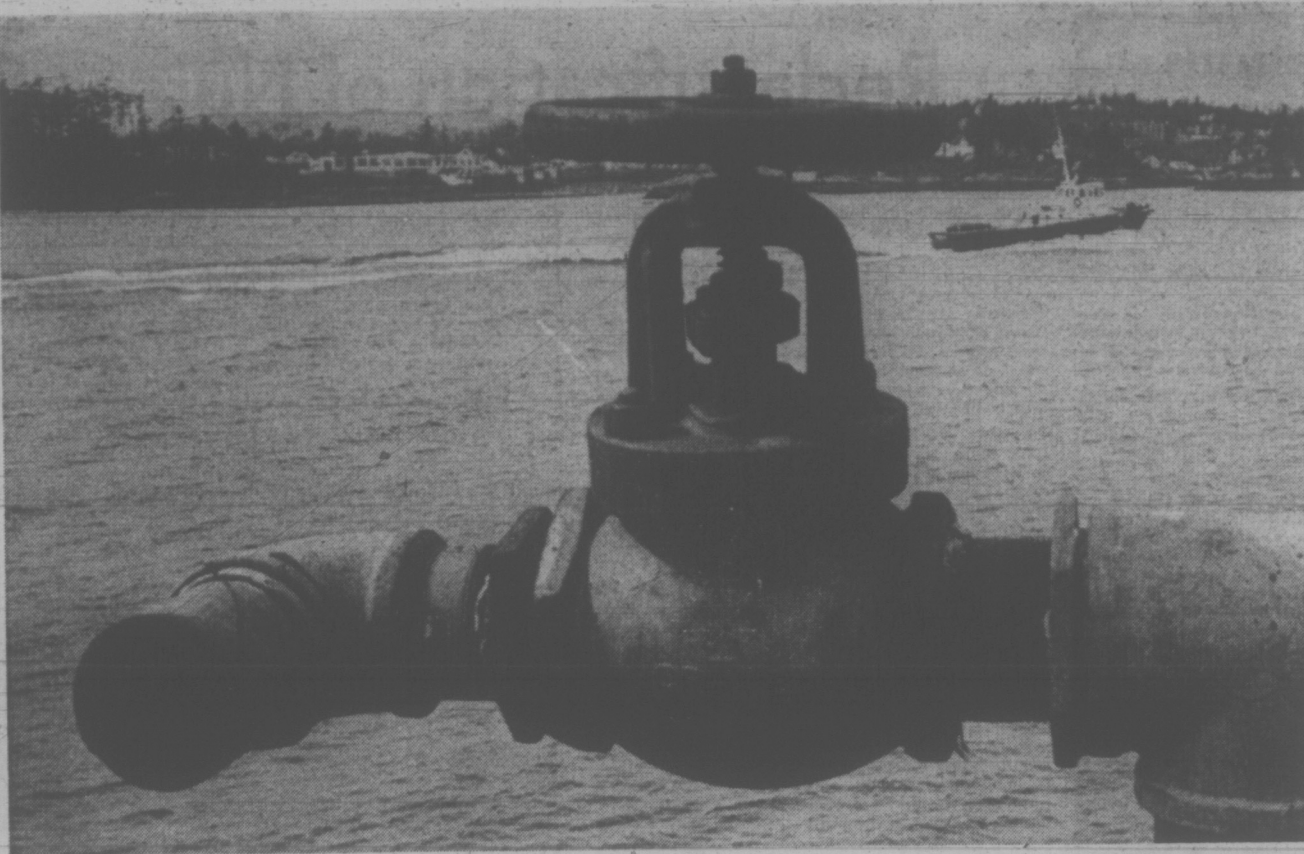

Only last month my wife, waiting for a red light to change at Colwood Corner, watched in mute fascination as an elderly gentleman pulled out of a driveway and drove directly into the side of our car. The insurance people quickly fixed things up, the other driver was downright gallant about it, but my wife is still haunted by the suspicion that it was somehow her responsibility for not getting out of the way.

This was the gentlest of bumps and, within the city's confines, there is rarely anything more serious. My favorite mechanic, a widely-travelled man, is fond of saying that he has never been in any city where there was so much body damage to automobiles and so little body damage to human beings.

Some motorists have refined the defensive driving style to a highly sophisticated level. I have one friend, for example, who has determined that all Austin Cambridge saloons are driven by little old ladies in flowered hats who have only a whimsical idea, at best, of what they'll do next. It is his practice, on sighting one, to pull into the curb instantly and park for 10 minutes.

The Victoria-born develop this patience from an early age and the Victoria-adopted usually learn it very quickly, but it is true, too, that it means a tremendous, bottled-up fury and frustration that can be psychologically dangerous.

About the only known release is another famous local phenomenon, the motorist who, freed from the tensions of downtown driving, miles from the nearest Austin Cambridge, goes shooting off the Malahat at 92 miles per hour.

Could this be the world's biggest plumbing problem? The giant tap pictured here has a sign "drain valve" next to it and all that water suggests it's really done a job.

Actually, it's one of the remaining fixtures at the Dallas Road site of the former Victoria Machinery Depot yard and that reach of water is the entrance to the city's harbor, with Esquimalt in the background.

300 Angry Farmers Rap Freeze

Victoria Times

SECOND SECTION

More than 300 angry farmers roared their approval Thursday night when their MLA, Hugh Curtis, told them he believes Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich now realizes he "has the lion by the tail" with his farmland freeze.

Curtis told the North and South Saanich Farmers' Institute meeting in Saanichton he is violently opposed to the farmland freeze and said the signing of petitions, letters to the premier and other government members were "absolutely essential" to express concern.

"This matter is being churned over right now. Therefore this legislation could be undergoing a second look. I hope this is the case," Curtis suggested the Greenbelt Protection Fund was one of many possible alternatives and stressed the need for consultation between local and regional government.

A petition circulated at the meeting received, numerous signatures, and is expected to be further circulated before being sent to the government. The B.C. Federation of Agriculture is circulating a similar petition.

The petition asks Stupich to lift the land freeze and replace it with legislation allowing future sales of farmland to proceed unencumbered unless that land is to be converted into non-farm use.

The petition also requests legislation giving the government first right of refusal to purchase at fair market value, at the time of sale, farmland which is to be sold for non-farm use.

Dairyman Bill Taylor, institute president, said urban sprawl is placing more and more restriction on the farmers.

The institute, he said, had successfully fought the previous government's move to dedicate farmland and had been helped by the New Democrat Party. Now, said Taylor, the new government has frozen farmland "but it should have been frozen 20 years ago."

Farmers agreed with broker Harry Liedtke, 321 Walton Place, who objected to the assertion made in the legislature that 80 per cent of

B.C. farmers are happy with the government freeze.

"We are tired of playing Santa Claus to the rest of society," said Taylor.

George Aylard, North Saanich farmer and alderman, was applauded when he said, "If people want farmland preserved, everyone — not just farmers — must participate in paying for the land."

A question period revealed mass indignation over the production cost which Vancouver Island farmers are battling in the face of increasing competition from the Mainland.

"How many Victoria housewives look for local milk?" demanded Taylor. "Most buy the cheapest they can find."

"We are told we must increase the food supply, but a young man starting farming today must invest $125,000 and up. A job peddling milk pays much more and the only investment needed is a lunch box.

"If the government sunk their teeth into this instead of a land freeze, we would be farther ahead," said Taylor.

Jim Gorst, NDP MLA for Esquimalt, attended the meeting "as a concerned citizen".

"The new government is trying to wrestle with the problem farmers have had for a long time," he said. "This is not a vindictive action. In the Fraser Valley the farming community is being wiped out."

Ted Claydars, former Central Saanich alderman, said the crux of the matter was to find alternative solutions to control arable land for agricultural use.

Tenders Due On Hospital

The provincial government has authorized calling of tenders for a 75-bed extended care hospital in Central Saanich.

Louis Lindholm, president of the Saanich Peninsula Hospital Society, said Thursday he has received a telegram from Health Minister Dennis Cocke granting approval to call for construction bids. Lindholm said he is hopeful the tender invitation will be out before the end of the month.

The province must still approve letting the contract before construction can begin but it now appears the hospital will be in operation before the end of the year.

The hospital, which will cost an estimated $1 million to build and equip, will go on a 22-acre site beside Mount Newton Crossroad. The 75-bed first phase will be for extended care patients, meaning chronically ill mostly elderly people who require constant nursing.

The service areas have been designed to handle a proposed second phase, another 75 beds for acute care patients. Ultimately the new hospital will replace Resthaven Hospital in Sidney.

Cocke's approval to call tenders requires concurrence of the Capital regional hospital board. But board chairman Art Young said today he is delighted with the news and the board will certainly give its blessing when it next meets on Wednesday.

Captain's Trial May 7

Judge William Ostler today set May 7 as the trial date for the captain of the freighter Irish Stardust.

Defence lawyer Peter Lowry of Vancouver entered a plea of not guilty in provincial court for Capt. James Caird. The skipper is charged under the Canada Shipping Act with failing to report to a pollution officer after his ship grounded on Haddington Island, spilling 100,000 gallons of crude bunker oil from there to Victoria.

The captain did not appear.

A second charge, against the ship, of discharging oil or an oily mixture into Canadian waters, was read. Plea on this charge was reserved until May 7.

Complaints First In Slum Closures

WHITBREAD

Victoria's medical health officer and fire chief say the only way to enforce the city's anti-slum bylaws is for citizens to file complaints.

Jim Nelson, a tenant organizer, said Thursday city bylaw 3459 is being broken because of neglect by city officials.

Dr. John Whitbread said he knew slum tenant housing existed.

"We've been taking action where it's warranted, but only after complaints," he said.

He said the city can call on the services of only three full-time and one part-time health inspectors and more inspectors have been sought for five years.

"With one more inspector we could probably do a survey in the James Bay area for example," Whitbread said.

He said the best way to enforce the bylaw is for citizens, neighbors, relatives of the afflicted and other concerned people to lodge complaints.

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said the fire department is "pretty well forced to work on a complaint basis."

He said fire inspectors work with the welfare department to check poor housing — "we've never had trouble getting places upgraded."

Simmons said the fire department has no authority to conduct inspections of single family dwellings without written complaints being submitted.

"We have enough authority under the Fire Marshal's Act to close places, he said. Routine inspections are made on all commercial properties, he said, although rented single-family houses do not appear to come under that category.

The fire department has six full-time inspectors which Simmons said is because of the responsibilities the department has to fulfill.

Assistant municipal manager Colin Crisp also said it was up to citizens to get action from city officials if they saw bad living conditions.

That Flu Bug's Sophisticated—It Arrived by Jet

By GEORGE OAKE
Times Staff

Got the flu?

Blame it on Frank Whittle. He built the Allies' first jet engine in 1941.

One world war and the Korean "police" action later it was sufficiently developed for civilian use and jets started roaring off carrying people and flu viruses to the four corners of the earth.

That's right, flu viruses. Imagine how long it took Marco Polo to take Venetian flu to the Middle Kingdom?

Now the Chinese can ship it back in a day on board a Boeing 707.

You don't believe this symbiotic relationship between jet engines and flu viruses?

No less than the ninth edition of "Control of Communicable Diseases in Man (An official report of the American Public Health Association)" agrees:

"Mode of transmission — By direct contact, through droplet infection, or by articles freshly soiled with discharges of the nose and throat of infected persons; possibly airborne."

The key word is airborne.

And Metropolitan Health Officer J. L. M. Whitbread clinches it. Asked if he thought flu might get around on jets, the cautious doctor replied, "I wouldn't be a bit surprised."

But back to The Control of Communicable Diseases. There are two varieties: A and B.

"The disease shows a cyclic tendency, with influenza A appearing in epidemic form at shorter intervals than influenza B."

It figures. Type A has an airline schedule and Type B feels more at home with camel caravans and ships like the Titanic.

The Asian flu of 1957-58 was labelled an A variety. It flew out of Hong Kong one winter day, landed in Vancouver and pow! The rest is medical history.

Naturally, it proliferated and weakened in strength eventually. So it grabbed a flight out of San Francisco for the Orient and went home to recuperate in places like Peking and Hanoi — places our government has recently recognized, which means the jets will be coming in a year or so.

Meanwhile, a hardy Asian strain hid out in England, did flu-type cylisthenics, and generally built up its infectious muscles.

One day early in '73 it packed its virulent bags and hustled out of some Bayswater cul-de-sac to Heathrow airport where it took Air Canada's direct flight to Vancouver.

You think I'm kidding? I know because I got it from some lawyer at the Harrison Hot Springs bar convention last weekend. And as everybody knows lawyers and students on government grants are the only people rich enough to take that flight.

Right now London flu viruses are dancing around my small intestine, singing hymns of praise to Frank Whittle and the jet engine. I can feel them.

Of course there's no local epidemic.

There never is. It's just that everybody's got it.

Even before the school strike school board community relations officer Bill Stavdal said there was no high degree of absenteeism because of flu.

"But my own son had the flu last week," Stavdal added, confirming my suspicions.

"There are no indications of an epidemic," Dr. Whitbread said, although, "for the person who has it, it's 100 per cent."

That's the understatement of the year.

"An acute highly communicable disease characterized by abrupt onset with fever of one to six days duration, chilliness or chills, discomfort, aches or pains in the back, legs or shoulders, and malaise or prostration," says the American Medical Association.

How do you say "I got malaise and prostration" to an associate city editor of 14 years experience?

I settled for, "I got the flu; I'm not coming in."

"It's all that rich food you ate on company money with those lawyers," he replied in his usual uncharitable way.

"Yeah, the flu hug hitched a ride in a crate of lobster tails out of Melbourne." I thought, after hanging up and heading for the john.

elizabeth

A news release from Ottawa that barely made headlines on inside pages of our newspaper, a few days back, told of the federal government's reclassification of nursing assistants in its employ to place them on the same pay level as nursing orderlies.

A study, urged in a recommendation of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women in Canada, of the work of both assistants and orderlies.

The news release said about 540 assistants in federal health departments agencies and veterans' hospitals are affected.

Pay increases will be retroactive to January 1, 1972. Rates vary on a regional basis.

Looking again at my copy of the Royal Commission report, I find it says "perhaps the case of female nursing assistants and male nursing orderlies provides the most widely known example of controversy over whether or not two occupations are sufficiently similar to warrant equal pay under the law."

Montague BRIDGMAN Ltd.
China Crystal Gifts
811 GOVERNMENT ST. 383-0821

Nursing assistants care for female patients in hospitals the report explains, while orderlies care for male patients.

In most provinces nursing assistants must have at least Grade 10 or equivalent education and be provincially licensed or certified after completion of a training course, usually 10 months long.

Nursing orderlies, on the other hand, "generally have no such qualification requirements to meet and they are given in-service training."

Yet, the Commission was told of situations in which nursing orderlies got higher pay than nursing assistants.

That the federal government has seen fit to wipe out this discrimination in agencies and hospitals within its jurisdiction, should set an example for others to follow.

Another federal government move of interest to women, and that also received scant publicity in the news, was ratification of the ILO Convention on Equal Pay, toward the end of last year.

Reclassification of Nurses Step Forward

This International Labor Organization Convention 100, adopted in 1951, promotes the principle that there shall be no discrimination on the basis of sex in the remuneration payable to male and female workers for work of equal value.

By June, 1971, it had been ratified by 71 countries. However, Canada, owing to lack of unanimity in the provinces at that time, was not one of them.

In November, 1971, the Prime Minister wrote to the first ministers of all 10 provinces, informing them, once again, of the federal government's desire to ratify the convention. And requesting confirmation that legislation in each province was compatible with the provisions of the convention.

By April, 1972, seven provinces had officially informed the federal government that the obligations of the convention were being met, and that they would consent to ratification. Shortly after, the three others also agreed.

With the result that on October 26, 1972, the federal minister of labor announced that through the secretary of state for external affairs, an instrument of ratification would be deposited with the ILO at Geneva.

Much of the credit for both these federal government decisions must go to responsible national women's organizations which tenaciously solicit reforms at both provincial and federal levels.

It is these organizations (as the Royal Commission on the Status of Women report points out) that never cease to urge ratification of United Nations and ILO Conventions relating to women.

Estate taxes, jury duty and penal reform are but a few of the other matters on which they have approached governments.

Not only have they been instrumental in bringing about reform, the report says, "but they have served the role of keeping governments informed of women's views on current affairs."

Boxes For Shelves

Providing storage for children's belongings so the rooms stay neat is the parent's problem, because most youngsters not only lack the ability to organize, but could care less.

Here is a boy's room, by Suzanne Faulkner, A.I.D., where clutter goes behind closed doors in the base cabinets, easily accessible to the youngster, and surface neatness abounds. Instead of conventional shelves, colorful boxes, each 12-inches deep, display books and treasures. The assorted widths range from 10-inches to 30-inches, and the heights, from 12-inches to 28-inches. Top edges of the top row line up perfectly, and the same goes for the sides. All was worked out on paper first for best placement.

Cabinet below offers ideas, too. A 20-inch knee space makes this section into a desk. The 30x48-inch table is the same 26½-inch height as the desk area, so that the young owner can swivel from one work area to another, and when two wish to work together, the partner can use the opposite side of the table.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe I am actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter. My husband just left for "Bosses Night" and I'm sitting here with red eyes.

"Bosses Night" is a once-a-year affair, which features dinner, live music, and no spouses! My husband thinks it's nice. I think it stinks!

I told my husband that if my work had a similar function, he would strongly object to my going, and to make him happy I would stay home.

He said I was all upset over nothing. Am I? How would

DEAR SEEING: I would get together with a few of the other "bosses' wives" and treat myself to the best entertainment in town.

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this girl for a year or so. Things were pretty tight between us. We were supposed to go ice skating last week, but something came up and I absolutely could not make it. I didn't want my girl to sit home, so I asked my best friend to take her.

Well, he took her all right. It turned out he took her skating on Wednesday, to dinner on Thursday, to play tennis on Friday, and to a drive-in movie on Sunday. He would have taken her out Saturday night, too, but he had to work.

I didn't expect this to happen because we were such good friends. I thought I could trust him. What should I do? —Don DEAR DON: Start looking for another girl. But don't blame your friend. If your girl was really "your" girl, she wouldn't have been so easily lured away.

DEAR ABBY: Your computer date girl who was taken for $295 by a phony dating bureau is all wrong. Even though her contract contained phrases like "cannot guarantee" and "whenever possible," they did guarantee some effort on their part, and they are indeed liable for this effort.

By analogy, a medical doctor may state honestly that he cannot guarantee the success of a given treatment or operation. Now, if said doctor performs honestly and fails, that's one thing. But if he merely fails to perform, or performs negligently, that's something else again.

The date bureau agreed to do certain things, and if they did not fulfill their promised obligations, they are nothing but "sweet-sue-able" — and the sooner we sue this kind of "sue-age" the better. —J.D.C.

Everybody needs an adequate daily intake of minerals and vitamins, to build healthy bodies and to stay healthy.

The four-page dispatch, The Addition of Vitamins and Minerals to Foods, shows the minimum and maximum amounts of nutrient that may be added by manufacturers to certain popular foods. It also lists the recommended intake for children and adults.

For instance, a 12-year-old boy who drinks 30 ounces of skim milk with added vitamin A and D, gets 80 per cent of his recommended daily requirement of vitamin A and 75 per cent of the necessary vitamin D.

A 124-pound woman who consumes four ounces of a fruit drink with added vitamin C obtains about two-thirds of her recommended daily intake. And a 138-pound man who eats one ounce of enriched breakfast cereal, gets two-thirds of his recommended daily intake of this mine, riboflavin, niacin and iron.

When you buy apple, grape or pineapple juice, select the one with added vitamin C. If you look for margarine, buy a brand that contains vitamins A and D.

But don't worry too much about added vitamins and minerals. If you serve a wide variety of foods, your family will get all the nutrients they need.

Childbirth at Home: A Trend Meets Resistance

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Women who want to have their babies delivered in the familiar confines of their own home will run into roadblocks.

But a recent trend, which emphasizes more education and less anaesthetic for childbirth points towards more home deliveries.

But the medical profession says it isn't equipped to deal effectively with home-born babies.

Dr. W. G. McClure, registrar of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons, says the operation is easy if everything goes well, but it's the risk factor — the chance that something might go wrong — that steers doctors away from the practice.

Home deliveries are left up to the individual doctor's discretion, he added.

"Because the North American culture has considered it a surgical procedure, doctors haven't been educated to perform deliveries at home."

Prenatal-class teachers in Victoria hospitals, however, say more and more women want to deliver at home.

"Women want to keep birth a family thing," one nurse said. "And delivering at home is the best way to do it. It's the next step (after prenatal classes) to the total experience of birth. Couples want the experience."

but not willing to take the risk.

"Some of them had good reasons: They felt there wasn't enough equipment available to deal with an emergency that might arise. Others mentioned the time factor. They are extremely busy and there's the difficulty of predicting when the baby will arrive."

Although the Victorian Order of Nurses will agree to come to the home and look after a mother before and after the baby is born, the service is available only if a doctor has agreed to attend the delivery.

Husband Helped

Determined Mrs. Nelson gave birth to her daughter at home anyway. Her husband, a child psychologist, assisted. The experience was a first for both of them and the couple depended entirely on what they had learned from books and prenatal classes.

"It was tremendous," said Mrs. Nelson. "Mother and children don't have to be separated; the family can participate and it's just nice to be with everyone."

"A lot of mothers I've met in childbirth classes are enthusiastic about doing the same thing."

A smiling baby Zara, freshly delivered by her father, wasn't the end of Mrs. Nelson's story. Complications arose and they could have been serious if the Nelsons hadn't gotten to the hospital on time.

The B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons is aware deliveries, like the Nelsons' pre-planned home birth, exist. "But we consider them emergency cases, until the number increases," said McClure.

"And that might well happen. The higher cost of hospital care alone might be impetus enough."

It costs about $60 a day for a bed on the maternity wards of both city hospitals. "And when you add the cost of the attending general practitioner, the hospital cost of having a baby is upwards of $1,000," estimated a nurse at Victoria General Hospital.

The nurse, a registered midwife trained in Britain who prefers to remain unidentified, said the situation leaves two alternatives; licensing the practice of midwives and provision for an ambulatory back-up service in case emergencies do occur.

"There's a great future for home delivery, but attitudes are going to have to change before it can happen," she said.

"There is a big risk in having a baby at home if a back-up service isn't available within two minutes," she said.

"I know quite a few mothers who have ended up coming here (Victoria General) in a big rush, because something went wrong."

"If all goes well, anybody can deliver a baby, but taking the risk is stupid," she said.

Flying Squad

Doctors can't advocate home deliveries when a woman could bleed to death in the time it takes for an ambulance to get to the home, she said.

That's where the back-up service, called a flying squad in Britain, could effectively enter the picture.

There, if there's any risk predicted, mothers are not permitted to deliver at home and the first-born is usually delivered in the hospital.

Each area is covered by a flying squad and when complications arise, the midwife, or doctor, phones a number. Within two or three minutes an ambulance, complete with anaesthetist, midwife and doctor arrive at the location complete with blood supplies and equipment.

Another alternative, in her view, is licensing midwives.

"Midwives (some 70 per cent of the obstetrics nursing staff at Victoria General alone are trained midwives, usually from Britain) will have to be accepted by the profession before we can get anywhere."

"To do that a post graduate course to train graduate nurses would have to be set up. But there's no point in having a course unless what we're going to do is accepted by the profession," she said.

"Doctors won't accept us and to my knowledge most of them have never worked with midwives."

"They'll openly admit we are capable, but do nothing about it, when most of us have delivered more babies than any of them."

RN's Recognize

The average general practitioner, she said, delivers between three and 12 babies a year, and "we were doing that many a day."

The Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia — which has no available statistics on the number of midwives in the province — will credit midwives as having post-graduate training. But it is worth no increment to their salary.

Overcrowded maternity beds aren't an argument for home-born babies however, as spokesmen from both hospitals quote an occupancy rate of about 72 per cent, caused, they say, by a steadily declining birth rate.

"We have to take the whole problem one step at a time. We're working at it slowly," the midwife spokesman said.

"We've got it accepted now that mother and baby belong together after delivery and patients are starting to realize they have a right to further knowledge about childbirth."

"Then slowly, full knowledge of child-birth will start."

Taboos Haunt French

By BORIS KIDEL

PARIS — France is slowly beginning to emancipate itself from its age-old sexual taboos.

In what amounts to a revolutionary decision in a country where official hypocrisy about sex is still rampant, the education ministry has decided that the time has come to introduce sex instruction in secondary schools. At the same time the government has decided to set up an advisory council "for sexual information, birth control and family education."

These long overdue decisions have been taken in face of bitter opposition from large sections of the French establishment. Abroad, the French may have the reputation of being lax and frivolous about sex but in fact, due to religious and conservative influences, society here remains still largely under the constraint of Victorian taboos.

It was the case of Nicole Mercier, a 28-year-old philosophy teacher in a Belfort lycée, that finally forced the Education Ministry to face up to the sex problem. At the request of her pupils 16 girls and three boys aged between 17 and 19, Mme. Mercier allowed a sex education pamphlet entitled Let's Learn How to Make Love, Let's Learn to Have Fun to be read in her class.

Its author, Dr. Jean Carpentier, has been struck off the Medical Register for one year for writing it. The contents are explicit but not remotely pornographic. None of Mme. Mercier's pupils objected when the pamphlet was read and discussed in the philosophy class. However, one of the parents, a lieutenant-colonel, took legal action and Mme. Mercier found herself charged with an offence against public decency.

Her case not only caused a furore in Belfort, where teachers and pupils staged protest strikes, but it won nationwide publicity. Suddenly French parents seemed to realize that something was drastically wrong with an education system where sex was taboo while the world was becoming increasingly permissive. Young people, most parents' associations agreed, needed proper guidance for sexual behavior in today's society.

It was probably the public outcry of sympathy for Mme. Mercier which persuaded the Belfort magistrate investigating her case to drop all charges against her.

The very next day the Education Ministry announced that from next autumn school-children from the age of 11 onwards would receive instruction on "reproduction" within the framework of their normal biology classes.

"The Education Ministry," an official statement said, "is aware of the difficulties which teachers encounter with young people who live in a world where morals are much freer than in the past and where eroticism is shamefully exploited for commercial purposes. These young people are liable to become very vulnerable if they are not properly prepared for their future family life."

The exact nature of the planned sex instruction is yet to be defined. "Young people are not interested in anatomical illustration," Mme. de Boissieu, the head of a progressive parents' association, said in a recent TV debate.

"What interests is how to make love satisfactorily, how to avoid venereal disease, how to react to masturbation and homosexuality." In the same debate the philosopher

Francois Chatelet complained that French children were taught how to become good citizens and effective contributors to economic growth but they remained uninstructed on how to become good lovers.

Under present conditions sex education in schools is unlikely to be very illuminating. First, the Federation of National Education, the largest teachers' association, pointed out, outdated laws must be removed from the penal code so that teachers are protected against a repetition of the Mercier affair.

The bitter Parliamentary debate about the new advisory council on sex information revealed the degree of resistance to sex emancipation still existing among members of the French Establishment. The council will hardly be subversive: its main functions will be to coordinate the work of family planning and sex education centres.

Five years ago the National Assembly abrogated the 1920 law banning the sale of contraceptives and publicity about birth control. But since then virtually nothing has been done to implement the new legislation and to inform French women about birth control.

DIETITIANS BECOME SUSPICIOUS

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) —

There is a crisis of confidence among some dietitians over the federal government's control of food and drug qualities, a spokesman for the health and welfare department claims.

Margaret Pope, director of educational services in the department's health protection branch, told 100 nurses and dietitians there is "a general suspicion" about food additives but these chemicals are carefully controlled.

"There is no way additives can be used at the whim of the manufacturer," she said, but added that much of the information used by the government is supplied by the manufacturers themselves.

"There is no way you could, on our budget, check into every food," she urged nutritionists to counter food faddism that leads to a misinformed public, but she acknowledged that food writers like Adele Davis spark research efforts by the government.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

New Light on Smoking Dangers

It happens to talk about the dangers of smoking to a few lay people, some of them are likely to tell me that they are satisfied that the statistics are not sufficient to show that smoking cigarettes can produce cancer of the lungs, or that tobacco smoking of any kind can produce cancers here and there in several parts of the body.

In they tell me of someone they know who never smoked a day in his life, and died of lung cancer.

But it might influence some of these people if they could read a release sent by the New York State Department of Health.

State Health Commissioner, Dr. Hollis Ingraham, reported the results of a study of 4,991 members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Medical Society of New York. The women were questioned about their own smoking habits and those of their husbands.

Dr. Ingraham learned that "Smoking has become a personal 'no-no' for almost three-fourths of the physicians in New York state, and more than 60 per cent of their wives."

It was noted that smokers tend to be married to smokers, and non-smokers tend to be married to non-smokers or former smokers. Nearly 54 per cent of the physicians' wives who stopped smoking said they quit for reasons other than a health warning, family request, or participation in the anti-smoking programs.

About 13 per cent responded to a physician's warning, while 12 per cent listed multiple reasons for quitting. Of those wives still smoking, almost 27 per cent said they would like to stop. Nearly 40 per cent were undecided.

Another survey was reported concerning the smoking habits of Florida physicians. Drs. J. Fulgram, M. Groover, Jr., A. Williams, and W. Braatz studied the smoking habits of 5,736 Florida physicians in 1972.

Researchers learned that 37 per cent of the physicians never smoked cigarettes; 45 per cent smoked cigarettes previously but have now quit, and 18 per cent are now smoking them.

'Barbaric' Oakalla Under Fire

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

An NDP backbencher offered his services to the provincial government Thursday — as a jail breaker.

Alberni MLA Robert Skelly said he hopes the commission inquiring into the provincial corrections branch will recommend the demolition of the Oakalla prison farm at Burnaby, and added:

"If the attorney-general needs someone to hammer down the first wall of that barbaric institution, I'm not a member of the Opposition but I will be perfectly willing to wield a hammer and wrecking bar in that case."

Skelly told the legislature on the final day of the throne speech debate that he wondered at the thought which had gone into the design and operation of such an "inflexible, ineffective, dehumanizing institution."

He was equally unable to understand the "medieval thinking" of the Social Credit government which had maintained it for the past 20 years.

"They cannot say, like the people who lived in the shadow of Dachau and Auschwitz, that they didn't know what was going on in there. They knew it and they remained silent."

"They knew that until about five years ago the whole in-

... volunteer jail breaker

situation was crawling with cockroaches. They knew that the very bricks of the building were permeated with the stench of 60 years of close human habitation.

"They knew it was a school of crime and a breeding ground of drug abuse and homosexuality. They knew it and they did nothing."

Skelly said institutions such as Oakalla fail utterly in providing a deterrent to crime or in "correcting" offenders. Inmates who leave them are "permanently scarred," having lost touch with family, friends and those who might help them adjust to becoming good citizens.

He believes some offenders should never be sent to jail and, also, that there are some who require such a high level of supervision they should never be released.

"But there should be varying levels of custody in between, from day paroles through work releases and weekend sentences to halfway houses and conditional releases," he said.

These forms of supervision and support can only be prescribed by people who are trained and experienced in analysis and modification of human behavior. For this reason I think that judges, who are trained to determine on laws and fact the conduct of trials, should never be allowed to pass sentence on people."

Firms Deny Pressure

VANCOUVER (CP) — Representatives of MacMillan Bloedel, Canadian Forest Products and Forest Industries Relations sent a telegram to Labor Minister William King Thursday denying union charges that MacMillan Bloedel was preventing settlement of an International Woodworkers-of-America strike at a Canadian Forest Products mill here.

The IWA has been on strike for four months at the Hunting-Merritt mill and MacMillan Bloedel's Red Band shingle mill. IWA local president Syd Thompson had sent a telegram to King and Resources Minister Bob Williams Wednesday saying that Canadian Forest Products could not agree to the union's demand for a shorter work day "because of pressures from the rest of the industry."

The telegram said both forest companies had separately advised the union "they are prepared to meet and to make a further offer, but will not agree to a reduction in the standard industry eight-hour day."

NDP Policy Blueprint Passes First Hurdle

The two-week throne speech debate in the legislature wound up in predictable fashion Thursday, with the three opposition parties attempting — unsuccessfully — to reject the NDP government's first policy blueprint.

After Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall, the government's closing speaker, had unleashed a few parting shots at the official Social Credit opposition, the motion approving the throne speech was easily carried by 35 votes to 16.

The five Liberals and two Conservatives voted with the Socials, as they had earlier in the debate on non-confidence motions.

Throughout the two weeks of debate, opposition speakers had consistently slammed the government for presenting what they termed a "hollow" speech from the throne, devoid of substance or any positive declarations of action to meet the province's pressing problems — particularly unemployment.

BUDGET PROMISE

But, in his closing words, Hall indicated that those steps, or some of them would be outlined in the budget to be brought down today.

Promising that the government was dedicated to "real change, real responsiveness and real responsibility," Hall called the question on the motion and added: "Tomorrow we can see the first part of this journey unfold."

Hall refuted opposition claims that the NDP government is against growth per se.

"We are against growth for growth's sake," he said. "The opposition, however, believes that economic and industrial development must come at any cost."

SHORT YARDSTICK

The former Social Credit government had used productivity as its only yardstick, Hall said. For that reason it had neglected such vital issues as chronic care for the aged, "because it didn't enhance B.C.'s contribution to the Gross National Product."

He said the former government, too, had "measured Confederation solely against the economic yardstick and wondered out loud whether they should stay in."

Hall, who is also responsible for the travel industry department, told the house he has instigated a complete reorganization of the department to make the best use of staff and also to compile adequate statistical material.

He said he found on taking over the department a "total absence" of research and data, but this is now going ahead and one of the main objectives is to compile figures on hotel occupancy rates in various parts of the province.

BASIC RESEARCH

Once that is completed, he said, the department hopes to embark on "basic research" aimed at showing the future planning and development of the industry as a whole.

He gave notice that before too long the legislature will have to debate "the whole question of tourism," and its future in B.C.

Hall said the department has changed the format of the annual promotion in California, which has been used to entice tourists in the province from that part of the U.S. He said he has ordered that the "junketing is finished" in that respect.

The minister also promised a new policy of help and encouragement for the community recreation branch, which had been "discouraged and starved" by the previous administration.

Jim Chabot (SC—Columbia River) lambasted the government for its "callous attitude" in laying off more than 500 employees of the department of highways because the department's estimates had not allowed for their continued employment.

Chabot, former labor minister in the Social government, said the government "has no heart or feeling for these people" and that the government's excuses so far have been "phony, deliberate and feeble." To lay off so many people at a time when unemployment is at its highest level ever is an indication that the government "lacks compassion," Chabot said.

He criticized Labor Minister Bill King for taking so long to establish the planned commission of inquiry into B.C. labor legislation, saying the NDP-oriented B.C. Federation of Labor is attempting to "scuttle" the commission by attacking the people who were intended to serve on it.

Chabot attacked Premier Barrett for saying in the throne speech that the government would create 1,000 new jobs in the civil service when the civil service commission's annual report for 1972 showed that there had been 1,471 new jobs created in the previous year.

"What about the other 471," he asked, adding that the government will actually be cutting back on growth in the civil service if it sticks to the 1,000 new jobs.

PEOPLE'S AFFAIRS

Vancouver Centre NDP MLA Emery Barnes urged the government to end the "make-do administrative practices" concerning people's affairs which he said had characterized the previous administration.

The emphasis must be shifted, he said, to bring about "a more equitable balance between people things and material things."

One way of doing that would be to establish immediately a ministry of human rights, serving the interests of men and women alike, of all colors and classes.

"There would be no special favors, no special deals, but there would be equity and justice for all" under such a commission, Barnes said.

In his maiden speech to the legislature, ex-football player Barnes dealt more with philosophical arguments, simply expressed, than with specific problems in society. But he did single out for special attention the problems of the elderly, particularly those who find themselves exploited by unscrupulous landlords and others.

Senior citizens are too often the victims of "ruthless" people who "don't care about anything except making money at all costs," he said.

"If they (the exploiters) want to play ball, fine, we'll play ball, too. But we are responsible for regulating the game," Barnes said amid desk-thumping applause from all sides of the house.

There was some laughter when Barnes asked fellow MLAs if they had ever wondered why women were becoming ever more impatient and distrustful, "not to mention hostile."

This trend, he said, is only part of a much deeper problem in society, one which embraces the native people of Canada, disenfranchised youth, immigrants and those who are socially and physically deprived and alienated.

Quoting the old saying, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, he urged the government to apply that argument to programs which could attack society's problems at the roots and perhaps prevent much of the expensive work after-the-fact which is now undertaken by the department of rehabilitation and social improvement.

Barnes, who got a warm reception when he stood up to speak, said the reason he had not chosen to address the house before was because "I am a somewhat deliberate type and I wanted to find out what's going on before opening my mouth."

However, he felt he had now "got the tiger by the tail," and he had decided that "as I am stuck here for quite a few years I might as well do something."

Newspaper Adopts 5-Day Week

PENTICTON (CP) — The Herald this week will discontinue its Saturday edition and go on a Monday-to-Friday publishing schedule.

Publisher G. J. Rowland said the decision to publish five days a week followed labor negotiations and projections of "such higher costing in the immediate future as to make the retrenchment imperative."

Other five-day-a-week newspapers in B.C. are Alberni Valley Times in Port Alberni, Prince George Citizen, Prince Rupert News and Trail Times.

SHELFORD LEAVES JOB AS CLERK OF VILLAGE

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) — Former Social Credit agriculture minister Cyril Shelford has resigned as clerk in this central British Columbia village after less than a month in the post.

Shelford, 51, is believed to have resigned for medical reasons. He now is in St. John's Hospital at Vanderhoof for rest and treatment of a shoulder injury suffered in a demonstration in New Westminster last June.

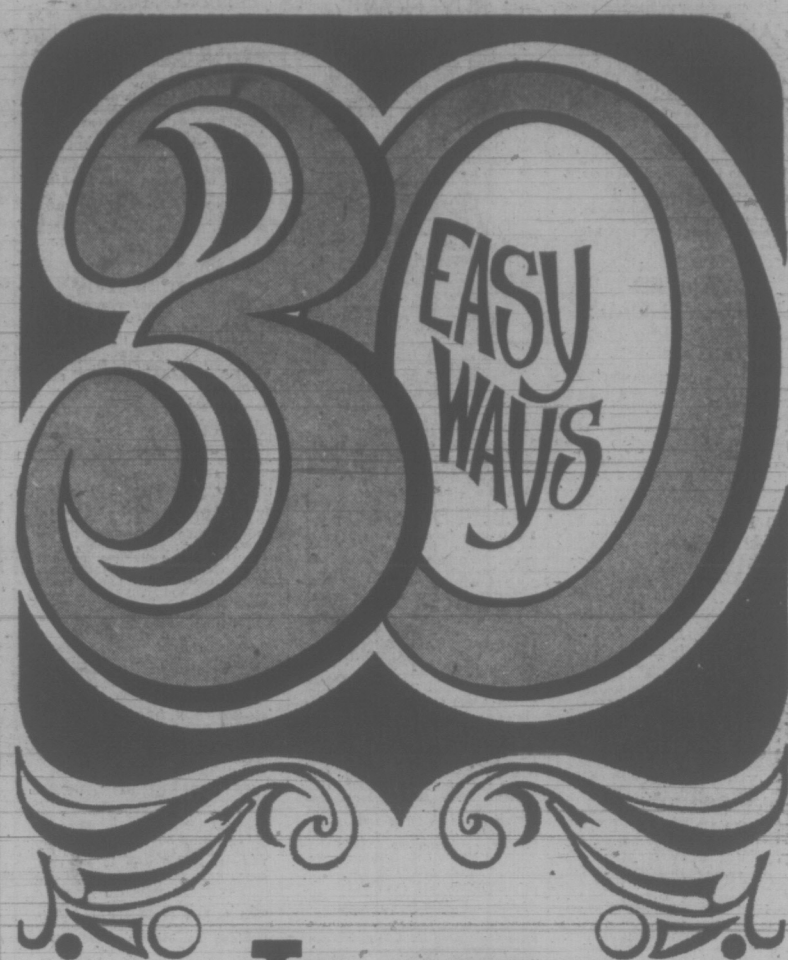

The former minister suffered a broken shoulder bone and bruises when struck by a length of wood during an anti-cabinet demonstration. Mayor Robert Colthorp of Fort St. James said Thursday Shelford requires regular therapy for the injury that cannot be obtained here.

Shelford represented the Omineca constituency in the provincial legislature for 20 years until defeated in the Aug. 30 election by Douglas Kelly of the New Democratic Party. Fort St. James, about 80 miles northwest of Prince George, is in the Omineca riding.

Colthorp said the former minister was under severe mental strain during the last month, adapting to his new position. He said Shelford was not familiar with village accounting procedures. He said he's sure Shelford "would have made it."

"We were ready to help him if he wanted to take a course," he said. Colthorp said Shelford had been commuting between Fort St. James and his home in Victoria and decided of his own accord to resign. He will remain on the village payroll until his replacement, Donald Spink, arrives from Squamish Feb. 19.

Forest Study Proposed By Liberal

A royal commission should be established to study forestry in B.C., the legislature was told Thursday.

The call came from Garde Gardom (L — Vancouver-Point Grey) who told the house it has been too long since the last commission on forestry, the Sloan Commission in 1955-56.

Gardom said there have been "enormous" changes in forestry practice since that commission met or its predecessor in 1944-45. Part of this change has been the gradual takeover of the smaller operators by larger companies.

"The little operator has become an economic anachronism in the forest industry," Gardom said. "Perhaps that is inevitable, but we should find out what can be done about it."

Gardom also said forest operations which are domestically-owned should receive some compensation from the government to enable them to compete on a more equitable basis with foreign-owned enterprises. If some kind of incentive had been provided in the past, he said, many operations would probably have stayed in domestic hands instead of going to foreign buyers.

The government should establish a forestry commission with broad terms of reference, he said, studying all aspects of the industry, including taxation, reforestation, flexibility of wood use, licensing.

On another aspect of forestry policy, Robert Skelly (NDP — Alberni) urged the government to take over some of the functions entrusted "by default" to the forest companies by the previous Social Credit administration, including fish and wildlife management, housing, transportation, recreation and other services associated with their operations.

He said he knows the companies would "willingly" part with these functions, but he is not so sure they would be willing to pay for them if the government took them over, although they should be required to do so.

'Company Town' Scrutiny Urged

He also suggested the government give "close attention" to company-dominated towns and take over vacant land in those towns which is now controlled by the companies. In most cases the land had been acquired for about $100 an acre, and it should be bought back at the same price.

Skelly said he would like to see the whole question of industrial concentration in the forest industry submitted to a commission of inquiry, because he believes there is strong evidence to indicate that private monopolies are causing society as a whole "tremendous economic harm."

Noting that there are three large forest companies in his own riding — Tahsis Company, MacMillan Bloedel and B.C. Forest Products — which wield great influence on the economic and political life of every community, he said: "I believe this is a dangerous situation because corporate priorities are not the priorities of the people in those communities and . . . the needs of the people, their priorities, are the paramount concerns of this government."

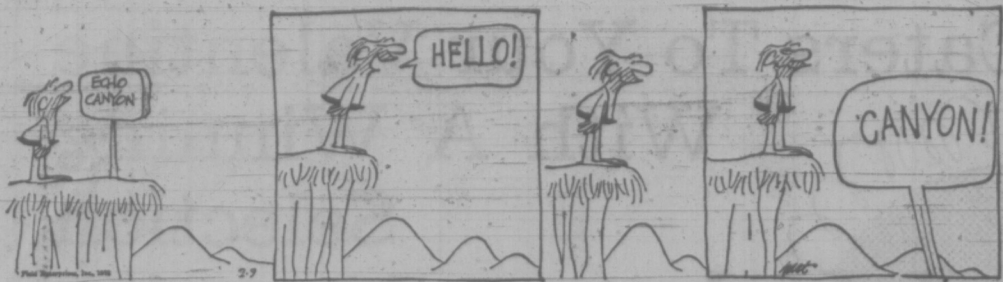

Skelly said in the Nootka Sound, Kyuquot Sound and Barkley Sound areas restricted access logging roads are the only means of ground travel for people and freight. If the company changes its cutting area the roads could be abandoned or poorly maintained.

Similarly, if a company decided to close its operation or cut down on production near a municipality, that municipality might end up a "ghost town" — as happened to Ocean Falls.

In many company-dominated communities the people are "extremely unhappy," Skelly said.

"To their credit, the corporations attempt to solve the people's problems. But because of management's limited understanding of problems that aren't production or profit-related, solutions are not always possible."

You Should Grow Plants That Are Suited to Area

While avoiding trouble in the garden may not be your idea of making a success of the project, it does help in the first few years to grow the plants most suited to the soil you find on your plot of ground.

Later, with experience gained from a few years of successes and failures, you will know how to change the soil to suit almost any plant.

You will also have changed the climate of the plot by the presence of permanent plants and the cultivation of the soil.

In a general way, most flowering deciduous shrubs will do very well in a heavy, moisture retentive soil. This means in three years you will have colorful spring and summer permanent plants to help make a garden picture.

Spiraeas of several kinds, forsythias, roses, buddleias (both spring and summer though these are almost evergreen here), these will give you a beginning with a minimum of trouble.

A heavy soil means a slower start for the shrubs for they take a couple of years to get their roots into the soil. Give them a well prepared planting hole filled with humus. During summer prevent the surface from drying and cracking open by laying humus material of any kind on top — half-rotted compost, dry grass, old hay or manure, spent mushroom soil or brewer's mash.

As well as the shrubs mentioned, most daisy type perennial plants will grow in a heavy soil. Their flowers will provide your garden with color and fragrance during the years spent improving the soil and working on the overall design.

Perennial asters make a splendid show from late August into fall, as do also Heleniums and Gaillardias.

In spring, yellow Dornicum and Bellis (English daisies) are daisies to bloom profusely, while Erigerons, Coreopsis and dwarf Solidagos (Goldenrods) take over for summer. Supposing you start with a sandy soil. This you find easier to work than clay, but your problem is to hold moisture during late spring and throughout summer.

The long range remedy is the same as for improving a clay soil — quantities of rough humus.

Meanwhile grow shallow rooting annual and perennial plants both flowers and vegetables, remembering that the more humus you put into the soil the less frequently will watering be needed in summer.

Coniferous evergreens, dogwoods, maples, magnolias offer a choice of trees for gravelly soils so long as you add sufficient humus in the planting holes to get the roots started.

The further addition of ample leafmould, composted material and the coarse peatmoss allows the planting of rhododendrons, heathers and the whole range of acid loving shrubs as soon as you have changed the climate from a bare open plot to a garden environment.

You may say an artificial environment if you will, but a garden is an artificial congregation of living plants living together in a semblance of harmony.

Back in 1965, Omar Sharif did not win an Academy Award for his performance as "Dr. Zhivago." But had bridge-playing performance been one of the criteria for selection, it would have been a different story.

In the World Bridge Olympiad of 1964, 29 nations participated. One of these was the United Arab Republic, whose team was captained by Sharif. Here is an example of his bridge talent. The deal arose in a rubber-bridge game in Hollywood. Sharif was sitting South.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

West opened the spade king, which was won by dummy's ace. Sharif promptly led the jack of hearts off the board, and East, after a few seconds' hesitation, chose to play a low heart. As is evident, Sharif's queen won the trick.

From here in, the sailing was smooth. The king of trumps was led next, followed by a trump to dummy's ace. The king of hearts was laid down next. East covered with the ace and Sharif trumped. Dummy was then re-entered by ruffing the six of clubs. On the high 10 of hearts, Sharif discarded his losing spade.

Actually, Sharif wound up making all 13 tricks. After discarding his losing spade, he trumped a heart in the closed hand. He then led the club queen. When West followed with a low club (not that it mattered what West played), a spade was tossed from dummy, and the queen won the trick. It now became a routine matter to ruff the jack of clubs and claim the rest of the tricks.

Had East played the ace of hearts at trick two — when Sharif led dummy's jack — the slam contract would have been defeated, for East would then have led a spade to his partner's jack, for the setting trick.

But from East's point of view, he thought that Sharif didn't have the heart queen, for if he did, why the lead of the jack from dummy? Had Sharif led a low heart off the board, East might well have put up the ace, figuring that South was trying to "steal" a trick with his concealed queen.

FARM FREEZE SUPPORTED

KAMLOOPS (CP) — British Columbia's deputy minister of agriculture told 200 interior ranchers they will kill their industry and way of life if they take an unneighbourly stand against the government's pending farmland preservation legislation.

"I think we are all for the preservation of agriculture," Sig Peterson said. "But let's not commit agricultural suicide by saying we won't negotiate on any other basis."

Peterson said the government had analysed the most progressive attempts at preserving farmland in California, New York and Hawaii and "we have yet to find a program with the safeguards that we desire."

He said in California and New York, land set aside for agricultural use comes up for regular review after a limited number of years.

Development firms or speculators buy the farmland, hold it until review and then exert pressure to rezone it.

Peterson said the freeze on the sale of farmland was brought in to save farmland more in the Okanagan than in the Fraser Valley. "That area is locked into the tree fruit industry. In other words, that is the best use for the land in that area for both farmers and the industry."

Many ranchers at the meeting said they agreed with the freeze, one saying the pending legislation is 20 years too late.

Tug Engine Stalled Just Before Sinking

VANCOUVER (CP) — The main engine of the tug Hero Straits was apparently stalled when the tug sank in a gale near Point Roberts, Feb. 27, 1972, the commission of inquiry was told Thursday.

L. T. Midford, marine surveyor for the ministry of transport, said he examined the engine after the tug was raised Nov. 12 and found that the crankshaft was bent, the main bearing shells were scored and scratched and the shaft clearance was above normal tolerance.

He said the engine was in good condition and could have been re-started after it stalled. There was no evidence of overheating or seizure of the pistons.

Midford said that the emergency alarm switch had been on when the ship sank, giving evidence of engine failure.

The vessel was under engine-room control at the time, and the last movement registered was to "put the engine into neutral."

The five crew members aboard died when the tug went down.

Marine surveyor J. A. Smith testified that he had found scrape marks on the bilge keel on the starboard side, from the centre of the vessel aft to the counter stern. Part of the bilge keel had been gouged down to the bare metal.

To Tell the Truth?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips said Thursday that reports of his attempts to oust city planning director Bill Graham "are not correct." But the mayor refused to explain how the reports, verified by five aldermen, are not accurate.

"I'd love to tell the truth. I'm dying to tell the truth. But I don't talk about in-camera meetings," Phillips told reporters.

Downtown Ban

VANCOUVER (CP) — Earl Jeffrey Lillio, also known as Lillian Lillio, was given a six-month suspended sentence Thursday on a charge of soliciting. Provincial Court Judge John Layton also ordered Lillio to stay out of the downtown area for the term of the sentence.

Dam Level Hif

ROBSON (CP) — A group of residents here, near Castlegar, have sent a letter to the International Joint Commission protesting the higher storage level of water behind the Keenleyside dam on the Arrow Lakes. The group said that when the dam was built, British Columbia Hydro was told the level of water behind the structure was not to exceed 1,444 feet. Last year, B.C. Hydro received permission to raise the level a further two feet but has raised the water three feet, causing erosion of shoreline and deposits of debris on beaches.

Lawyer Suspended

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eric Greenfield, a Vancouver lawyer, has had his licence to practise suspended for three months for converting $160 from a trust fund for his own use. Greenfield was suspended by the Law Society of British Columbia when his certificate came up for renewal Jan. 1. He was also ordered to pay $1,500 for the cost of the society's inquiry.

Sit-In in 16th Day

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The sit-in at the Indian affairs department office here entered its 16th day Thursday with supporters of chief-elect Norman Larue submitting affidavits to Ottawa. "Former band chief Gus Gottfriedson protested LaRue's election because band members allegedly living off the reserve voted in the election."

8 Years for Rape

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry Ronald Fugard, 25, was sentenced to eight years in prison Thursday when he appeared in British Columbia Supreme Court charged with the rape last September of a 32-year-old West Vancouver woman. The sentence is concurrent with a five-year term Fugard is serving for a series of breaking and entering convictions.

Mall Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council's civic development committee refused Thursday to approve part of a planned $30 million shopping and office complex in downtown Vancouver.

The committee turned down a part of the project that called for an underground shopping mall to connect with another development across a street.

OTTAWA TAKES BLAME FOR SINKING BARGES

OTTAWA (CP) — The sinking by the federal government of three derelict barges in Okanagan Lake is a "wrong practice" which should not have been followed, Liberal Len Marchand (Kamloops-Cariboo) said in the House Thursday night.

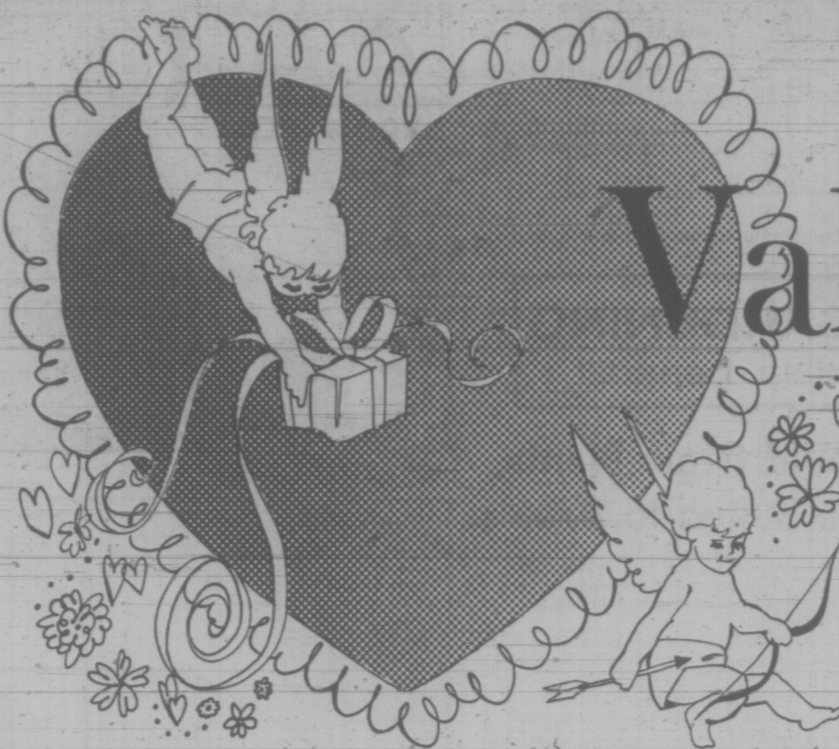

The barges were sunk in accordance with a contract let by the department of public works. They had been beached for several years and were thought to be a hazard. Some claim that sinking them created a pollution hazard.

Marchand said divers have been retained by the works department to clear the barges of potentially hazardous material.

Popular B.C. Telethon Returns

Major international performers Leonard Nimoy (above left) and Blake Emmons (upper right) will return as guest stars on the 1973 Variety Telethon on February 10 and 11.

Telethon will be carried in prime time for the first time this year, on Channel 8 starting at 9 p.m. on Saturday (joined in progress on Channel 6 at 11:15 p.m.), and running through until 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Other guests include fast-rising singing star Gloria Loring (centre right), Bob McGrath (lower right) and Kay Turner. Miss Loring has appeared on numerous variety shows and will be a featured guest on the Paul Horn Show, now being produced in the BCTV Burnaby studios.

Bob McGrath is well known as "Bob" on Sesame Street and as a singer, while Kay Turner will be recognized from her appearances as the singing barmaid on CTV's Pig and Whistle.

Also featured will be many acts by Canadian performers from across Canada.

The Telethon is the major fund-raising function of Tent 47, the Vancouver chapter of Variety Clubs International. The organization raises funds and carries out projects in support of handicapped and underprivileged children.

Variety Club was able to commit $225,000 toward a new Treatment Centre for children in Surrey, British Columbia as a result of last year's Telethon.

MOVIES

Saturday

Gypsy Wildcat (x), on 13 at 10. Maria Montez and Jon Hall star in this 1944 mystery melodrama.

Column South (x), on 13 at noon. Routine Audie Murphy western.

Along the Great Divide (xx), on 5 at 12:30. Kirk Douglas plays a marshal struggling through the Mojave Desert to bring in a prisoner in this 1951 western drama.

Gun Belt (x), on 4 at 1. Routine western drama starring George Montgomery and Tab Hunter.

McHale's Navy Joins the Air Force (xx), on 7 at 2:30. All the regulars including Tim Conway and Joe Flynn but minus McHale (Ernest Borgnine) who is absent from this 1965 comedy.

The Sun Never Sets (xx), on 13 at 4. A British diplomat uncovers an underground radio transmitter ready to incite war in this 1939 melodrama starring Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Basil Rathbone.

Louisa (xx), on 13 at 7:30. A pleasant 1950 romantic comedy starring Ronald Reagan, Piper Laurie and Charles Coburn.

The Professionals (xxxx), on 6 at 8:30. A splendid, old-fashioned western adventure yarn, circa 1917, brilliantly brought to life by an excellent cast that includes Burt Lancaster, Lee Marvin, Jack Palance, Ralph Bellamy and Claudia Cardinale.

A Fistful of Dollars (xx), on 2 at 9. Commonly called a "spaghetti western", this made-in-Italy 1962 adventure yarn stars Clint Eastwood as a silent hero involved in family feuds in old Mexico.

The Andromeda Strain (xxx), on 5 at 9. A 1971 science fiction thriller with an excellent cast that includes two Canadians, Arthur Hill and Kate Reid.

Beauty and the Beast (xxxx), on 9 at 9. Bizarre sets and imaginative photography highlight this 1946 fantasy by poet-film maker Jean Cocteau. Cocteau gives the familiar children's fable a new level of sophistication through the use of living statuary and a significant use of mirrors. Shown with English subtitles.

Jumbo (xx), on 12 at 11. A 1962 musical extravaganza with a circus background and an excellent cast that includes Doris Day, Jimmy Durante and Martha Raye.

Frankenstein's Daughter (x), on 13 at 11. English-made thriller starring John Ashley and Sandra Knight.

Storm in Jamaica (xx), on 4 at 11:45. British-made 1958 drama about a tropic schoolmaster's wife who makes a play for a young teacher starring Virginia McKenna and Bill Travers.

An American Dream (xx), on 5 at 11:45. Stuart Whitman, Eleanor Parker and Janet Leigh star in this 1966 adaptation of Norman Mailer's off-beat novel about a TV commentator marked for death by gangsters.

Those Fantastic Flying Fools (xx), on 2 at 12:15. Turn-of-the-century English-made farce about the launching of the world's first moon rocket. This 1967 comedy stars Terry-Thomas, Burl Ives, Gert Frobe and Hermione Gingold.

Return From the Past (x), on 13 at 12:45. Five strange tales of terror from the other side of the grave starring Lon Chaney, John Carradine and Rochelle Hudson.

CBC Radio Looks at The National Gallery

Come Up And See My Camels is the unusual title of a documentary program about an unusual national art museum — Canada's National Gallery — to be heard on Between Ourselves February 12, at 8:03 p.m. EST on CBC Radio.

The camels (There are three of the life-sized creatures, can be found along with the Canaletto's in the Gallery in Ottawa and are fast becoming as big a standard attraction as the many art historic masterpieces in the collection. They are perhaps typical of the many features that make the Gallery unlike most art museums in the world for its informality and accessibility.

Its director — Jean Sutherland Boggs — along with many other dynamic and innovative curators and administrators, have made it an imposing but not an intimidating institution for Canadians and visitors alike. They describe the Gallery's role and wide-ranging activities, from local to international exhibitions, from restoration, conservation and art historical research to audio-visual art appreciation classes for children.

The National Gallery is unexpectedly much more than meets the eye. The converted office building on Elgin Street is a veritable cultural iceberg where most of the art treasures are not immediately visible and about which the public is generally ignorant.

This documentary attempts, through Jean Boggs and the curators, to reveal some of those hidden treasures and lesser-known activities. In the process, it views the visual arts scene in Canada through the role and involvement of the Gallery, featuring curatorial assessments and a panel with a prominent Canadian artist, art dealer and critic.

Come Up and See My Camels was researched and produced by Alan Yates for Between Ourselves and Radio Canada International.

WE'LL TAKE THE "BUGS" OUT OF YOUR AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION!

There may be one or two minor adjustments that make the difference between carefree operation and "slip or go" driving.

Here's What We Do

1. Road Test — A qualified technician checks the shift points at various speeds, and the progressive action in forward and reverse.
2. Oil Test — Oil pan is removed for visual inspection of level and discoloration, type and amount of residue in pan or on filter.
3. Recommendation — 30% do not require attention; 50% we recommend service outlined by the vehicle's manufacturer; 20% we recommend repairs and give a written estimate.
4. Mechanical Work — YOU decide whether you will have repairs, overhauling, or install an exchange. All work is done by factory-trained personnel.
5. Written Guarantee — 4,000 miles or 90 days 100% parts and labor any place in North America. Plus free service guarantee for 12,000 miles or 12 months, valid at any of our 22 centres in Western Canada.
6. Payment — We take Cheques, Charge, Cash. Also 6, 12, and 14-month payment plan.
7. Time — Free transmission diagnosis takes 15 to 20 minutes. Usually one-day service on transmission repairs. Lo-Cost Canadian-owned shops give you the best service for your money.

DRIVE IN HERE—We Are Transmission Technicians Exclusively

Monday

The Tall Target (xxx), on 4 at 9:30. A tense suspense tale about a detective's efforts to thwart a plot to kill President Lincoln. Starring in this 1951 drama are Dick Powell and Adolphe Menjou.

Magie Town (xx), on 13 at noon. James Stewart and Jane Wyman star in this 1947 comedy.

Ten Seconds to Hell (xx) on 6 and 8 at 12:45. A 1959 drama set in post-Second World War Berlin about a group of men whose specialty is disarming unexploded bombs. Cast includes Jeff Chandler and Jack Palance.

A High Wind in Jamaica (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Excellent 1965 adventure drama with a fine acting cast headed by Anthony Quinn as the captain of a pirate vessel.

Madigan (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. A solid cops-and-robbers tale set in New York City about a police commissioner beset by problems — and the detectives he sends after a thug.

W5 Gains AM Hostess

Carole Taylor, who has been the co-hostess of the CTV Television Network's early morning program Canada AM since the show's premiere in September of last year, moves to the Network's Sunday evening popular and highly-rated news and public affairs program W5 in the near future.

An excellent cast includes Henry Fonda, Richard Widmark and Harry Guardino.

John Goldfarb, Please Come Home (x), on 12 at 7. This off-beat 1964 comedy set in a mythical Arabian principality boasts a fine cast (Shirley MacLaine, Peter Ustinov and Richard Crenna) but it just doesn't work at all.

Unfinished Business (xx), on 13 at 7. A 1941 comedy-romance about a small town girl who comes to New York and falls in love with a millionaire playboy starring Irene Dunne and Robert Montgomery.

The Longest Day (xxx), on 4 at 9. Conclusion of an epic drama about D-Day. (See Sunday evening, same time and channel for details.)

Flesh and Fury (xx), on 13 at 11. Tony Curtis plays a deaf mute who stumbles into boxing and winds up a champion in this 1952 drama that co-stars Jan Sterling and Mona Freeman.

The Corrupt Ones (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. Four adventures seek clues to an ancient treasure in Hong Kong in this 1969 drama that stars Robert Stack and Elke Sommer.

Abe Lincoln in Illinois (xxxx), on 2 at 11:30. Raymond Massey and Ruth Gordon star in this moving, wonderfully acted 1940 film version of the Broadway play about the 16th president's life, his ill-fated love for Ann Rutledge and his marriage to Mary Todd.

The Phantom Planet (x), on 6 at midnight. Routine sci-fi drama.

UFO (x), on 8 at midnight.

Yet another routine sci-fi drama.

Falcon of the Desert (x), on 13 at 12:15. Italian-made adventure yarn.

CBC-TV Quiz Program Tops in B.C.

By CAROL BRADY
Times Staff

Even before CBC-TV's popular quiz show, Reach For The Top arrived in Victoria for its annual Vancouver Island taping session, the tickets were all sold out.

Not an unusual situation for the 12-year veteran program whose consistently high ratings have even managed to surprise Reach For The Top's host and quiz-master, Terry Garner.

"When I was first approached to audition as host, the understanding was that it would only be for a 15-week stint."

Now, eleven seasons later, Garner says it's difficult to believe the show is still on the air.

Patterned after a popular U.S. radio quiz show called College Quiz Bowl, Reach For The Top survived the critical first 15 weeks and continued, privately owned, for another year.

Then in 1962, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation purchased the program. It picked up two more sponsors (who are still with the program today), gained a dedicated viewing audience and has remained successful today, twelve years later.

And, according to the latest CBC ratings in B.C., Reach For The Top is No. 1 in its time period of 7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays on Channel 2.

Garner says he is, "beginning to feel a bit like Robert Donat in Goodbye, Mr. Chips. Many of our early students are now married with families, and this second generation are soon expected to participate in the program."

Much of the success of Reach For The Top must go to Terry Garner. Thoroughly professional, he came to the program after 16 years in radio with experience ranging from announcer, with CKWX in 1949 to Station Manager of CHQM by 1960.

Garner is never completely satisfied with his performance on a show but admits to "a great feeling" with a particular program gains a mounting momentum and the teams are evenly matched.

He adds that Women's Lib hasn't yet filtered down to the high school level but that he would "really enjoy a contest between an all-girls and an all-boys team."

Garner is quick to point out, however, that Reach For The Top is essentially designed to be entertainment and not a reflection of one particular school's academic strength.

The staff of Reach For The Top, including Garner and Tom Shorthouse, law librarian at UBC and judge on the program, contribute about one-third of the questions. The rest come from CBC Toronto and various freelancers who are generally specialists in a particular field. Only sixty percent of each question package is actually used on a show.

The questions cover a vast area of general knowledge including fine arts, French translation and current affairs in addition to the school curriculum.

Both Shorthouse and Garner agree that, "in recent years, there has been an increase in student knowledge," which they feel is a positive reflection of how young people are being taught today.

The tapings held last week in Victoria which brought together such Vancouver Island schools as Nanaimo District Secondary, Oak Bay Senior Secondary, Cowichan Secondary of Duncan and Qualicum Beach Secondary, will be aired in March.

The teams competed for the Zone Championship which carries a $400 scholarship prize and with it the right to enter the B.C. Reach For The Top Championships this Spring. The B.C. Champions receive a $1,500 cash scholarship for their school while the runners-up get $500. The winning team is then off to the National Finals to be held in Ottawa this summer.

Author Profiled On CBC-AM Radio

This Country in the Morning is not only going on the road these days, it's also getting out of the studio. For the first time ever, This Country leaves the studio setting and enters the Centennial Public Library in High River, Alberta to talk to W. O. Mitchell, author of the Jake and the Kid stories and the novel, Who Has Seen The Wind.

Scheduled on Part III of This Country, Friday, February 16, at 11:03 a.m. EST on the CBC Radio network, the program turns out to be a sort of "This is Your Life" of W. O. (Bill) Mitchell who lived for 24 years in the foothills town. He calls the town "an extension of my life" and it was here that he was inspired to create the lovable characters in Jake and the Kid (two versions of which have been broadcast on CBC Radio). "It's important to meet salty individuals as a writer — there is a lion's share of High River in Jake and the Kid," says Mitchell.

Bill Mitchell turns out to be as much of a character as some of his creations. Old friends drop by into the library and chat with host Peter Gzowski about the author as they knew him way back when.

His wife Myrna and son Hugh also join in the storytelling about some of his hilarious escapades.

"Warm, wonderful, self-reliant artistic, forgetful, enthusiastic, introspective, sensitive" are some of the adjectives his friends and family use to describe him. Near the conclusion of the program, Mitchell reads from a first edition of Who Has Seen The Wind.

It's a delightfully entertaining hour, and at the end, Gzowski describes the library as "one of the most pleasant studios I've ever worked in."

Marriage on the Rocks (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Matrimonial mix-ups in Mexico starring Frank Sinatra, Deborah Kerr and Dean Martin.

Never So Few (xx), on 7 at 3:30. Despite a heavy cast (Frank Sinatra, Peter Lawford and Steve McQueen) this 1959 drama is just another Second World War adventure with romantic overtones, in the person of Gina Lollobrigida.

To Hell and Back (xxx), on 13 at 7. Audie Murphy plays himself in this re-enactment of his heroic Second World War career in the infantry.

Short Walk to Daylight (xx), on 8 at 8:30. A 1972 TV-movie that goes into the New York City subway system, where eight earthquake survivors struggle for a way to reach the surface.

Death of a Gunfighter (xx), on 7 at 9. Routine western drama starring Richard Widmark and John Saxon.

The Fortune Cookie (xxx), on 12 at 9. Walter Matthau won an Oscar for his role in this satiric 1965 comedy as he portrays a shy lawyer who connives with his brother-in-law (Jack Lemmon) to institute a phony lawsuit.

Critic's Choice (xx), on 11 at 11. One of Bob Hope's better performances highlights this 1963 comedy about a theatre critic whose wife decides to write a play. Lucille Ball co-stars.

The Sleeping City (xx), on 13 at 11. A 1950 mystery drama set at Bellevue Hospital in New York City and starring Richard Conte and Colleen Gray.

The Bride of Frankenstein (xxx), on 7 at 11:30. For horror fans only is this 1935 sequel to the 1931 classic starring Boris Karloff.

Ferry to Hong Kong (xx), on 12 at 11:30. An excellent cast (Curt Jurgens, Orson Welles and Sylvia Sims) buoys up this slow-moving 1959 melodrama about a waterfront drifter who becomes a hero when the ship he is on is attacked.

Short Walk to Daylight (xx), on 6 at midnight. See earlier for details.

Planet of Blood (x), on 8 at midnight. Sci-fi adventure starring Basil Rathbone and John Saxon.

I Wanted Wings (xx), on 2 at 12:30. An out-dated propaganda drama about three young men taking pre-Second World War air cadet training. Starring in this 1941 movie are Ray Milland, William Holden and Veronica Lake.

Ramrod (xx), on 4 at 1. Joel McCrea and Veronica Lake star in this 1947 western adventure drama about the sheepmen vs. the cattle ranchers in the old west.

Homelid (x), on 7 at 1. A 1961 thriller set in an old mansion and starring Patricia Breslin and Glenn Corbett.

Desert Legion (xxx), on 12 at 1:35. Adventure with the Foreign Legion starring Alan Ladd and Richard Conte.

Hanoi Swap Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Viet Cong and North Vietnam have agreed to release an estimated 144 prisoners of war Sunday, the Pentagon said today.

Defence department spokesman Jerry Friedman said the word was given to U.S. officials today at a meeting of the four-party Joint Military Commission in Saigon.

Some of those to be released in North Vietnam would be sick or wounded, he added.

He said the North Vietnamese would allow an 18-man reception team to land in Hanoi three hours in advance of the release there to prepare for the handover of the POWs.

Exact time of the handover will be worked out Saturday.

Meanwhile, in Pleiku, South Vietnam, a crowd of Vietnamese civilians tossed rocks at a group of Joint Military Commission truce team members arriving to take up their duties today in the Central Highlands town of Ban Me Thuot.

One North Vietnamese officer and two U.S. military personnel were slightly injured. A South Vietnamese military policeman was hurt badly enough to require hospitalization.

In Laos, large numbers of mercenary troops backed by U.S. planes are reported poised today for a major operation to take back as much territory as possible before a ceasefire expected sometime next week.

Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma has ordered a blackout on news of military moves as both the pace of ceasefire negotiations and fighting stepped up.

12-Year Record Food Price Jump

Times News Services

OTTAWA — With a sharp boost from soaring food prices, the consumer price index took its biggest monthly single jump in 12 years during the December-January period, to 144.5 from 143.3, Statistics Canada said today.

In the past 12 months overall food prices have increased 10 per cent. One-fifth of that increase took place in the December-January period.

The food component of the index showed increases in all major items, the statistics bureau said, but the rise was particularly sharp for beef, pork, eggs, fresh vegetables and milk.

In the Commons today Prime Minister Trudeau, facing heavy opposition, said "There will be some measure of relief" in the Feb. 19 budget, and those most affected by the rising costs.

The prime minister didn't mention any particular group of people who would be helped.

The government is considering every way in which it can stop the increase in living costs, Trudeau told Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

So far as food costs are concerned, he hoped to get some insight from the Commons committee now studying the problem.

Base year for the index is 1961. The figures mean it cost $14.45 this month to buy what $14.33 bought in consumer goods in December and what $10 bought in 1961.

Higher housing costs also helped push the index to its new peak. Food and housing are the two most important sectors of the index. Housing accounts for 32 per cent of the consumer's disposable income and food for 27 per cent.

The index showed lesser increases in the health and personal care section, for recreation and reading and for tobacco and alcohol. There were slight drops in clothing and transportation costs.

Beef in January was up 5.8 per cent over December and pork up 2.7 per cent. Egg prices jumped 7.8 per cent and the cost for vegetables, fresh, frozen or canned, advanced 5.4 per cent.

The meat, fish and poultry index in January was more than 15 per cent higher than a year ago. Pork prices alone advanced 28 per cent in the year.

Eggs this month cost 20 per cent more than they did a year ago. The government last spring paid farmers a bonus to kill layers in a move to reduce egg production.

Fresh milk prices rose 3.1 per cent as increases took effect in most Ontario cities and in St. John's, Nfld., Edmonton and Calgary.

Fruit prices rose two per cent on average since December. Since January, 1972, the vegetable index has increased more than 18 per cent and the fruit index 11 per cent.

Lesser price increases were reported for bread, corn flakes, cake mixes, soft drinks, jelly powder, jam, tea and instant coffee. Ground coffee and peanut butter were less expensive in some areas as special prices went into effect and soup, baby food and sugar also showed decreases, the statistics bureau said.

Restaurant charges increased 1.1 per cent in January as higher prices went into effect in many cities.

Costs for housing moved upward with the shelter component advancing 5 per cent and household operating costs ahead 1.5 per cent when compared with December.

Shelter costs increased with an advance of 7 per cent in the cost of owning a home. Main factor in the household operating-cost increase was a rise of 3.9 per cent in the fuel and lighting index as higher prices for electricity arose in Toronto, Hamilton, Ont., Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Calgary.

VEHICLES LEFT MOST POLLUTION

OTTAWA (CP) — Vehicles were responsible for 57 per cent of total air pollution in Canada in 1970, giving off more than 17 million tons of polluting gases and particles, a study by Environment Canada shows.

Environment Minister Jack Davis released the study Thursday, noting that it is the first such nationwide inventory.

The study also revealed that one major industrial sector — primarily the copper and nickel industries — were responsible for about 14 per cent of all air pollution emissions. These two industrial sources accounted for about 4.5 million tons of pollutants.

The 31.2 million tons of emissions were broken down into the five pollutants: Carbon dioxide 55 per cent, sulphur dioxide 23 per cent, hydrocarbons 10 per cent, particulate matter seven per cent and nitrogen oxides four per cent.

Dollar Crisis Talks

Times News Services

The assault on the U.S. dollar brought the leadership of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany into consultation today as the West German central bank bought up $1.8 billion to fight traders betting on devaluation of the dollar or revaluation of the mark.

A government spokesman announced that Chancellor Willy Brandt was in direct contact with President Nixon, Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain and President Georges Pompidou of France, and the West German finance minister hurried to a meeting on the dollar crisis in Paris.

The spokesman said Brandt is "in permanent contact" with the three Western leaders as the crisis deepened.

Finance minister Helmut Schmidt flew to Paris for urgent talks with British and French finance ministers on the dollar crisis.

The Bank of Japan also stepped into the market and bought $240 million to preserve the official exchange rate.

Germany, which has purchased $6 billion in just over a week, and Japan, are buying dollars in order to keep the official exchange rate in tact. If they do not buy, their own currencies will rise in relative value, making their exports more expensive to buy and hurting their overseas markets.

"It appears everyone assumes something might happen over the weekend which would justify selling dollars on a large scale now," a market source in Brussels said.

"Another day like this and the government will have to close the exchange," one German financial expert said.

Army, Air Force Stage Revolt in Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO (CP) — The army and air force, in virtual open revolt against President Juan Bordaberry, seized six radio stations here today and again demanded dismissal of former Gen. Antonio Francisco as defence minister.

The army-air force action added to the confusion of the situation.

The Associated Press reported earlier that Bordaberry's 11 cabinet ministers, including Francese, had resigned and that a Bor-daberry spokesman expressed hope there would be a negotiated solution.

The army and air force said in a broadcast communique that they would insist on their demand, "no matter what must eventually be faced."

The communique said the two forces do not want to overthrow Bordaberry, but only to force the resignation of Francese.

Bordaberry spent the night at Government House after defying an earlier army-air force ultimatum to fire Francese.

The Communist-dominated National Labor Convention threatened to "paralyze the country" with a nation-wide strike if the army and air force staged Uruguay's first military coup in this century.

Bordaberry had said Thursday night he would not remove Francese.

Most military units disappeared from the streets today.

CONSERVER SOCIETY URGED BY COUNCIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Stopping short of urging a no-growth economy, the Science Council of Canada says the country should start moving from a consumer society to a conserver society and lead the world toward a fairer distribution of earth resources.

A council report released today calls for better resource management and cautions that Canada is just one small but rich community in a global village threatened by pollution, badly used resources, crowding and the irreconcilable extremes of poverty and affluence.

"As a country which has been lavishly endowed and which has always subscribed to a policy of helping the less fortunate," Canada will want to play a major role in helping poorer countries, the council says.

Contractor Bids 'Violated Ethics'

Two sub-contracting firms in Campbell River were guilty of "improper conduct" in connection with irregularities in bidding on a hospital project.

The two companies — Chalifour Bros. Construction Ltd. and Innes and Wolfe Contractors Ltd. — were named in the report of a government-appointed commission of inquiry set up by Health Minister Dennis Cocke. Cocke tabled the commission's report in the legislature Thursday.

The project involved construction of an addition to the Campbell River and District General Hospital. The two sub-contracting companies, along with a third company, submitted bids for plastering work to be done as part of the project.

The commission, headed by Dr. H. L. Purdy, professor of economics at the university of British Columbia, found that principals of the two named companies had exchanged information about their respective bids for the hospital project in a "telephone conversation."

The principals — A. A. Innes of Innes and Wolfe and Thomas T. Chalifour of Chalifour Bros. — both admitted in testimony that they had conducted the telephone conversation in which Chalifour mentioned that his company's bid was in the area of $200,000 and Innes said his company's bid was in the area of $100,000.

Evidence disclosed that one of Innes' employees had been instructed by Innes to revise his company's bid upward by more than $115,000 as a result of the telephone conversation.

The same employee testified that Innes "put in the high bid because he knew he wouldn't get the job... it was Mr. Chalifour's turn for a job."

The commission received evidence of the calculations done by the three sub-contracting companies for their bids. The calculations were as follows: Innes' company calculated a figure of $110,530 for the project; the third company involved — Gallagher Bros. Contractors Ltd. — calculated $163,258; and Chalifour's firm calculated $201,723.

The bids tendered by two of the three companies were not the same as their calculations. Gallagher bid $215,000, and Chalifour bid $201,723, the same as their calculation.

Testimony of a number of quantity surveyors was that even with giving the sub-contractors the benefit of the doubt the highest estimate produced was in the order of $145,000.

The commission's report said it "cannot fairly conclude that there was a conspiracy by anyone to tender artificially high bids" in the project.

"However, the commission so finds, that there has been improper conduct on the part of Chalifour Bros. Construction Ltd. and Innes and Wolfe Contractors Ltd."

"This improper conduct lies in the exchange of information concerning so-called competitive bids in the telephone discussion which took place between Mr. Innes and Mr. Chalifour."

"This conduct is entirely inconsistent with the whole concept of our competitive system of bidding on construction projects," the report said.

It added that it "constitutes a flagrant violation" of a section of a code of ethics of the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., of which both companies are members.

The commission of inquiry was set up by Cocke on Dec. 7, 1972, after irregularities in the hospital project bidding were brought to Cocke's attention.

The commission held eight days of hearings in Richmond in early January of this year.

A second part of the commission's report recommends some changes in the procedure for handling bids on construction projects. The report was submitted by Purdy on Jan. 31.

Pre-Dawn Swoop On Protestants

BELFAST (UPI) — Police raided homes in East Belfast at dawn today, arresting several Protestants as terrorist suspects in the latest wave of sectarian killings involving Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Police refused to divulge any information about the roundup.

"A number of people are being questioned," a spokesman said.

Protestant sources said at least five and probably eight men were taken from their homes. Some sources put the number as high as 15.

After the crackdown in East Belfast, Protestant women immediately mounted a demonstration outside a jail — the wrong jail — against the arrest.

Several leading Protestants were reported to be among "a number of people" arrested.

Outside Belfast, police arrested four men — one of them wounded — as suspects in the death of a policeman, who was shot and killed from ambush Thursday as he investigated a traffic accident.

As the violence continued, a British soldier was hit by machine-gun fire in the Roman Catholic New Lodge Road area, suffering a wound in the leg.

About 50 youths rushed an army post in the Catholic Ballymurphy area, but were driven off by troops firing rubber bullets.

Never Trust a Driver In a Flowered Bonnet

One of the things I forgot to tell the Morriszes when they arrived some 14 months ago was how to be a Victoria driver. Since it was at least partly my endorsement of the town that brought them here and since the word is out that Jim Morris is becoming more than mildly psychotic about driving habits hereabouts I hasten to make amends.

Until their move west the Morriszes' entire experience as drivers was limited to the city of Toronto and I would guess, just offhand, that Toronto drivers may be the best in the world. All of the incompetent drivers in Toronto either have been killed off or hopelessly crippled which leaves only the virtuoso drivers on the road.

The Toronto driver's sole concern is to get from Point A to Point B in the shortest elapsed time or, if possible, even quicker than that. Pedestrians are beneath contempt. At any red light you will see the cars lined up, waiting, racing their motors, going thrum-thrum-thrum, while the pedestrians cower on the curb, unwilling to take their chances on the "Walk" signal. Some are there to this day.

It is very unusual in Toronto to see a driver over the age of 35. The city, itself, is strangely barren of what we euphemistically call senior citizens. If you are in the downtown core, particularly, you're apt to think that the basic premises of demography have been obliterated.

I once spent the better part of an afternoon in the plaza of the Toronto-Dominion Centre looking for a man older than I. He never appeared. The mortality rate, of course, is fierce. Those who do not succumb from the weather succumb from the pace. I heard once of a Torontonian who had reached 50 by staying locked in his room, but it turned out to be only a legend.

Consider, then, what happens to a youngish couple like the Morriszes who take up residence in a city that's not merely a retirement haven, but a city in which the retired, clear up to the age of 100, play a full and active role in society. Since a good part of that role is behind the wheel of an automobile it comes right down to how life goes on in the streets and that way, for the unconstructed Toronto driver, lies madness.

Clearly what Jim Morris has not learned, even after 14 months, is that sweet patience, that smiling resignation that marks the true Victoria driver, a man or woman whose aim is not to make it from Point A to Point B in rapid time, but alive.

Take the business of horns, for example. In Toronto there are horns going all the time, a discordant symphony of irritability and impatience. Should you hesitate for five seconds in advancing on the green the man behind you will give you the horn and the man behind him will give him the horn. That is just the way it is. If you dropped dead at the wheel he'd still give you the horn.

It is not that way in Victoria. Indeed the retailers of new cars could sell them just as easily without the horn. No one would ever find out.

I remember, on one of my early familiarization expeditions, being driven about Oak Bay municipality by its mayor, the ebullient Frances Elford, who, in Toronto, might survive no more than eight minutes in light traffic. At one point Mrs. Elford braked suddenly to show me the site of a new apartment block. Instantly, there was a bap from a horn immediately to our rear. "Damn tourist!" the lady mayor muttered without looking around. I looked around and, sure enough, the car had Alberta plates.

What Jim Morris must learn to develop is a style of defensive driving unknown anywhere else in the world, a style based on the assumption that the other driver, any other driver within sight, may do something perfectly nutty.

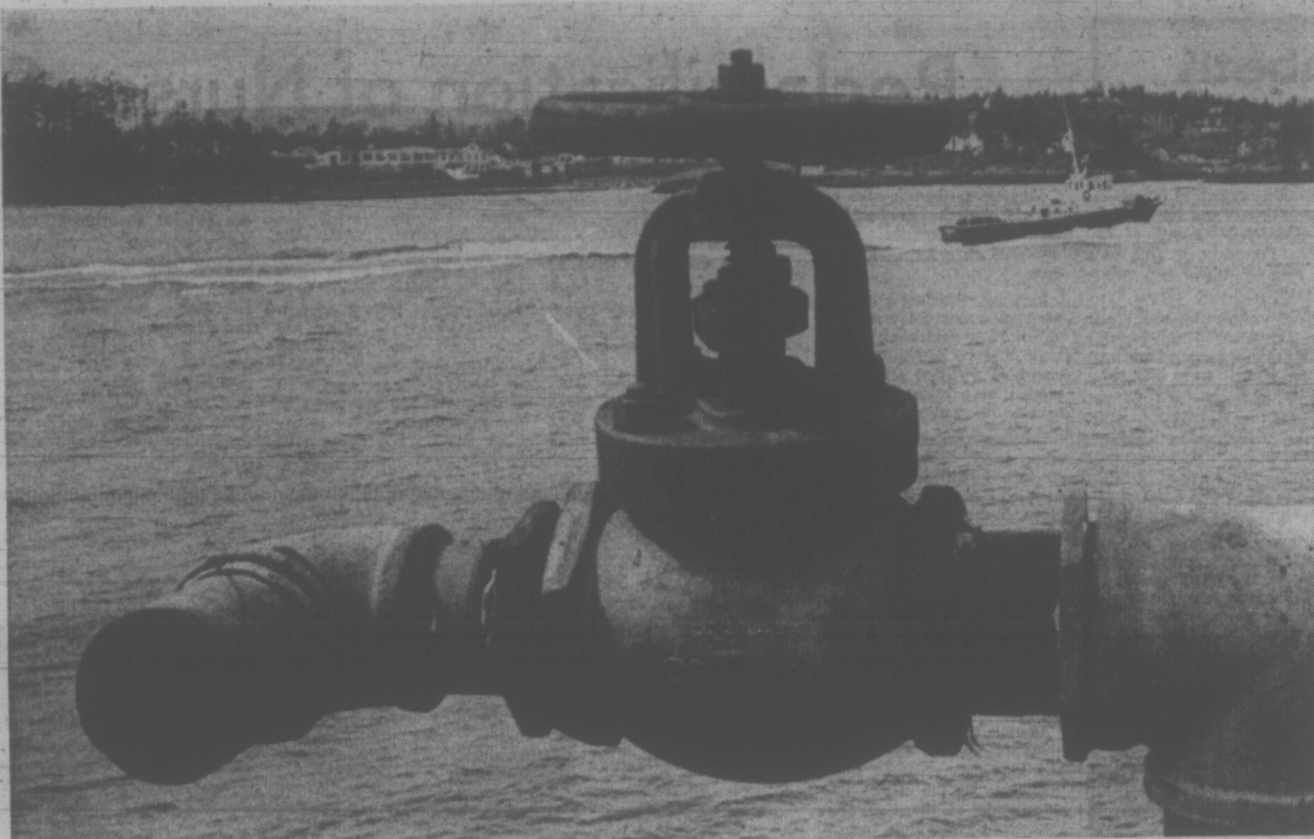

Only last month my wife, waiting for a red light to change at Colwood Corner, watched in mute fascination as an elderly gentleman pulled out of a driveway and drove directly into the side of our car. The insurance people quickly fixed things up, the other driver was downright gallant about it, but my wife is still haunted by the suspicion that it was somehow her responsibility for not getting out of the way.

This was the gentlest of bumps and, within the city's confines, there is rarely anything more serious. My favorite mechanic, a widely-travelled man, is fond of saying that he has never been in any city where there was so much body damage to automobiles and so little body damage to human beings.

Some motorists have refined the defensive driving style to a highly sophisticated level. I have one friend, for example, who has determined that all Austin Cambridge saloons are driven by little old ladies in flowered hats who have only a whimsical idea, at best, of what they'll do next. It is his practice, on sighting one, to pull into the curb instantly and park for 10 minutes.

The Victoria-born develop this patience from an early age and the Victoria-adopted usually learn it very quickly, but it is true, too, that it means a tremendous, bottled-up fury and frustration that can be psychologically dangerous.

About the most known release is another famous local phenomenon, the motorist who, freed from the tensions of downtown driving, miles from the nearest Austin Cambridge, goes shooting off the Malahat at 92 miles per hour.

300 Angry Farmers Rap Freeze

Victoria Times

FRIDAY, FEB. 9, 1973

FRIDAY, FEB. 9, 1973

SECOND SECTION

More than 300 angry farmers roared their approval Thursday night when their MLA, Hugh Curtis, told them he believes Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich now realizes he "has the lion by the tail" with his farmland freeze.

Curtis told the North and South Farmers' Institute meeting in Saanichton he is violently opposed to the farmland freeze and said the signing of petitions, letters to the premier and other government members were "absolutely essential" to express concern.

"This matter is being churned over right now. Therefore this legislation could be undergoing a second look. I hope this is the case."

Curtis suggested the Greenbelt Protection Fund was one of many possible alternatives and stressed the need for consultation between local and regional government.

A petition circulated at the meeting received numerous signatures, and is expected to be further circulated before being sent to the government. The B.C. Federation of Agriculture is circulating a similar petition.

The institute asks Stupich to lift the land freeze and replace it with legislation allowing future sales of farmland to proceed unencumbered unless that land is to be converted into non-farm use.

The petition also requests legislation giving the government first right of refusal to purchase at fair market value, at the time of sale, farmland which is to be sold for non-farm use.

Dairyman Bill Taylor, institute president, said urban sprawl is placing more and more restriction on the farmers.

The institute, he said, had successfully fought the previous government's move to dedicate farmland and had been helped by the New Democrat Party. Now, said Taylor, the new government has frozen farmland "but it should have been frozen 20 years ago."

Farmers agreed with broker Harry Liedtke, 321 Walton Place, who objected to the assertion made in the legislature that 80 per cent of

B.C. farmers are happy with the government freeze.

"We are tired of playing Santa Claus to the rest of the city," said Taylor.

George Aylard, North Saanich farmer and alderman, was applauded when he said, "If people want farmland preserved, everyone — not just farmers — must participate in paying for the land."

A question period revealed mass indignation over the production cost which Vancouver Island farmers are battling in the face of increasing competition from the Mainland.

"How many Victoria housewives look for local milk?" demanded Taylor. "Most buy the cheapest they can find."

"We are told we must increase the food supply, but a young man starting farming today must invest $125,000 and up. A job peddling milk pays much more and the only investment needed is a lunch box."

"If the government sunk their teeth into this instead of a land freeze, we would be farther ahead," said Taylor.

Jim Gorst, NDP MLA for Esquimalt, attended the meeting "as a concerned citizen."

"The new government is trying to wrestle with the problem farmers have had for a long time," he said. "This is not a vindictive action. In the Fraser Valley the farming community is being wiped out."

Ted Clayards, former Central Saanich alderman, said the crux of the matter was to find alternative solutions to control arable land for agricultural use.

Tenders Due On Hospital

The provincial government has authorized calling of tenders for a 75-bed extended care hospital in Central Saanich.

Louis Lindholm, president of the Saanich Peninsula Hospital Society, said Thursday he has received a telegram from Health Minister Dennis Cocke granting approval to call for construction bids. Lindholm said he is hopeful the tender invitation will be out before the end of the month.

The province must still approve letting the contract before construction can begin but it now appears the hospital will be in operation before the end of the year.

The hospital, which will cost an estimated $1 million to build and equip, will go on a 22-acre site beside Mount Newton Crossroad. The 75-bed first phase will be for extended care patients, meaning chronically ill mostly elderly people who require constant nursing.

The service areas have been designed to handle a proposed second phase, another 75 beds for acute care patients. Ultimately the new hospital will replace Resthaven Hospital in Sidney.

Cocke's approval to call tenders requires concurrence of the Capital regional hospital board. But board chairman Art Young said today he is delighted with the news and the board will certainly give its blessing when it next meets on Wednesday.

Captain's Trial May 7

Judge William Ostler today set May 7 as the trial date for the captain of the freighter Irish Stardust.

Defence lawyer Peter Lowry of Vancouver entered a plea of not guilty in provincial court for Capt. James Caird. The skipper is charged under the Canada Shipping Act with failing to report to a pollution officer after his ship grounded on Haddington Island, spilling 100,000 gallons of crude bunker oil from there to Victoria.

The captain did not appear. A second charge, against the ship, of discharging oil or an oily mixture into Canadian waters, was read. Plea on this charge was reserved until May 7.

Victoria's medical health officer and fire chief say the only way to enforce the city's anti-slum bylaws is for citizens to file complaints.

Jim Nelson, a tenant organizer, said Thursday city bylaw 3459 is being broken because of neglect by city officials.

Dr. John Whitbread said he knew slum tenant housing existed.

"We've been taking action where it's warranted, but only after complaints," he said.

He said the city can call on the services of only three full-time and one part-time health inspectors and more inspectors have been sought for five years.

"With one more inspector we could probably do a survey in the James Bay area for example," Whitbread said.

He said the best way to enforce the bylaw is for citizens, neighbors, relatives of the afflicted and other concerned people to lodge complaints.

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said the fire department is "pretty well forced to work on a complaint basis."

He said fire inspectors work with the welfare department to check poor housing — "we've never had trouble getting places upgraded."

Simmons said the fire department has no authority to conduct inspections of single family dwellings without written complaints being submitted.

"We have enough authority under the Fire Marshal's Act to close places," he said.

Routine inspections are

Judge Hints Hashish OK —For Some

A provincial court judge today declared in court that smoking hashish may not be so bad after all — but only for some people.

Judge William Ostler, speaking to 17-year-old Allan Francis O'Day, of Vancouver, charged with possession of hashish, warned the accused that "the day may come when you will bitterly regret using this substance. You may be one of those persons — and I recognize that there may be many of them — who can use it and get into no difficulty."

The accused, a ward of the Children's Aid Society, in Vancouver, was arrested Thursday with a hashpipe containing a quantity of the drug. He was on a field trip in connection with his studies at the time of his arrest.

O'Day was given a suspended sentence and placed on 18 months' probation.

made on all commercial properties, he said, although rented single-family houses do not appear to come under that category.

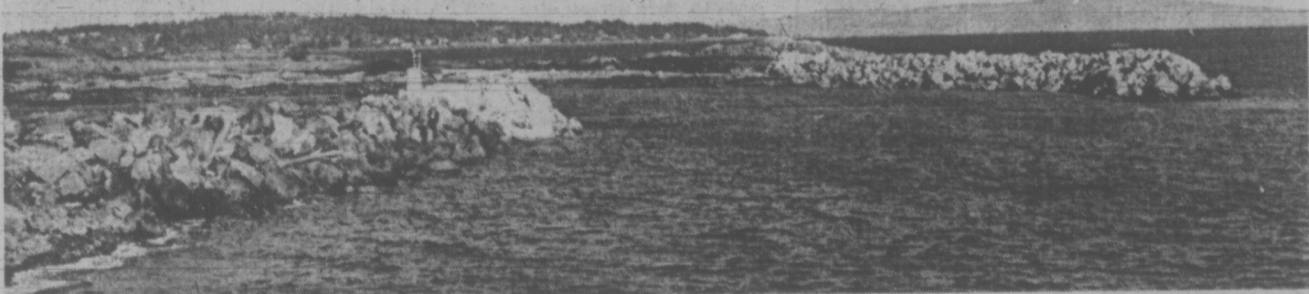

The fire department has six full-time inspectors which Simmons said is because of the responsibilities the department has to fulfill.

Assistant municipal manager Colin Crisp also said it was up to citizens to get action from city officials if they saw bad living conditions.

That Flu Bug's Sophisticated—It Arrived by Jet

By GEORGE OAKE
Times Staff

Got the flu?
Blame it on Frank Whittle. He built the Allies' first jet engine in 1941.

One world war and the bombers, F-111 jet fighter-Korean "police action" later it was sufficiently developed for civilian use and jets started roaring off carrying people and flu viruses to the four corners of the earth.

That's right, flu viruses. Imagine how long it took Marco Polo to take Venetian flu to the Middle Kingdom?

Now the Chinese can ship it back in a day on board a Boeing 707.

You don't believe this symbiotic relationship between jet engines and flu viruses?

No less than the ninth edition of "Control of Communicable Diseases in Man" (An official report of the American Public Health Association) agrees:

"Mode of transmission — By direct contact, through droplet infection, or by articles freshly soiled with discharges of the nose and throat of infected persons; possibly airborne."

The key word is airborne.

And Metropolitan Health Officer J. L. M. Whitbread clinches it. Asked if he thought flu might get around on jets, the cautious doctor replied, "I wouldn't be a bit surprised."

But back to The Control of Communicable Diseases. There are two varieties: A and B.

"The disease shows a cyclic tendency, with influenza A appearing in epidemic form at shorter intervals than influenza B."

It figures. Type A has an airline schedule and Type B feels more at home with camel caravans and ships like the Titanic.

The Asian flu of 1957-58 was labelled an A variety. It flew out of Hong Kong one winter day, landed in Vancouver and pow! The rest is medical history.

Naturally, it proliferated and weakened in strength eventually. So it grabbed a flight out of San Francisco for the Orient and went home to recuperate in places like Peking and Hanoi — places our government has recently recognized, which means the jets will be coming in a year or so.

Meanwhile, a hardy Asian strain hid out in England, did flu-type calisthenics, and generally built up its infectious muscles.

One day early in '73 it packed its virulent bags and hustled out of some Bayswater cul-de-sac to Heathrow airport where it took Air Canada's direct flight to Vancouver.

You think I'm kidding? I know because I got it from some lawyer at the Harrison Hot Springs bar convention last weekend. And as everybody knows lawyers and students on government grants are the only people rich enough to take that flight.

Right now London flu viruses are dancing around my small intestine singing hymns of praise to Frank Whittle and the jet engine. I can feel them.

Of course there's no local epidemic.

There never is. It's just that everybody's got it.

Even before the school strike school board community relations officer Bill Stavdal said there was no high degree of absenteeism because of flu.

"But my own son had the flu last week," Stavdal added, confirming my suspicions.

"There are no indications of an epidemic," Dr. Whitbread said, although, "for the person who has it, it's 100 per cent."

That's the understatement of the year.

"An acute highly communicable disease characterized by abrupt onset with fever of one to six days duration, chills, aches or pains in the back, legs or shoulders, and malaise or prostration," says the American Medical Association.

How do you say "I got malaise and prostration" to an associate city editor of 14 years experience?

I settled for, "I got the flu, I'm not coming in."

"It's all that rich food you ate on company money with those lawyers," he replied in his usual uncharitable way.

"Yeah, the flu bug hit me a ride in a crate of lobster tails out of Melbourne," I thought after hanging up and heading for the john.

Budget Bites Big Business

and BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Premier Dave Barrett today brought down the first budget by a socialist government in British Columbia and dipped deeply into the pockets of big business.

The corporation tax was increased from 10 to 12 per cent. And petroleum royalties were doubled to about 30 per cent.

Spending on education, health, pension supplements and other social services will be increased by more than $150 million for the fiscal year.

The $1.7 billion budget, up by close to $267 million on the current fiscal year, is an all-time record and reflects the biggest single-year increase in the history of the province.

This was necessitated, Barrett said in the budget speech, by "past deficiencies" and the need to catch up in the level of all services.

As expected, the budget contained no increase in personal tax rates.

The standard homeowner grant is raised $15 to $200, and the grant for homeowners aged 65 and over is increased by the same amount to $250.

Municipal per capita grants are raised $2 to $32 and are made unconditional. Formerly the grants had to be spent by municipalities in some cases exclusively for ambulance services and tourist promotion.

The highways department budget gets a $33.5 million boost and $5 million each is added to the special funds for park development and reforestation.

All three allocations, Barrett told a brief press conference this morning, are designed to provide more jobs for British Columbians.

"It's one heck of a good budget and I'm very proud of it," Barrett told reporters.

"It's a budget designed to provide jobs out of the tax dollars that people are paying ... to help municipalities to be self-sufficient."

This had been accomplished, he noted, "without a single increase in tax for the working person or the small person."

Barrett wouldn't be drawn on the question whether other resources will be hit as petroleum has been. He simply said "There will be further legislation."

In the fiscal year ending March 31, the province would have a surplus of about $70 million, he said.

In the fiscal year of the new budget, 1973-1974, he did not anticipate a surplus.

"There may very well be a surplus but we are not deliberately underestimating our revenues."

He said he was anticipating a revenue increase of 10.5 per cent to 11 per cent, slightly lower than the increase in the current fiscal year.

Other budget items:

Allocation of $10 million to a Provincial Land Acquisition Fund to buy land for future housing sites. Barrett said at the press conference this will not only help to meet the housing need but also spur a rapid build-up in jobs in the construction and trades areas.

— $10 million to establish a Community Recreational Facilities Fund for the province to share in jointly-financed community construction projects.

— An extra $40 million for hospital insurance, bringing the total in the next fiscal year to $272 million, and $90 million provided for medical care.

A decrease in the tax rate on liquefied petroleum gas, which the budget speech termed "a nearly pollutant-free motor fuel," from 17 to 10 cents a gallon. This is designed to encourage a reduction in pollution caused by the automobile.

Family farmers and fishermen are exempted from gasoline tax on motor fuels used off-highway, and fuel used in the family farm truck on the highway. "We believe our primary agriculture and fishing industries ... are in need of incentives also," the budget speech said.

The province's home-acquisition fund, providing grants for home purchase and low-interest second mortgages, is continued and gets another $50 million pumped in.

Higher Rural Taxes

The government plans a mill rate increase for citizens who live in rural and unorganized areas of the province.

Premier Barrett gave no indication of how much the increase will be — the rate now, province-wide is 10 mills.

"An increase will be made in a rural property tax mill rate which, in our opinion, has remained much too low in relation to the municipal general property tax levy," Barrett said in his budget speech.

For areas such as Colwood, Langford and View Royal, this indication in the speech could be interpreted as a nudge from the government for citizens of these outlying areas to start thinking more seriously about incorporating as municipalities.

The Greater Victoria mill rate is in the area of 70 mills.

Army, Air Force Stage Revolt in Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO (CP) — The army and air force, in virtual open revolt against President Juan Bordaberry, seized six radio stations here today and again demanded dismissal of former Gen. Antonio Francisco as defence minister.

The army-air force action added to the confusion of the situation. The Associated Press reported earlier that Bordaberry's 11 cabinet ministers, including Francisco, had resigned and that a Bor-daberry spokesman expressed hope there would be a negotiated solution.

The army and air force said in a broadcast communique that they would insist on their demand, "no matter what must eventually be faced."

The communique said the two forces do not want to overthrow Bordaberry, but only to force the resignation of Francisco.

Bordaberry spent the night at Government House after defying an earlier army-air force ultimatum to fire Francisco.

The Communist-dominated National Labor Convention threatened to "paralyze the country" with a nation-wide strike if the army and air force staged Uruguay's first military coup in this century.

Bordaberry had said Thursday night he would not remove Francisco.

Most military units disappeared from the streets today. Nevertheless, the navy said its ships were on alert "to defend the government."

12-Year Record Food Price Jump

Times News Services

OTTAWA — With a sharp boost from soaring food prices, the consumer price index took its biggest monthly jump in 12 years during the December-January period, to 144.5 from 143.3, Statistics Canada said today.

In the past 12 months overall food prices have increased 10 per cent. One-fifth of that increase took place in the December-January period.

The food component of the index showed increases in all major items, the statistics bureau said, but the rise was particularly sharp for beef, pork, eggs, fresh vegetables and milk.

In the Commons today, Prime Minister Trudeau, facing heavy opposition fire over the latest increase, said "There will be some measure of relief" in the Feb. 19 budget, and those most affected by the rising costs.

The prime minister didn't mention any particular group of people, who would be helped.

The government is considering every way in which it can stop the increase in living costs, Trudeau told Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield. So far as food costs are concerned, he hoped to get some insight from the Commons

Giant Union Formed

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — A new Western European trade union organization big enough to take on the multinational companies was born here Thursday, claiming to represent 29 million workers in 14 countries.

It was created by merging the European Confederation of Free Trade Unions, which grouped workers in the former six-country Common Market with the EFTA Trades Union Congress, made up of labor organizations in the European Free Trade Association.

Its formation follows enlargement of the Common Market to include Britain, Ireland and Denmark.

VEHICLES LEFT MOST POLLUTION

OTTAWA (CP) — Vehicles were responsible for 57 per cent of total air pollution in Canada in 1970, giving off more than 17 million tons of polluting gases and particles, a study by Environment Canada shows.

Environment Minister Jack Davis released the study Thursday, noting that it is the first such nationwide inventory.

The study also revealed that one major industrial sector

primarily the copper and nickel industries — were responsible for about 14 per cent of all air pollution emissions. These two industrial sources accounted for about 4.5 million tons of pollutants.

The 31.2 million tons of emissions were broken down into the five pollutants: Carbon dioxide 55 per cent, sulphur dioxide 23 per cent, hydrocarbons 10 per cent, particulate matter seven per cent and nitrogen oxides four per cent.

Dollar Talks

Times News Services

The assault on the U.S. dollar brought the leadership of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany into consultation today as the West German central bank bought up $1.8 billion to fight traders betting on devaluation of the dollar or revaluation of the mark.

A government spokesman announced that Chancellor Willy Brandt was in direct contact with President Nixon, Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain and President Georges Pompidou of France, and the West German finance minister hurried to a meeting on the dollar crisis in Paris.

The spokesman said Brandt is "in permanent contact" with the three Western leaders as the crisis deepened.

Finance minister Helmut Schmidt flew to Paris for urgent talks with British and French finance ministers on the dollar crisis.

The Bank of Japan also stepped into the market and bought $240 million to preserve the official exchange rate.

Germany, which has purchased $6 billion in just over a week, and Japan, are buying dollars in order to keep the official exchange rate in tact. If they do not buy, their own currencies will rise in relative value, making their exports more expensive to buy and hurting their overseas markets.

"It appears everyone assumes something might happen over the weekend which would justify selling dollars on a large scale now," a market source in Brussels said.

"Another day like this" and the government will have to close the exchange," one German financial expert said.

Pre-Dawn Swoop

BELFAST (UPI) — Police raided homes in East Belfast at dawn today, arresting several Protestants as terrorist suspects in the latest wave of sectarian killings involving Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Police refused to divulge any information about the roundup.

A number of people are being questioned," a spokesman said. Protestant sources said at least five and probably eight men were taken from their homes. Some sources put the number as high as 15.

After the crackdown in East Belfast, Protestant women immediately mounted a demonstration outside a jail — the wrong jail — against the arrest.

Several leading Protestants were reported to be among "a number of people" arrested.

Outside Belfast, police arrested four men — one of them wounded — as suspects in the death of a policeman who was shot and killed from ambush Thursday as he investigated a traffic accident.
